ALLEN'S TRIAL TO BE DELAYED AS PLEA PENDS

District Heads Consider Request for Hearing by Special Tribunal.

PROBABLE ACTION CALLED UNCERTAIN

Decision Likely Will Be Reached by Tomorrow, Dougherty Says.

SUSPENDED PRIVATE PAYS $2 AUTO FINE

Penalized for Parking Car Double, He Now Faces No-Lights Charge.

With the trial of Capt. Robert E. Doyle, suspended commander of the Eighth Precinct, already postponed a week from today, that of Private Robert J. Allen, suspended member of Doyle's former command, also will be postponed when the trial board meets today while the District Commissioners consider Allen's request for the apointement of an extraordinary trial board composed of civilians.

Allen's request was formally presented to the District Commissioners yesterday by his attorneys, H. Ralph Burton and Tench T. Marye, to whom the Commissioners gave an oral hearing, the proceedings being taken down by a stenographer.

No decision was reached by the Commissioners, none of whom would give any indication of the probable action. A meeting of the zoning commission will occupy the Commissioners today and Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty said that might delay a decision on Allen's request. A decision probably would be made not later than tomorrow, Dougherty said.

Request May Be Granted.

Although there were predictions that the request would be granted, it was not at all certain that these would be borne out, inasmuch as the Commissioners already have gone formally on record in instructions to Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, that the complaints against the conduct of Doyle and Allen should be treated in the ordinary manner.

While his attorneys were preparing their arguments for presentation before the Commissioners, Allen yesterday morning was in Police Court, where he was convicted and fined $2 by Judge Ralph Given for double parking. He was arrested Monday afternoon by Policeman G. R. Walter, who said that Allen had left his automobile parked double for 12 minutes at Fifteenth and H streets northwest shortly after 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Allen testified on the parking charge that he parked his car on Fifteenth street near H street northwest and ran to a nearby bank, but found it closed. He declared that he was not gone three minutes, but that when he returned he found Policeman Walter, of the Traffic Bureau. Walter immediately took him to the bureau, Allen said.

Asked to Go to Bureau, Claim.

Walter, on the stand, told the court that he would have written a ticket for Allen, but that the suspended policeman had made the request that he be taken to the bureau.

Allen, appearing as his own attorney, asked Walter how long his car was parked there? Walter replied, "Twelve minutes."

"How do you know?" Allen asked. "Did you time me by your watch?"

"I did not, but I saw a clock on the National Savings & Trust Co. Building at Fifteenth and New York avenue."

Allen told the court that he thought that the circumstances would warrant his parking double, but Judge Given declared they did not, and assessed the fine.

Allen arrived in court exhibiting to newspaper reporters another traffic violation ticket, this one charging him with parking his car without lights in front of his home at 2807 Connecticut avenue northwest. Allen said he found the ticket on his windshield when he left home yesterday morning to go to court to answer the double parking charge.

He said that when he left his automobile in front of the apartment house he had left the light burning, although it was out when he entered his car yesterday morning. He announced his intention to appear in court this morning and fight the lighting charge, on which he posted $2 collateral at the Fourteenth Precinct Station yesterday.

Arguing for the appointment of a civilian trial board for his client, Burton told the Commissioners that Allen has become "the center of a controversy in which impartial justice is now the prime factor. It lies within the power of the District Commissioners to convince the public that they

Kahn Refuses Post Of G. O. P. Treasurer

Banker Asks Moses Not to Present His Name to Committee.

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Otto H. Kahn, New York banker, today made public a letter he had written to Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, in which Kahn asked that his name be not brought before the Republican national campaign committee for appointment as treasurer.

The letter to Senator Moses, who is chairman of the campaign committee, follows:

"When you did me the honor to ask me to act as treasurer of the Republican senatorial campaign committee, I told you that I feared your kindly sentiment toward me, springing from a long friendship, was swaying your judgment. But I felt sure that I was not the right man for the position, and, moreover, I was overwhelmed with demands upon my time and energies, and that I hoped very much you would not persist in your request.

"You argued to the contrary, and, among other things, pointed to the fact that while a Wall street man, I was known to be, as, indeed, I am, a liberal in politics. You repeated your invitation when I had the pleasure of seeing you at your Milbanks dinner last Thursday.

"I thereupon stated that my views were unchanged, but I felt that if we

POLLARD DISAVOWS DEPRIEST CIRCULAR

BROWN FLAYED BY BYRD

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—John Garland Pollard, Democratic nominee for Governor of Virginia, replied tonight to a communication from Henry W. Anderson, Republican leader, as to whether he approved or authorized the "DePriest circular," by denying any knowledge of the circular and terming the Anderson inquiry "a brazen piece of insolence."

"The questions that you ask as to my approval of unfair methods are such that no gentleman can properly propound to another," Dr. Pollard said in a letter to Mr. Anderson tonight. "I am always willing to answer questions concerning the real issues of this campaign, but when you ask me whether I approve falsehood I consider it a brazen piece of insolence of which I would hope you would not be guilty in your calmer moments, and for which I trust you will be sorry when the smoke of battle has cleared away."

Anderson last night accused Democratic headquarters of distributing the circular which declared Anderson and Dr. William Mosely Brown, coalition candidate for governor, as well as the Republican State platform, stood for repeal of the poll tax as a prerequisite to voting. This Anderson denounced as "absolutely false." The circular contained pictures of Oscar DePriest, Negro representative, and his wife, as well as excerpts from DePriest speeches and an invitation to his wife to have tea at the White House.

Dr. Pollard's reply followed a statement from T. McCall Frazier, Democratic headquarters manager, denying the printing or distribution of the circular. Dr. Pollard expressed belief that it was "political expediency" that prevented the poll tax repeal from appearing in the Republican platform. Dr. Pollard said poll tax repeal was advocated by Anderson when he ran for governor in 1921. Denying knowledge of the DePriest circular, the Democratic nominee said: "This is a complete answer to your questions 1, 2, 3 and 4, and it is only

NINE ON LAKE SHIP DIE; FOUR MISSING

59 MEN ARE RESCUED

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A ship, believed to be a freighter, was sending up distress signals on Lake Erie near here tonight.

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The Goodrich passenger and freight steamer Wisconsin went to its doom in Lake Michigan today 7 miles off Kenosha. Nine men, including Capt H. Dougal Morrison, Chicago, veteran Great Lakes skipper, are known to be dead. Of 59 rescued, 19 are in hospitals, while 40 received succor at the police station here. Three or four, believed to have been on the ship are unaccounted for.

The other dead are:

Julius Buschmann, chief engineer.
Joseph Burt, third cook.
"Old Joe," deck hand.
Joseph Metz, deck hand.
L. H. De Gassogus, deck hand.
Walter Ryan, deck hand.
Victor Estes, deck hand.
One unidentified deck hand.

Men, maddened and dazed by fear, weakened by exposure, and with wet clothes clinging to them, were brought to shore by heroic Coast Guardsmen, who braved the rolling seas in fragile cutters to effect a rescue.

A week ago the Wisconsin won a battle against a Lake Michigan gale, but last night's storm proved too much for her. Shortly after midnight she radioed that she had sprung a leak, the pumps were not working properly, the hold was filling with water, and that she was in need of assistance. She requested that tugs and steamers come out and "stand by."

Two Coast Guard cutters, one from Racine and the other from Kenosha, responded. Shortly before 5 a. m. the first lifeboat was lowered and in a few minutes a Coast Guard cutter took its human cargo aboard. This manner of rescue continued until five boatloads had been taken aboard the two cutters. The cutters were unable to get alongside the Wisconsin because of the high seas.

With their burden of shivering humanity the cutters docked at the

Senator Watson, Ill, Plans Three Weeks Florida Rest

Jones to Take Over Helm During Absence of G. O. P. Leader.

(Associated Press.)

Worn out by the tariff struggle in the Senate, Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, will leave Washington tomorrow or Friday for a three weeks' rest in Florida.

Senator Jones, of Washington, the assistant floor leader, will take over the helm for the Republicans in his absence. The Washington senator is just recovering from a serious operation, but he reported he would carry on.

Friends of Watson disclosed yesterday that he had been under the care of physicians for more than a week, although he has been present in the Senate daily. The doctors declared him to be on the verge of a nervous breakdown and the rest was ordered.

The Indiana senator will motor to

ROVER BEGINS PADLOCK WAR ON GAMBLERS

ALL MANNER OF VICE COVERED IN CAMPAIGN

Speak-Easies Also Held Within Category of Disorderly House.

POLICE SURVEY SHOWS 150 "NUISANCES" OPEN

Camalier to Handle Drive, but Refuses to Make Statement Yet.

In an effort to break up disorderly houses in the District of Columbia, United States Attorney Leo A. Rover announced yesterday that unless all such alleged nuisances are immediately abated he will institute padlock proceedings under the Webb-Kenyon act.

Rover stated that the police had made an intensive survey covering a period from May until September 30, and that this report had been submitted to his office. He took action yesterday, sending letters to 60 of the more than 150 landlords or renting agents who have charge of the property where the alleged nuisances are said to exist.

Assistant United States Attorney Renah F. Camalier, who has charge of the campaign against owners of property where gaming houses are known to exist, was placed in charge of the latest crusade.

Aimed at Gambling Rooms.

Camalier refused to make any statement concerning it, but it was understood that it is aimed primarily at gaming establishments, which also might come under the scope of "disorderly houses." It also is aimed at speakeasies and other haunts of bootleggers which police raid on disorderly house warrants. It is understood. The prohibition law covers nuisances and provides for padlocks where such exist, but many places where liquor is sold can not be classed as nuisances under that law, it is said. The new crusade, it is understood, will take care of that class.

A sample letter, containing extracts of the Webb-Kelynor act, follows:

"The Police Department has forwarded to this office a report showing the premises, in each precinct, wherein violations of law have allegedly occurred, with especial reference to offenses prohibited by an act of Congress, approved February 7, 1914, and incorporated in the code of law for the District of Columbia, to wit:

DIZZY STOCK PLUNGE HALTS AS STRONG INTERESTS BUY; KLEIN, ON RADIO, REASSURES

NATIONAL INCOME HARDLY AFFECTED

Market Is Held Not to Be Major Barometer of Economic Situation.

(Associated Press.)

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Julius Klein, in the first speech on the stock market situation and business made by a high administration official since the recent startling price declines, informed a national radio audience last night that "regardless of regrettable speculative uncertainties, the industrial and commercial structure of the Nation is sound."

The Commerce Department official said the volume of purchasing power measured the heights of living standards, and then declared that "basically our normal purchasing power has not been appreciably impaired."

Speaking over the Columbia network, he recalled and echoed the conviction recently expressed by President Hoover that the fundamental business of the Nation is on a firm basis. He dealt with the relation of business to the stock market, and refrained from forecasting the trend of the market during the next few days.

Holds Confidence Justified.

Holding that it would be "quite improper" as well as impossible for any Government official to express such views, he asserted that "all of us are justified, in my opinion, in a profound confidence in the general economic future of the country."

"The fundamental factor in the general situation of business," he said, "is purchasing power. Real purchasing power is made up of wages, salaries, receipts of farmers, merchants, professional men, and others and the profits of industry. These have not been changed by the drop in stock prices. The national income of the United States at this moment is hardly a fraction less than it was a month ago. Established indexes, such as the quantity of output of our farms, our mines and our factories, and the volume of our railroad transportation supports this view."

While stock exchange prices have gone down materially, Klein con-

Money Kings to Keep Strength in Market

Lamont Asserts Bankers Will Continue to Aid; Assemble Again.

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., said tonight that New York's leading bankers had been supporting the stock market in a cooperative way and would continue to support it.

"I want to take occasion tonight," he said, "to explain again as heretofore that the banking group was organized to offer certain support in the market and to act as far as possible as somewhat of a stabilizing factor.

"It was not an attempt of the group to maintain prices but to maintain a free market for securities in good order. In other words, we aimed to correct the technical conditions which prevailed last Thursday. We have not been sellers of stock."

The banking group met twice today, once before noon and again after the close of trading on the exchange. With the exception of Chellis Austin, president of the Equitable Trust Co., who called at the Morgan offices late in the afternoon to discuss general conditions, the same bankers com-

LOST PLANE BEATS WESTERN BLIZZARD

PILOT IS GIVEN PRAISE

Albuquerque, N. Mex., Oct. 29 (A.P.). Fighting a snowstorm most of the way to Albuquerque from Trechado, N. Mex., Pilot James E. Doles and his copilot, Allan C. Barrie, brought the lost Western Air Express plane No. 113 safely to the Albuquerque Airport this afternoon.

Doles, Barrie, R. L. Britton, steward, and passengers Dr. A. W. Ward, of San Francisco and W. E. Merz, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., were none the worse for their adventure and said the greatest inconvenience had been the loss of time.

The plane encountered a terrific snowstorm over Arizona yesterday morning and Doles circled until he found a safe place to land.

He put the plane down at Trechado and he and his cargo spent the night there to await clear weather. Trechado is about 75 miles southeast of Gallup, and is only about 5 miles south of the country of treacherous lava beds and extinct volcanoes.

Doles landed the huge trimotored passenger plane at the airport here about 3:40 p. m. The search had been temporarily held in abeyance at that time until a snowstorm raging over the State had cleared.

The plane had been missing since 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

At no time since the plane was reported overdue did officials of the Western Air Express doubt that Doles had safely landed his ship. Their confidence was based upon his performance and the instructions issued to all pilots to seek safety in stormy weather. In three years of flying the Western Air Express traveled 3,200,000 miles without an accident. Doles had been flying with the com-

BRIGHT FUTURE SEEN BY 98 BUSINESS MEN

Nation's Commerce Sound, Despite Wild Selling of Stocks, Belief.

SYMPOSIUM IS COMPILED

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A symposium of opinion from 98 leading business executives all of whom express confidence in fundamental strength of business, in contrast to the wild hysteria of stock selling, was compiled today by Louis Guenther, financial publisher.

Excerpts from several of the statements follow:

Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.—"The business prospects of the Bell Telephone System are as good as they ever have been and we look for continued growth and expansion."

H. T. Pearson, president F. W. Woolworth Co.—"Business prospects, as far as F W Woolworth & Co. is concerned, are very good, indeed, for the balance of the year."

Paul Shoup, president Southern Pacific—"I remember out West, as a boy, I acquired several kinks in my voice trying to save a flock of sheep from jumping into a ravine one after the other, and was wholly unsuccessful. So far as the business along our railroad is concerned, there is no more reason for people falling over each other in the stock market than the sheep had reason to jump into that ravine."

R. E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.—"Our October sales are the largest on record. While the shaking of public confidence may impair buying power somewhat in the next few months, I see no grounds for any real depression in business."

Walter P. Chrysler, president of Chrysler Motors Corporation: "The present hysterical selling of stocks is very unfortunate and entirely uncalled for in the face of generally favorable conditions and prospects.

Hoover Will Attend Services for Burton

President to Present Respects of Nation to Deceased Senator at Rites in Capitol Today; Public Funeral Is Planned in Cleveland.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover will pay the respects of the Nation today to Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, who died Monday night after years of labor in the country's service.

Announcing yesterday that he would be among the group of high Government officials to attend a funeral service in the Senate chamber, the President said he regarded the late senator as one of the outstanding figures of contemporary public life.

"When the origins of great and successful policies are examined in the retrospect of history," the President stated, "the senator's name will rank among the first leaders of his time."

The President's announcement followed a three-minute session of the Senate in which a resolution of regret was adopted and plans for a state funeral this afternoon were made. The Senate then adjourned out of respect to the memory of the man who, as a member of both the Senate and House, strove for the cause of international peace.

Hoover's decision to attend the service was not without a precedent. Former President Coolidge attended a similar service for the late Representative Madden, of Illinois, in the House chamber.

Words of praise for an unselfish career of service and of gratitude for the loyal friendship the late senator gave came from his colleagues in the Senate as well as from the President.

Vice President Curtis, Senator Fess the dead senator's colleague, and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, were among the first to acknowledge their debt. Robinson observed that Mr. Burton's service was "marked by sincerity, ability and patriotism." Other expressions of regret came from Senators Smoot, of Utah, and Simmons, of North Carolina, who had been his friends for 25 years.

The service in the Senate will be one befitting the long public career of Mr. Burton. It will be in charge of the Rev. Z. B. Phillips, chaplain of the Senate, and the Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House. Senator Fess and Representative Hawley, of Oregon, chairman of the House ways and means committee, will deliver addresses of eulogy.

Before the body is taken to the Capitol a simple service for the family and immediate friends will be held at the late senator's apartment. Among the relatives who will attend are Miss Grace Burton, the senator's niece, who acted as his official hostess; Mrs. Laura Price, another niece, and William Burton, of Omaha, a nephew.

After the service at the home the body will be taken to the Capitol and will be placed in front of the Vice President's desk, surrounded by chairs for the President, his official family, Chief Justice Taft, and the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, members of the House of Representatives, the Diplomatic Corps, the chief of staff of the Army, the chief of naval operations and the commandant of the Marine Corps.

After the Senate service, the body will remain in the chamber until 7

Mme. Curie, White House Guest, Will Get $50,000

Sum to Be Presented for Purchase of Radium for Hospital.

A draft for $50,000 to purchase a gram of radium for her valorous researches awaited Mme. Curie when she arrived at the White House last night for a visit with the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Encased in silver, the draft will be presented to her at the National Academy of Sciences this afternoon at ceremonies which will include an address by the President. Since radium is no longer manufactured in this country, it was decided to present the draft raised through private subscriptions for its purchase in Belgium to be used by her in the Curie Polish Cancer Hospital and Laboratory in Warsaw.

16,410,000-Share Market Shatters All Trading Records on Street.

SUPPORT ANNOUNCED BY MORGAN PARTNER

BIG CORPORATIONS START PURCHASING

Midafternoon Rally Cuts Some Losses and Credit Stress Is Eased.

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Huge barriers of buying orders, hastily erected by powerful financial interests, finally checked the most frantic stampede of selling yet experienced by the securities markets and which threatened at times today to bring about an utter collapse in prices.

All trading records were broken with a turnover of 16,410,000 shares on the New York Stock Exchange and 7,096,300 shares on the New York Curb Market. This contrast with the previous records of 12,894,600 and 6,148,300 shares, respectively, established last Thursday, and a stock exchange turnover of 9,212,800 shares yesterday.

Extreme declines in the active issues ranged from $10 to $70 a share, but many of these were cut in half in the rally which started in midafternoon and continued through to the close.

Morgan Partner Makes Statement.

Thomas W. Lamont, senior partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., announced, after a second conference of bankers had been held tonight, that leading New York bankers were supporting the market in a cooperative way and would continue to support it.

"It was not an attempt of the group," he said, "to maintain prices but to maintain a free market for securities in good order."

Unofficially, it was ascertained that large corporations, including U. S. Steel, had stepped into the market today to purchase stock for their employes' stock purchase plans, as well as for their investment accounts, and that these purchases had been supplemented by the buying of wealthy capitalists for their individual accounts. Rumors that the banking group was a seller of stock were denied.

Supporting Orders Come In.

Bankers, who had been hurriedly called into conference last night and again at noon today, apparently stood aside at the opening as blocks of 10,000 to 80,000 shares were thrown into the market for whatever price they would bring. When this initial flood of selling had spent itself, supporting orders began to make their appearance, not with the intention of completely checking the streams of selling, but with the avowed object of regulating their flow.

Several times during the day, particularly in the early afternoon and again toward the close, it looked as through a fresh collapse in prices, bringing ruin in its wake, was inevitable, but each time the holes were plugged and the threatened disaster was averted.

Despite the fact that prices of probably half of the thousand stocks listed on the exchange have been cut in half, or more, during the recent decline, and that the aggregate decline in quoted values of all securities from the high levels of the year exceeds 25 billion dollars, only one casualty has developed among brokerage houses thus far. Suspension of the New York Curb Exchange firm of John J. Bell & Co., for failure to meet its obligations, was announced shortly after the market opened. Inasmuch as this firm was not engaged in a general commission business, the failure had no serious consequences.

Extra Dividends Declared.

Directors of the United States Steel Corporation and the American Co., supplementing the efforts of bankers to restore confidence, which has been badly shaken by the recent crash in prices, today declared extra dividends of $1 each on their common stocks, in addition to the regular quarterly payments. These special disbursements were made possible by the huge earnings piled up by these corporations in the wave of general prosperity earlier in the year.

The United States Steel Corporation, directors of which met after the close of the market, reported earnings for the first nine months of $15.82 a share. The corporation, which arranged earlier in the year for the retirement of its funded debt through the sale of additional common stock, has been paying regular annual dividends of $7 per share on the common.

Albert Conway, head of the New York State Insurance Department, after a conference with the heads of leading insurance companies, said he had recommended to them the purchase of leading common stocks in view of "drastic readjustment of prices." He also told executives of large life insurance companies having headquarters in this State that he intended to recommend to the Legislature an amendment to the insurance law permitting the purchase of leading common stocks by such companies. Fire, marine and casualty insurance concerns, as well as surety companies, may buy common shares under the present statutes.

Seek Way to Enter Market.

Conway said the life insurance executives had offered to meet with him tomorrow to determine whether there was any way in which they could make purchases under the existing law.

The New York Stock Exchange, with a record that dates back more than 100 years, had never witnessed such tumultuous trading as took place at the opening of today's market.

The following table illustrates some of the largest opening transactions, with the over-night declines:

No. shs.	Stock.	Price.	Loss.
80,000	Commonwealth & Sou.	13⅛	1⅞
75,000	Transcontinental Oil	6	2

Deluge of Selling.

Scores of other issues opened with blocks of 5,000 to 40,000 shares. This deluge of selling carried total sales in the first half hour to 3,259,000 shares.

Easing of credit conditions was one of the first measures put into effect by bankers to calm the wave of hysteria which has suddenly swept over security holders. The call money renewal rate, ordinarily announced about 10:40 a. m., was fixed at 5 per cent, a drop of 1 per cent below yesterday's figure, before the market opened. Time money and bankers' acceptance rates were then lowered in sympathy.

After the midday meeting of bankers, it was announced that leading banking firms of New York had reduced the margin requirements on street demand loans to 25 per cent, thereby releasing a huge volume of credit to facilitate the financial operations of stock exchange firms during the market crisis. Some of these requirements previously ran as high as 40 per cent. F. B. Keech & Co., one of the large commission houses, also announced a reduction in the margin requirements demanded of its customers to 25 per cent on the theory that current price levels were sufficiently attractive to warrant such action.

Forced Liquidation Blamed.

Wall street attributed the dumping of huge blocks of stocks at the opening to forced liquidation by large operators, who were no longer able to protect their rapidly dwindling accounts after having amassed paper profits running into hundreds of millions of dollars. Few of these operators, regarded as the leaders of the recent "bull" market, escaped totally unscathed, as most of them continued to hold long lines of stocks for investment, and the sustained decline of the past week took them completely by surprise. Sizable fortunes have been amassed by a few traders on the "short" side, but these are only a drop in the bucket compared to the losses sustained by stock market "bulls."

The following table illustrates the year's high, today's low, and closing quotations and the days net losses in prices of several leading stocks.

Exchange Governors' Statement.

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange met this evening and issued the following statement through Richard Whitney, vice president of the exchange:

"The meeting considered carefully the present situation but felt no action was necessary and adjourned to its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon."

Proposals had been made by stock exchange members earlier in the day that the regular session be shortened tomorrow, or that a holiday be declared on Monday, the day preceding election day, in order to give harassed brokers an opportunity to catch up with the vast accumulation of work that has piled up in the last week. Inasmuch as the exchange is closed next Tuesday, a legal holiday, brokers pointed out that a Monday closing would give a three-day respite from business, but opposition to this action developed on the theory that closing of the exchange during the current crisis might be misinterpreted.

Bank Stocks on Toboggan.

Spectacular declines also took place in the stocks of leading New York banks today as those securities were dumped overboard, with listed issues. First National Bank stock dropped $1,200 a share, being quoted at $5,400 bid and $5,600 offered. George F. Baker, veteran chairman of the board, is reported to hold 22,000 shares, so that the overnight shrinkage in the market value of his holdings alone was $26,400,000.

Guaranty Trust stock dropped $175 a share; National City, $112; Equitable Trust, $110; Bank of Manhattan, $105; Empire Trust, $90, and Corn Exchange, $67, with declines of $30 a share or more in Bankers Trust, Bank of the United States, Central Hanover, Manufacturers Trust and New York Trust. These securities are traded in "over the counter," and the daily turnover is relatively small because most of them are closely held.

The break in the market already has forced the alteration or postponement of financial programs of municipalities and industrial, public utility and railroad corporations, and caused the abandonment or delay in the consummation of several mergers under way before the reaction started.

New York Withholds Bond Offer.

The City of New York today announced the indefinite postponement of the sale of $60,000,000 of 50-year, 4 per cent bonds scheduled for tomorrow. A special meeting of directors of the Cities Service Co. was called for tomorrow, presumably to withdraw the offer to stockholders to purchase additional common stock at $45 a share. When the offer was made a couple of weeks ago, Cities Service common was selling above $60 a share, reaching a high of $68.12½, but it broke to $20 a share in today's market. Total sales of Cities Service on the curb today were more than 1,000,000 shares.

Many of the declines on the curb assumed fantastic proportions, although a large number of the losses were reduced by a rally in the late trading. Standard Oil of Ohio was a feature, dropping 30¼ points. High priced utilities, specialties and industrials on the curb showed enormous losses at the lowest prices. Electric Investors had a net descent of $39.50, Electric bond & Share of $25.25; Central States Electric convertible preferred, $74.75, and Northern States Power, $64.75.

Investment Trusts Down.

Many of the investment trusts went for only a fraction of the prices at which they were offered late in the summer. Blue Ridge convertible preferred was a conspicuous example, closing at $16.12 in contrast to its offering price of $51.50. The loss for the day was $14.87.

The bond market which had been advancing for more than three weeks under the favorable influence of easing time money rates, felt the tremendous selling pressure brought to bear on other security markets. Gilt-edged issues were dumped in some volume, together with bonds of less investment merit. United States Government issues showed steadiness, and there was heavy trading in Liberty bonds.

The Federal Reserve Bank was said to be buying the Government securities as a means of releasing funds to the money market.

1,179,000 SHARES TRADED IN CHICAGO

San Francisco Issues Rally as Hysteria Turns to Bargain Hunting.

WILD IN PHILADELPHIA

Chicago, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The second million-share day in the history of the Chicago Stock Exchange was witnessed today as traders shoved their way into the market and forced prices still further downward. Total sales were 1,179,000 shares as compared with 1,220,000 shares last Thursday when the market first started to drop.

Commonwealth Edison led the list downhill, dropping 65 points to close at 235. Middle West Utilities dropped four more points, finishing at 21½, and hung up a new record for the exchange when a block of 30,000 shares changed hands in a single sale.

Auburn slid down to 126 after opening at 150 but managed to close at 140. Bendix also reacted after dropping 11¾ points and closed at 41¼, its opening figure. Cities Service continued down grade, closing at 23. It opened at 25 and touched 19 before a reaction set in. Zenith closed at 18, a net loss of 7 points.

San Francisco Market Reacts.

San Francisco, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Caught in a whirl of frenzied selling, stock prices tumbled headlong in early transactions of the San Francisco exchanges today and then rallied sharply around noon as hysteria gave place to bargain hunting. No basis for the widespread alarm shown by traders was manifest along Montgomery street outside the action of the market itself.

Transamerica, bulwark of Western finance, no longer supported by its president, A. P. Giannini, dropped more than 32 points, cutting its market quotation in half, then recovered 18 points, settling again and steadying around 41 as 74,000 shares changed hands in less than three hours of trading. Dealing in this issue had been delayed nearly an hour at the opening while the specialist adjusted buying and selling orders.

A statement signed by six leading San Francisco bankers and read on the floor of the San Francisco Stock Exchange added impetus to the recovery. The bankers said that business conditions on the Pacific Coast and throughout the country are sound and they recommended cool judgment of values.

Signers of Statement.

The men signing the statement were C. K. McIntosh, president of the Bank of California; Herbert Fleishhacker, president of the Anglo and London Paris National Bank; F. L. Lipman, president of Wells Fargo National Bank; B. Avenali, Crocker First National Bank; Fred T. Elsey, of the American Trust Co., and A. J. Mount, president of the Bank of Italy.

Stocks that had plunged down 10 to 30 points regained a large part of their losses toward noon. Some issues that dropped 4 to 30 points and later made recoveries of 2 to 18 points included Transamerica, Caterpillar, Pacific Lighting and a number of the oils, notably Standard of California, Union, Union Associates and Richfield.

Wild Session in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Stock Exchange today passed through the wildest session in its history. The total shares traded in was 514,241, a new record for the local exchange. Forty-four stocks sold at new lows for the year.

American Stores closed at 49, off 10 2-3, American Super Power Corporation, 178, off 7⅛; American Telegraph and Telephone, 211, off 21; Atlantic Refining, 30, off 10⅝; General Food Corporation, 35½, off 13; General Motors, 41⅝, off 5⅞; Insurance Company of North America, 70, off 9¾; International Harvester, 80, off 7¾; National Dairy Products, 42, off 8½; Radio Corporation, 30, off 19½; United Gas Improvement, 26½, off 5¾.

MONEY KINGS' HELP IS PLEDGED MARKET

anty Trust; George F. Baker, jr., of the First National Bank, and Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank.

A representative of the group told interviewers that various signs pointed to a lessening of hysteria on the part of the public. He cited the action of the stock market between 1 and 2 o'clock today as evidence of sound buying in important issues.

It was stated that a considerable amount of investment buying had come into the market and that certain large capitalists had been especially energetic today in searching out and purchasing stock items from the bargain counters.

Another factor in strengthening the market's general position, said the group's spokesman, was the buying of stocks on a large scale by certain well-known corporations for the account of their employes' fund and for other purposes.

Emphasis was placed on the declaration of an extra dividend by United States Steel today and the favorable earnings for the third quarter. This, together with the action of American Can in raising its dividend rate, were alluded to as straws showing which way the financial wind was blowing.

The banking group adhered to its policy of refusing to make predictions of any kind relating to the probable course of the market. It was pointed out, however, that strong "lifting power" of a strictly independent nature, appeared in many leading issues at various times today. This was regarded by the bankers as proof that the market had "turned the corner" and that large scale and important public buying had set in.

Asked whether the heavy buying that was necessary to meet the tremendous wave of selling that hit today's market had exhausted the funds of the buyers, the spokesman said that ample purchasing power remained.

It was strongly intimated that some hysteria remaining in the public mind might have to be reckoned on before the market's decline could be fully checked.

KLEIN, ON RADIO, DECLARES NATION'S BUSINESS SOUND

tinued, the stock market is not the major barometer of business, and a decline in security price does not greatly affect the buying power of the community, on which buying power rests the activity of production, the earnings of corporations and other business enterprises and the employment of labor.

He pointed out that even if "we accepted the apparently liberal estimate of some nonofficial observers," who place the speculative accounts at about a million, these would still involve less than 4 per cent of all the families of the entire Nation, and less than 1 per cent of the population.

Dr. Klein's speech follows:

"On Friday last the President stated that 'the fundamental business of the country, that is, production and distribution of commodities, is on a sound and prosperous basis.

"The best evidence is that although production and consumption are at high levels, the average prices of commodities as a whole have not increased and there have been no appreciable increases in the stocks of manufactured goods.

"However, there has been a tendency of wages to increase and the output per worker in many industries again shows an increase, all of which indicates a healthy condition.'

Hoover Statement Still Obtains.

"There is no reason today to change a single word of this statement of the President. Stock exchange prices have gone down materially since Friday but the stock market is not the major barometer of business, and a decline in security prices does not greatly affect the buying power of the community, on which buying power rests the activity of production, the earnings of corporations and other business enterprises, and the employment of labor.

"No one knows the number of persons engaged in this speculative activity, but even if we accepted the apparently liberal estimate of some non-official observers, who place the speculative accounts at about a million, these would still invove less than 4 per cent of all of the families in the entire Nation.

"Or, if we put it on the basis of individuals, the ratio would be less than 1 per cent of the total population.

"Please don't misunderstand me or think that I am belittling the hardships of even this small fragment of our people, but even if all of these speculators suffered—and there were untold thousands who did not—you would still have a vastly preponderant majority of the nation unaffected by these speculative gyrations.

"And remember, incidentally, to cite just one corrective of this situation, that these speculative accounts could be matched twice over by the more than 2,000,000 families who derive their livelihood fre mexport trade, which is almost entirely unaffected by this movement.

"Stock prices have gone down suddenly over the pest two or three years it seems to be generally agreed that they had risen much too rapidly. Throughout the past eight years, with very temporary and minor recessions, the production of goods and services in the United States has gradually but, on the whole, very considerably increased.

National Income Has Increased.

"That is the same thing as saying that national income increased. This naturally added to the profits of business, especially as, at the same time, many economics in production methods were introduced. The increased profits of business justified an advance in stock price but they did not justify going up to the sky.

"It would have been proper, no doubt, for stocks to rise in price somewhat faster than actual production of commodities because of the gradual spread among the people of confidence in the general future of American business, of confidence that the increase in production of commodities and profits of industry would in the long run continue. Such a conviction might justify some discounting of future larger earnings in the prices of securities. I did not justify carrying them to such a level that in many cases only a good many years hence could one hope for corporate earnings that would pay a fair rate of return on the prices paid for stocks.

Influence of Boom Psychology.

"We have been under the influence, as regards stock prices, of a boom psychology. Many persons have bought stocks with little knowledge of their present or probable future dividend-paying capacity. Many, moreover, have borrowed money in order to make these stock purchases. A reaction was bound to occur.

"The main point which I wish to emphasize is the fundamental soundness of that great mass of economic activities on which the well-being of the vast majority of us all depends. One may have due sympathy for the very considerable number who have lost money in the stock market without losing sight of the fact that there has been no change in the situation of the overwhelming majority of American families.

"The growth of the income of the Nation and the advance in the well-being of its business men, its wage earners and its farmers during recent years has not been due to boom psychology nor to temporary and fleeting causes. It has been a definite upward trend, not a wave, whose subsidence would leave us in a deep trough.

Production Efficiency Grows.

"The fundamental cause of the expansion of business and the improvement in standards of living has been the growing efficiency of production. We have been able to produce more and more goods and services per person at work. This gain in efficiency, in turn, has been due to causes of an enduring and cumulative character, causes that enter into the very bodies and minds of our people, and into the very foundations of our evenomic structure. The steady spread of education is perhaps the most basic of these upward-pushing forces.

"Closely allied with this is the growth of scientific research with its harvest of inventions and discoveries. The abundant savings of the people, with the consequent expansion of our capital have enabled us to provide more and better equipment for production, thus reducing costs.

"One could readily name other basic factors which have contributed to our progress and which are just as real and powerful today as they were a month ago and far more powerful than they were even eight or years ago.

Commodity Prices Steady.

"The most conclusive evidence that the progress of American industry and commerce in recent years has not been fictitious, has not been a mere inflationary boom, lies in the steadiness of prices of commodities.

"Against the immense advance in prices of securities, those of goods and services have for years been stationary or with a slight downward trend.

"A business boom which threatens a subsequent collapse of business is always accompanied by considerable, if not great, advance in commodity prices.

Future Trend Is Discernible.

"Some of you may be expecting me to tell you what is going to happen to stock prices tomorrow and next week. If you pause to think about it, however, you will realize that it would be quite improper as well as impossible for any Government official to give out such an opinion. The careful student of American economic life, equipped with an abundance of statistics, can forecast fairly well the long-time trends of production and of standards of living and even of many more specific branches of business or other economic aspects.

"He cannot foresee accurately short-time changes in economic conditions and least of all those speculative changes which depend largely on the psychology of the people or of a fraction of the people. All of us are justified, in my opinion, in a profound confidence in the genueral economic future of the country.

"Just what relation should exist between that confidence and his present attitude toward the stock market is something for each individual to decide for himself.'

Per Capita Production Increasing.

"Broadly speaking, our average per capita production has increased by from 50 to 75 per cent since 1900 and by from 25 to 35 per cent since 1919, and remember that 1919 was not a depression year but one of high activity. I fully believe that the causes which have brought about this great advance will accomplish as much during the next decade or the next quarter of a century. There may be temporary recessions but these can be reduced to am inimum if we all have confidence in the general upward trend.

"Many of the business depressions of past decades have been primarily psychological and could have been avoided or minimized if the business men and the masses of the people had had the proper confidence in themselves. The general public of today understands, better than ever before, the long term trends of our economic life and the fundamental forces at work in it.

"I believe that we have very good reason to anticipate that this great knowledge wil breed greater confidence and will prevent us from giving way in any large measure to a defeatist jaychology.

Purchasing Power Is Factor.

"The fundamental factor in the general situation of business is purchasing power. Real purchasing power is made up of wages, salaries, receipts of farmers, merchants, professional men and others and the profits of industry. These factors have not been changed by the drop in stock prices. The national income of the United States at this moment is hardly a fraction less than it was a month ago. Established indexes such as the quantity output of our farms, or mines and our factories, and the volume of our railroad transportation, support this view.

"The number of citizens whose buying ability has been affected by the decline in the value of speculative securities is not very large. Their purchases do no tmake up a very significant fraction of the demand for goods.

"There is no reason why the 25,000,000 or more families, representing over 95 per cent of our population whose incomes remain undiminished should cut down their purchases of commodities, and therefore very few industries should see any appreciable reduction in the sales of their output.

Capital Equipment Set Forth.

"Aside from purchase of goods by consumers for their own actual use the biggest demand for commodities is that for expanding what the economists call the capital equipment of the Nation. In normal times there is an immense call for building materials, steel, machinery, railroad equipment and many other classes of goods for the purpose of building and equiping factories, public works and other productive enterprises. At least a tenth and perhaps an eighth of the productive energy is normally devoted to this creation of capital goods.

"If our business men and our people maintain that confidence in the future which the long experience of the past fully justifies, we shall see no diminution in the demand for capital goods a sthe result of the break in stock prices.

"On the contrary, the diversion of capital from stock market speculation t odirect productive enterprise might readily increase the demand for commodities of this sort.

Statistical Aid Is Valuable.

"One of the major grounds for confidence in the steadiness of American industry lies in the widespread dissemination of better statistical information and the practice of business men in guiding their policies in the light of such statistics. Never before has American industry and commerce been so ably managed as at present. Our commercial and industrial corporations are headed by men of broad vision, high qualifications and large experience with the intricate problems of our complex economic scheme.

"More than this, the executives of American business have today at their finger tips current facts upon the movement of their own industries, allied industries and all industry and business which in the last analysis, because of the interdependence between industry and industry, is of great importance.

"Rule of thumb practices have long since given way to policies based upon proper facts and analyses.

"The business man who is momentarily disturbed by the sharp decline in stock prices will glance at the current statistics of other economic factors. He will find, for example, that in September—of ourse, actual October figures are not yet available—industrial employment was 5 per cent greater than a year ago and that the amount of wage payments by our fctories was 8 per cent larger than in September, last year.

"He will see no ground for expecting reduced purchases of commodities on the part of the wage earner. He will find that there has been no accumulation of stocks of manufactured goods because of overanticipation of future demand or because of any present falling off in demand. The American Railway Association, which collects advance information as to the probable demands for cars, has received reports indicating freight car requirements for the present quarter are more than 2 per cent greater than for the same quarter of 1928.

"This demand for freight cars reflects the production of and demand for goods.

Farmers' Position Is Favorable.

"Again the statistics show the farmer in a relatively favorable condition, and his demand for manufactured goods may well be expected to remain strong.

"The quantity of crop production this year has been almost as great as last year when the income of the farmer was the highest in history.

"One can not, of course, forecast the price of farm products, but thus far they arep ractically the same as a year ago.

Export Trade Is Vital.

"We must not forget, moreover, that export trade has become a very important factor in American business. Exports of manufactured goods especially have increased steadily and rapidly in recent years.

"We now export approximately 10

HUGE STOCK SALES MARKED BY ORDER

Traders, Schooled by Vast Recent Turnover, Meet Task Skilfully.

LAST HOUR SEES FRENZY

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Wall street, despite the overpowering burden of labor under which it has been struggling without relief for ten days, plowed through the most gigantic task with which it has yet been confronted today with an equanimity in marked contrast to wild confusion and disorder of last Thursday.

Traders on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange tore through the unprecedented volume of business, totaling 16,410,000 shares, as contrasted to Thursday's turnover of 12,894,600, like well trained soldiers in hand to hand combat, having profited, apparently, from the gruelling training which they have recently received.

Larger Blocks Handled.

Their work was facilitated by the intercession of powerful financial interests, who placed buying orders at successively lower levels, causing an orderly decline. Last Thursday they were forced to shrink their offers for minutes at a time, and there were desperate intervals when there seemed to be no takers at any price. Also, today's trading was in larger blocks, so that the ticker was able to print the final quotation two and a half hours after the closing gong, as compared to four hours and eight minutes after Thursday's close.

Brokerage house forces had to rush through the record-breaking volume of business despite the fact that they have been forced to work until early morning after several successive frenzied days. There was even no rest on Sunday for many.

It was only during the closing hour on the floor of the exchange that disorder broke out. The steady buying of the afternoon had prevented hysteria among the traders but with the deadline for the day approaching the tired and weary workers let loose with their emotions.

Occasional Cheers Heard.

The din which had started early in the morning and continued throughout the day gained momentum like an express train as the clock ticked off the last hour of trading. Messengers scurried about, yelling and shoving. Aisles were blocked, but not for long, as a string of clerks would go plowing through, football fashion.

An occasional cheer arose above the turmoil during the afternoon as rallies in prices were achieved, but these gleeful outbursts were few and far between. The racket reached its height in the last few minutes. Every one strove to be heard at the same time. From the Montgomery Ward post, where the main activity had centered, the congestion and excitement spread rapidly over the entire floor.

Radio, General Motors and General Electric became more active. A last prolonged outburst occurred just as the closing gong sounded. Slowly the noise died out. The "floor" was through—and quiet. But not the "street." Usually the financial district's activities die out with the market's close, but not today and the preceding days of the price crashing.

All day there had been a bustle of excitement in the narrow thoroughfares that hold the towering financial institutions. Hundreds of messengers hurried through the congested streets. Pedestrians were kept constantly moving by extra details of police.

Banks Heavily Guarded.

Banks were heavily guarded. Precautions were taken by brokers and armed escorts accompanied messengers where the amount of securities were extra large as more "margin" was hurried to the banks to meet the demands of the market.

Restaurants were swamped with orders that came in from office workers—too busy to dash out from their work for a bite to eat. The Stock Exchange Luncheon Club remained open until 7 o'clock. Telephones were overburdened and extra operators were recruited to handle the rush of calls. Mounted policemen directed the slowly moving traffic.

With the close of the exchange clerks and brokers alike, as weary as they were, hurried to their offices to attack the tremendous amount of work that awaited them. Lights burned through the windows of the skyscrapers until nearly daylight.

Several firms engaged rooms in downtown hotels in order that their employes might gain as much sleep as possible during the few hours between the time they finished their work and the next day's task would begin.

$25 Loundry Theft Reported.

A bundle of laundry, valued at $25, was stolen from the front porch of the home of Ruben Goldstein, 2516 Wisconsin avenue northwest, yesterday, according to a report made to Seventh Precinct police.

RISING WATER ENDS SHIP'S S O S CALL

TOSSED IN LIFEBOATS

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—In a cell block of the Kenosha police station amid the stench of drying dungarees, shed by surviving members of the crew of the Wisconsin, Goodrich passenger and freight boat which sank off Kenosha today, Kenneth Carlson, 20-year-old radio operator, told his story.

"The first I knew that we were having trouble was when Second Mate Arthur Behl ran into the radio room and told me to stand by.

"A moment later Capt. Morrison phoned from the bridge to Mate Behl to call the Illinois, a sister boat of the Wisconsin, which we knew was somewhere near. I couldn't raise them. Later I got into communication with the Illinois only to learn that she was in the Racine harbor with a damaged rudder and could not come to our assistance.

S O S Signals Sent Out.

"Next I got WGO, the R. C. A. land station at Chicago, and told them to telephone to the Coast Guards at Racine and Kenosha and tell them of our trouble. The hold was rapidly filling with water and the fires were out. We wanted the Coast Guard to send out tugs or any large boats to stand by.

"Mate Behl stuck with me most of the time, answering phone calls from Capt. Morrison on the bridge.

"At 3 a. m. Capt. Morrison ordered me to send S O S signals. There was no response. I repeated S O S again and again. Finally WGO at Chicago responded and I told the operator that we were in need of immediate assistance.

"The last message I sent was word that we would be able to keep afloat for a few hours, possible two. Receiving no response I checked my equipment and found it was 'out' because of the incoming water. At that time there was about eight feet of water in the hold.

"Up on deck I found everything orderly, every man at his post. All had life belts on.

Start Abandoning Ship.

"About 5 o'clock we started to abandon the ship. Life boats were lowered and I got into the fifth boat. We banged against the sides of the ship several times but eventually we were on the water. It seemed like an age and every one aboard the boat was tense, fearful that we might be swamped if we should hit the side of the boat as we struck the water.

"We pulled away and about five minutes later the Racine, Coast Guard cutter, drew near us. Several attempts to pass a line were unsuccessful. Then we got hold of it and were pulled alongside the cutter. We scrambled aboard.

"We cruised about for a little bit and then picked up four more men who were in a lifeboat.

"We looked for more survivors but did not find them and we started for the Kenosha Coast Guard station. Those Coast Guardsmen were brave fellows and they handled their cutter like veterans."

Grocer Loses Coop and Chickens.

Thieves Take Clothing and Gun.

Mrs. Rosie Jenkins, of Twenty-second street northwest, near K street, told police that her home was entered by thieves, who used a duplicate key. The place was ransacked and clothing valued at $100, in addition to a revolver, were stolen.

Mate of Ill-Starred Ship Writes Story of Disaster

How Men Were Washed Away by Waves as Lifeboats Were Lowered Described by Officer Who Survived; Captain, Engineer Called Heroes.

By EDWARD HALVERSON
(First Mate and Survivor of S. S. Wisconsin).

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—I was standing on the forward deck helping close the hatches to prevent the heavy waves from flooding the hold in which we had a cargo of automobiles and other freight. It was about 12:30 a. m., and some one shouted up from the stern end that we had sprung a leak.

Capt. Morrison called for the deckhands to man the pumps, and we worked until the hose broke off the main pump. When we realized we could no longer put the water out that way, Capt. Morrison ordered Fred Truber, lookout on watch at the time, to signal ashore. We thought we were somewhere opposite Kenosha and at the time we were about 5 miles from shore. I heard the captain shout out to head for the shore line and in another half-hour the captain ordered the radioman to send out the distress call.

At about 2 o'clock we had learned from the Chicago radio station that ships were on the way to rescue us, and that two Coast Guard cutters were in their way from Kenosha and Racine. I saw the first cutter pull up and heard some one shout to us to lower the lifeboats.

From that time on everything was happening so fast we could not keep up. The first lifeboat dropped into the water. We never saw that boat again. In the second boat that started down I selected the first ten in line for the boat and we started to lower away into the heavy sea. I saw three men get washed overboard. One of them was a deckhand who had shipped with us last night. I never saw them again. All this time Capt. Morrison was standing at the forward deck giving orders to lower the lifeboats and shouting to the Coast Guardsmen in their boats nearby.

As I was pulling away from the ship, we were picked up by the Kenosha Coast Guard crew and I never felt a warmer helping hand than that of the captain who pulled me into his boat. On shore I realized for the first time what a narrow escape we had had.

I cried when I saw them bringing in the captain and Julius Buschmann, the engineer. It was a sorry day for me and for them, too. There never were greater heroes on the sea than those two men. I remember hearing Buschmann shout to the other men on board to take the boats and never mind him.

EUROPEAN BUYERS HALT WHEAT DROP

Orders Pouring In Save Day in Face of Disastrous Start.

QUICK RALLY RESULTS

Chicago, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—European wheat buyers stepped into the breech on the board of trade today to take advantage of bargain prices here and saved the day after a disastrous start.

Wheat values smashed down 7 cents a bushel at the opening. A quick rally ensued, 4 to 5 cents of the intial loss was wiped out, and at the finish wheat was down 1½ to 2¼ cents a bushel from Monday's close. December wheat futures closed at $1.24¾ to $1.25; March at $1.32½. May at $1.35¾ to $1.35⅞.

Holders of wheat and nearly every commision house represented in the pit scurried to unload at the start and the market was panicky. May futures took the brunt of the shock with an extreme drop of 6⅞ cents. But the trade, becoming hardened to these frenzied sessions with their record-making volume of sales and their wide open breaks and skittish recoveries, waited for breath and then scooped up the cheap offerings.

Heavy buying had set in within the first half hour. Much of it was credited to Europe, and much attributed indirectly to European buyers who were understood to have come to the American counter for enormous quantities of flour. In addition there were reports from the seaboard of 1,000,000 bushels of American wheat sold for export.

Man Dies Watching Stock Market Ticker

Providence, R. I., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—David Korn, 57, prominent in Jewish charitable activities here, dropped dead in a broker's office today as he was watching the stock ticker.

Witnesses said he had appeared worried over the stock market crash, but the brokers said his holdings were in no especial danger.

UPROAR AT CLOSE OF LONDON MARKET

Wild Scenes on Curb Are Witnessed After Close of Stock Exchange.

PRICES SHIFT RAPIDLY

London, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Scenes which amazed old-timers were witnessed during the final hour of business in the London Stock Exchange which has been following closely the New York market.

During the final hour all shares in which London and Wall street are both interested were marked down heavily, the weakness being emphasized by the continual drop of prices in the continental centers, principally Amsterdam. Prices fluctuated wildly.

Above the uproar the chimes of the big clock were barely heard as they struck 4, the closing hour. At that moment Throgmorton street, where the curb traders meet, suddenly became a human beehive. Previously it had been a quiet thoroughfare with a few silk-hatted individuals sauntering along. At the moment of 4 men rushed from all the doors of the stock exchange into one long, panting, fighting stream into Shorters Court, where American prices are shouted, dividing themselves into oil markets, mining markets and industrial markets.

Wild Scenes in Street.

Because of the difference in time between London and New York, prices on the New York Stock Exchange were still pouring in and London traders still kept at it. Prices were shouted from two windows. Arms were raised above the crowd with fluttering paper forms. Clerks struggled in and out, harassed on every side. As the minutes passed and more news was received of the New York break, the excitement became more and more tense. Fortunes were made and lost in a few minutes.

It was the general belief tonight that London had suffered less severely than the United States and the Continent, especially Amsterdam. Apart from the Anglo-American industrials, which have borne the brunt of the collapse, there has been no pronounced fall in other sections, and good government and trustee stocks have even shown strength.

London Is Restricted.

The marking down of prices does not always indicate actual business transactions and the volume has been quite small here, compared with that in Wall street.

The Wall street break had a natural effect of extreme nervousness in the London exchange, which restricted all business through a reluctance to deal during the present difficult phase of violent fluctuation. British investors and operators took fright here a few weeks ago after the collapse of securities of the natry companies and had largely abstained from trading long before the Wall street crash.

Paris, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The prolonged government crisis was reflected on the Paris Bourse today, which, with the added momentum of the Wall street collapse and crisis, caused one of the weakest and dullest days of this year.

Losses in Montreal.

Montreal, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Losses all along the line ranging from $65 downward, today further reduced price levels on the Montreal Stock Exchange. The close showed no firmness and most stocks ended the day at prices near their lows.

The greatest recessions were Smelters, off $65, at $235; Montreal Power, off $24, at $123; National Steel Car, off 15, at $45; Dominion Bridge, off $16, at $66; Steel of Canada, off $13.25, at $38; National Breweries, off $13, at $110, and International Nickel, off $8.50 to $30.50.

Contaminated Well Kills Girl; One Dying

Blytheville, Ark., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Contaminated water from a well near Osceola had caused the death of a 16-year-old girl today and the critical illness of six other members of her family, two of whom were expected to die.

Eva May Hicks, 16, died in a Blytheville hospital from dysentery, and Grace Hicks, 7, and Willard Hicks, 14, were near death from the same disease. Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hicks and Ednie, 2, and Ivy, 11, were seriously ill. A well located near a stable became contaminated, doctors said and caused the illness.

NORRIS ANNOUNCES HE WILL RUN AGAIN

McKelvie Appointment Seen as Attempt to Crush Progressive Move.

FIGHT IN STATE IS VITAL

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Asserting that "it is now quite clear that Nebraska is to be singled out" in the administration's effort to crush the Progressive movement, Senator George W. Norris, last night announced his candidacy for reelection.

He had hoped to retire at the end of his present term, he said, but the challenge to Progressivism could not be refused. He charged the appointment of former Governor McKelvie to the Farm Board was a part of the campaign.

"It is now quite clear," he asserted in a formal statement, "that Nebraska is to be singled out in the coming senatorial primary campaign as one of the chief battlegrounds for the control of the United States Senate. For that purpose a virtual alliance has been formed between the Old Guard standpat machine inside the State and those who control that machine from the outside.

"The avowed purpose of this combination is to weaken and discredit progressive principles of government by driving me out of public life, and securing the nomination and election of a Senator from Nebraska who will be subservient to the political machine and its bosses both inside and outside the State, and who at all times can be trusted to be 'regular'."

Sees "Direct Challenge."

The plan "constitutes a direct challenge," he continued, "not so much against me personally, as against the fundamental principles of government for which I have stood and fought for ever since I have had the honor to represent the State of Nebraska in the United States Senate; and if I failed to accept this challenge it seems to me I could be charged with political cowardice and with a failure to do my full duty at a time when the principles of a free and democratic government are at stake."

Senator Norris' statement, a lengthy resume of his 25 years' work in Congress, and captioned "An address to the People of Nebraska," followed closely upon the dinner of prominent Republicans in New York recently given by Jeremiah T. Milbank, treasurer of the New Jersey organization, and at which Norris and other Progressives were attacked directly and indirectly.

James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican national committee, attacked "pigmies and obstructionists" and Claudius C. Huston, national chairman, attacked "blocs" in Congress and asserted there should be a return to two party government. In this atmosphere, other speakers called Norris and others by name.

It has been known for some time that either McKelvie or some other administration man would oppose Norris in next year's senatorial campaign. The probability is that it will be McKelvie and if not him that it will be William Stebbins, State treasurer.

Is Administration's Fight.

Whoever it is, it will be the administration's fight. The indications are now that none of the regular senators will become involved in it and certainly the Republican senatorial committee remain out of it. Senator Moses, the chairman of this committee, in fact, says that the committee will not take a hand. It may be that some of the more hardy regular senators might seek to give the administration cause some support.

The senators as a whole, however, are not in agreement with what might be called "the White House crowd," that is the President's nonsenatorial array of advisers, as to the wisdom of fighting Norris. It is their view that Norris represents the Nebraska form of Republicanism, so to speak. It is on this theory, too, that they have never given any ear to suggestions that Norris' committee chairmanships be taken from him. Norris' announcement, in fact, is an expressed intention to "in due time ille as a candidate for the Republican nomination in the coming primary."

It goes without saying that he will get all the support he needs from his fellow Progressive senators.

The issue should be plain, too, for Norris makes known that he has no intention of turning back on anything he has done, or of becoming "regular" in the future.

"All the charges made against me by the so-called leaders of the Republican party can be reduced to one sentence," he said, "that I am not regular, and therefore not a good Republican, and that I do not always support the President.

Offers No Apologies.

"I do not concede that the self-appointed, self-anointed, partisan politicians, representing monopolies and privilege-seeking interests have any right to decide what constitutes a good Republican or to be judges of his good faith and regularity.

"If absolute subservience to political bosses is necessary in order for a member of the United States Senate to remain in good standing in his party, I must plead guilty to the charge of irregularity. I would rather be right than regular. If compliance to the wishes of these bosses is the test of regularity, I prefer to be irregular."

"I offer no apology for the course I have hitherto pursued," he declared, "and the only promise I now make is that if I am reelected to the Senate I will continue to pursue it."

"In taking this step," he said, "I am under no misgivings as to the powerful political influences that will be exerted to accomplish my defeat. All the power of machine politics, formidably supported by the control of patronage and official favors, will be marshalled and organized against me.'

FIREWORKS IN SIGHT AS PARLIAMENT SITS

MacDonald, Due in London at End of Week, Faces First Real Test.

UNEMPLOYMENT TO FORE

London, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Parliament reassembled today under Britain's second Labor government in a humor giving every prospect of a lively and exciting session. Pending the arrival of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at the end of the week, the government is marking time, but the first lines of party conflict already are set in the direction of the unemployment question.

After an early morning rush to obtain seats, in which Lady Astor, American-born peeress, captured her favorite corner position, the House of Commons was filled to overflowing at the actual opening of business in the afternoon.

The keynote of the session was immediately set in questions about the unemployment situation addressed to J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment.

Snowden Warmly Greeted.

In reply Mr. Thomas said he was more than gratified by the results achieved during the parliamentary holiday. He promised the house a comprehensive statement early next week.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, who led the house in the absence of the prime minister, was warmly applauded on entering. The Labor chancellor, who has withatood some rude polemics from his adversaries during his long career, is a national hero because of his successful maintenance of British interest at The Hague reparations conference.

Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, was warmly welcomed by the Laborites.

Uprisings Forecast.

Miss Margaret Bondfield, minister of labor and first British woman cabinet minister, had to meet many questions about unemployment from her own supporters and refused to give any immediate information.

Although there was no flare-up among the members, most observers think that "Mr. Speaker," who presides over the house, may need all his tact and patience to maintain order during the coming weeks when the labor ministry will meet its first real test since it took office.

13 BELIEVED DEAD IN STEAMER SINKING

Coast Guard station here and immediately returned to stand by. Meantime, a Chambers Bros. fishing tug went to the scene, arriving shortly after the Wisconsin went down at 7:10 a. m.

The Chambers picked up 15 survivors, 8 on one life raft, 4 on another and 3 from a lifeboat just as it capsized. A fourth occupant of the lifeboat was lost when the boat rolled over and the crew of the Chambers was unable to reach him.

A life raft bearing eight men turned over completely three times just before the men were rescued. On one of the turnovers, Chief Engineer Julius Bushman, of Manitowoc, Wis., lost his hold and fought off attempts of his mates to pull him back on the raft. Later his body was recovered.

On the second incoming trip the Racine Coast Guard cutter brought six dead, including Capt. Morrisan and Engineer Bushman. All six were picked up floating in the water. Several were still alive when picked up, but died from exposure en route to the dock.

On its second trip the Kenosha cutter brought in six survivors, all alive.

On their first trips from the Wisconsin, the two cutters were loaded to capacity, carrying 38 survivors. There were only three passengers on the boat. They were saved.

Facilities at the Coast Guard station were taxed as the survivors were brought ashore. They huddled about a large stove, calling for cigarettes and coffee, as they awaited their turn to be transported to hospitals or to the police station.

Soon after putting out from Chicago at 7:30 o'clock last night the Wisconsin was buffeted by the gale and for four hours, it seemed members of the crew said, that she would weather the gale as she did a week ago tonight when the car ferry Milwaukee was sunk with its fifty men just a few miles from the scene of today's disaster.

Nearing Kenosha the boat sprang a leak and the incoming water washed coal from the bunkers and ashes into the bilge pumps which were soon disabled. Firemen stood in water up to their waists, shoveling coal into the boiler fires. They did not abondon their posts until water put out the fires.

GRUNDY WOULD USE TARIFF GAG FREELY

High-Rate Advocate Names States He'd Exclude in Action on Bill.

(Associated Press.)

Delving into the philosophy of a veteran high tariff advocate, a surprised Senate lobby committee heard from Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, yesterday that the small revenue-producing States should be barred from so much voice in the Senate on tariff legislation.

"They haven't any chips in the game," contended the ruddy-faced, white-haired man who has spent 32 years in the manufacturing business, collecting Republican campaign funds, and seeking higher tariff rates at Washington.

It was a livelier session for Grundy than his appearance before the Senate inquisitors last week. The senators both laughed and snarled with the blunt-speaking president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association as he returned his answers. He was firmly admonished several times to give more direct answers.

Would Muzzle Arkansas First.

Pressed to state his views on the constitutional provision that each State is entitled to two senators, Grundy finally said that it was "unfortunate." Asked to name the States he would exclude from a voice in tariff legislation, he began with Arkansas, which is represented by Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee. He followed with Idaho, whose senator, Borah, was one of Grundy's persistent questioners yesterday.

The five committee members seemed unsure of their ears when Grundy contended that some of the smaller tax-paying States should not be allowed to "obstruct" or "break down" the tariff policy. The theory led to question after question. Some of the members laughed and then retorted.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, was grim throughout and smiled only when Grundy observed that "I would hate to tell what I would do to Wisconsin."

Senator Blaine, of that State, was another of the committee examiners and like Senators Caraway, Borah and Walsh is opposing the pending tariff bill.

As for various increases in rates in that measure, Grundy willingly accepted credit for helping to obtain them when his "natural modesty" permitted. After more than two hours of questioning, Chairman Caraway asked Grundy to return today.

Senator Borah, who like Grundy, campaigned last year for Herbert Hoover, began yesterday's examination and met, as a rule, with Grundy's usual reply that he was in Washington to help enact into law the pledges of the Republican platform.

Grundy for Wool Raise.

The senator recalled that the platform pledged to put agriculture on an equality with industry. He asked what Grundy had done in the interest of the agricultural rates. Grundy specified only one schedule—wool—and Borah observed that he was personally interested in that business.

Grundy countered that Pennsylvania had "four times" as much agriculture as did Idaho and "thought agriculture and industry should go hand in hand."

Borah and Grundy disagreed that agriculture could be placed on an equality with industry without the lowering of some industrial schedules, as contended by the Idahoan. Borah thereupon demanded Grundy's program, and the Pennsylvanian replied that the farmer would have to adjust his production more nearly to demand.

Senator Walsh brought up the table previously presented by Grundy showing the Federal taxes paid by many of the smaller Western and Southern States and asked the reason for "this invidious comparison."

That started Mr. Grundy on his philosophy of government. The committee became more curious, and he did not hesitate to talk.

He listed as "backward" the States of Arizona, South Dakota, Idaho and Mississippi and was asked to explain. He offered his explanations, and Senator Borah leaned across the table toward the witness when his State was mentioned.

"Now, let's be candid," said Borah. "It's because I am from Idaho, isn't it?"

Smiling back at the Idahoan, Grundy said, "Well, in a way, yes."

Senator Walsh asked Grundy how he proposed to silence "Senator Borrah and myself for instance, in the tariff debates." Grundy answered that he thought "propriety" should dictate that.

What He Thinks of States.

The Montana and Idaho senators went down the line of States with particular reference to Grundy's views on their right to representation on tariff and other economic legislation and also with particular reference to those States whose senators are opposing the tariff bill.

Here are the opinions expressed by him:

"Georgia has had great opportunities but hasn't done so well.

"Louisiana is doing the best she can under adverse conditions.

"Nebraska has been pretty bad.

"Oklahoma is going along pretty good.

"Kansas is not as good as it was.

"Somebody ought to look after South Carolina.

"Alabama is doing pretty good.

Louis Dubitsky Asks Change of His Name

Declaring he is about to open a dental office and expressing the belief that a change of name will be beneficial to him socially and professionally, Louis Dubitsky, of 4221 Sixteenth street northwest, yesterday requested the District Supreme Court to permit him to drop the "sky" and be known only as Louis Duoit.

The petitioner, who is represented by Attorney James D McQuade, tells the court that he finds that his present name causes amusement to those who hear it and at times involves explanations on his part.

Overturns Avoiding Collision.

To avert a collision with another automobile, John F Rigney, colored, 41 years old, of 6115 Fourteenth street northwest, swerved the car he was driving at Thirteenth and Kennedy street northwest, causing it to overturn yesterday. He was treated at the office of Dr. Claude W. Mitchell, of Silver Spring, Md., and his condition was declared not serious.

in a general commission business, the failure had no serious consequences.

Extra Dividends Declared.

Directors of the United States Steel Corporation and the American Co., supplementing the efforts of bankers to restore confidence, which has been badly shaken by the recent crash in prices, today declared extra dividends of $1 each on their common stocks, in addition to the regular quarterly payments. These special disbursements were made possible by the huge earnings piled up by these corporations in the wave of general prosperity earlier in the year.

The United States Steel Corporation, directors of which met after the close of the market, reported earnings for the first nine months of $15.82 a share. The corporation, which arranged earlier in the year for the retirement of its funded debt through the sale of additional common stock, has been paying regular annual dividends of $7 per share on the common.

Albert Conway, head of the New York State Insurance Department, after a conference with the heads of leading insurance companies, said he had recommended to them the purchase of leading common stocks in view of "drastic readjustment of prices." He also told executives of large life insurance companies having headquarters in this State that he intended to recommend to the Legislature an amendment to the insurance law permitting the purchase of leading common stocks by such companies. Fire, marine and casualty insurance concerns, as well as surety companies, may buy common shares under the present statutes.

Seek Way to Enter Market.

Conway said the life insurance executives had offered to meet with him tomorrow to determine whether there was any way in which they could make purchases under the existing law.

The New York Stock Exchange, with a record that dates back more than 100 years, had never witnessed such tumultuous trading as took place at the opening of today's market.

The following table illustrates some of the largest opening transactions, with the over-night declines:

Deluge of Selling.

Scores of other issues opened with blocks of 5,000 to 40,000 shares. This deluge of selling carried total sales in the first half hour to 3,259,000 shares.

Easing of credit conditions was one of the first measures put into effect by bankers to calm the wave of hysteria which has suddenly swept over security holders. The call money renewal rate, ordinarily announced about 10:40 a. m., was fixed at 5 per cent, a drop of 1 per cent below yesterday's figure, before the market opened. Time money and bankers' acceptance rates were then lowered in sympathy.

After the midday meeting of bankers, it was announced that leading banking firms of New York had reduced the margin requirements on street demand loans to 25 per cent, thereby releasing a huge volume of credit to facilitate the financial operations of stock exchange firms during the market crisis. Some of these requirements previously ran as high as 40 per cent. F. B. Keech & Co., one of the large commission houses, also announced a reduction in the margin requirements demanded of its customers to 25 per cent on the theory that current price levels were sufficiently attractive to warrant such action.

Forced Liquidation Blamed.

Wall street attributed the dumping of huge blocks of stocks at the opening to forced liquidation by large operators, who were no longer able to protect their rapidly dwindling accounts after having amassed paper profits running into hundreds of millions of dollars. Few of these operators, regarded as the leaders of the recent "bull" market, escaped totally unscathed, as most of them continued to hold long lines of stocks for investment, and the sustained decline of the past week took them completely by surprise. Sizable fortunes have been amassed by a few traders on the "short" side, but these are only a drop in the bucket compared to the losses sustained by stock market "bulls."

The following table illustrates the year's high, today's low, and closing quotations and the days net losses in prices of several leading stocks.

Exchange Governors' Statement.

Governors of the New York Stock Exchange met this evening and issued the following statement through Richard Whitney, vice president of the exchange:

"The meeting considered carefully the present situation but felt no action was necessary and adjourned to its regular meeting tomorrow afternoon."

Proposals had been made by stock exchange members earlier in the day that the regular session be shortened tomorrow, or that a holiday be declared on Monday, the day preceding election day, in order to give harassed brokers an opportunity to catch up with the vast accumulation of work that has piled up in the last week. Inasmuch as the exchange is closed next Tuesday, a legal holiday, brokers pointed out that a Monday closing would give a three-day respite from business, but opposition to this action developed on the theory that closing of the exchange during the current crisis might be misinterpreted.

Bank Stocks on Toboggan.

Spectacular declines also took place in the stocks of leading New York banks today as those securities were dumped overboard, with listed issues. First National Bank stock dropped $1,200 a share, being quoted at $5,400 bid and $5,600 offered. George F. Baker, veteran chairman of the board, is reported to hold 22,000 shares, so that the overnight shrinkage in the market value of his holdings alone was $26,400,000.

Guaranty Trust stock dropped $175 a share; National City, $112; Equitable Trust, $110; Bank of Manhattan, $105; Empire Trust, $90, and Corn Exchange, $67, with declines of $30 a share or more in Bankers Trust, Bank of the United States, Central Hanover, Manufacturers Trust and New York Trust. These securities are traded in "over the counter," and the daily turnover is relatively small because most of them are closely held.

The break in the market already has forced the alteration or postponement of financial programs of municipalities and industrial, public utility and railroad corporations, and caused the abandonment or delay in the consummation of several mergers under way before the reaction started.

New York Withholds Bond Offer.

The City of New York today announced the indefinite postponement of the sale of $60,000,000 of 50-year, 4 per cent bonds scheduled for tomorrow. A special meeting of directors of the Cities Service Co. was called for tomorrow, presumably to withdraw the offer to stockholders to purchase additional common stock at $45 a share. When the offer was made a couple of weeks ago, Cities Service common was selling above $60 a share, reaching a high of $68.12½, but it broke to $20 a share in today's market. Total sales of Cities Service on the curb today were more than 1,000,000 shares.

Many of the declines on the curb assumed fantastic proportions, although a large number of the losses were reduced by a rally in the late trading. Standard Oil of Ohio was a feature, dropping 30¼ points. High priced utilities, specialties and industrials on the curb showed enormous losses at the lowest prices. Electric Investors had a net descent of $39.50, Electric bond & Share of $25.25; Central States Electric convertible preferred, $74.75, and Northern States Power, $64.75.

Investment Trusts Down.

Many of the investment trusts went for only a fraction of the prices at which they were offered late in the summer. Blue Ridge convertible preferred was a conspicuous example, closing at $16.12 in contrast to its offering price of $51.50. The loss for the day was $14.87.

The bond market which had been advancing for more than three weeks under the favorable influence of easing time money rates, felt the tremendous selling pressure brought to bear on other security markets. Gilt-edged issues were dumped in some volume, together with bonds of less investment merit. United States Government issues showed steadiness, and there was heavy trading in Liberty bonds.

The Federal Reserve Bank was said to be buying the Government securities as a means of releasing funds to the money market.

1,179,000 SHARES TRADED IN CHICAGO

San Francisco Issues Rally as Hysteria Turns to Bargain Hunting.

WILD IN PHILADELPHIA

Chicago, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The second million-share day in the history of the Chicago Stock Exchange was witnessed today as traders shoved their way into the market and forced prices still further downward. Total sales were 1,179,000 shares as compared with 1,220,000 shares last Thursday when the market first started to drop.

Commonwealth Edison led the list downhill, dropping 65 points to close at 235. Middle West Utilities dropped four more points, finishing at 21½, and hung up a new record for the exchange when a block of 30,000 shares changed hands in a single sale.

Auburn slid down to 126 after opening at 130 but managed to close at 140. Bendix also reacted after dropping 11¾ points and closed at 41¾, its opening figure. Cities Service continued down grade, closing at 23. It opened at 25 and touched 7 before a reaction set in. Zenith closed at 18, a net loss of 7 points.

San Francisco Market Reacts.

San Francisco, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Caught in a whirl of frenzied selling, stock prices tumbled headlong in early transactions of the San Francisco exchanges today and then rallied sharply around noon as hysteria gave place to bargain hunting. No basis for the widespread alarm shown by traders was manifest along Montgomery street outside the action of the market itself.

Transamerica, bulwark of Western finance, no longer supported by its president, A. P. Giannini, dropped more than 32 points, cutting its market quotation in half, then recovered 18 points, settling again and steadying around 41 as 74,000 shares changed hands in less than three hours of trading. Dealing in this issue had been delayed nearly an hour at the opening while the specialist adjusted buying and selling orders.

A statement signed by six leading San Francisco bankers and read on the floor of the San Francisco Stock Exchange added impetus to the recovery. The bankers said that business conditions on the Pacific Coast and throughout the country are sound and they recommended cool judgment of values.

Signers of Statement.

The men signing the statement were C. K. McIntosh, president of the Bank of California; Herbert Fleishhacker, president of the Anglo and London Paris National Bank; F. L. Lipman, president of Wells Fargo National Bank; B. Avenali, Crocker First National Bank; Fred T. Elsey, of the American Trust Co., and A. J. Mount, president of the Bank of Italy.

Stocks that had plunged down 10 to 30 points regained a large part of their losses toward noon. Some issues that dropped 4 to 30 points and later made recoveries of 2 to 18 points included Transamerica, Caterpillar, Pacific Lighting and a number of the oils, notably Standard of California, Union, Union Associates and Richfield.

Wild Session in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The Philadelphia Stock Exchange today passed through the wildest session in its history. The total shares traded in was 514,241, a new record for the local exchange. Forty-four stocks sold at new lows for the year.

American Stores closed at 49, off 10 2-3, American Super Power Corporation, 178, off 7⅝; American Telegraph and Telephone, 211, off 21; Atlantic Refining, 30, off 10⅝; General Food Corporation, 35⅛, off 18; General Motors, 41⅜, off 5⅞; Insurance Company of North America, 70, off 9¾; International Harvester, 80, off 7¾; National Dairy Products, 42, off 8½; Radio Corporation, 30, off 19½; United Gas Improvement, 26½, off 5¾.

BUSINESS IS SOUND, STATE 98 LEADERS

The automobile industry is no exception and I consider that the present offers the greatest opportunity in years for the profitable purchase of its securities. * * * We have every reason to look forward to a normal and profitable business in 1930."

M. C. Brush, president of the American International Corporation and a director of many leading corporations: "The frenzied selling of high-grade, excellent investment stocks at present prices is deeply to be regretted. * * * The country is in a more prosperous, safe and industrially sound condition than it ever has been before."

Samuel M. Vauclain, chairman of the Baldwin Locomotive Works: "The business of the Baldwin Locomotive Works is better at the present time than for several years. The future seems brighter than at any time since 1923."

C. M. Chester, president of the General Food Corporation, formerly Postum: "Our business horizon is clear, conditions are highly satisfactory and the outlook for 1930 is exceptionally good."

MONEY KINGS' HELP IS PLEDGED MARKET

anty Trust; George F. Baker, jr., of the First National Bank, and Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank.

A representative of the group told interviewers that various signs pointed to a lessening of hysteria on the part of the public. He cited the action of the stock market between 1 and 2 o'clock today as evidence of sound buying in important issues.

It was stated that a considerable amount of investment buying had come into the market and that certain large capitalists had been especially energetic today in searching out and purchasing stock items from the bargain counters.

Another factor in strengthening the market's general position, said the group's spokesman, was the buying of stocks on a large scale by certain well-known corporations for the account of their employes' fund and for other purposes.

Emphasis was placed on the declaration of an extra dividend by United States Steel today and the favorable earnings for the third quarter. This, together with the action of American Can in raising its dividend rate, were alluded to as straws showing which way the financial wind was blowing.

The banking group adhered to its policy of refusing to make predictions of any kind relating to the probable course of the market. It was pointed out, however, that strong "lifting power" of a strictly independent nature, appeared in many leading issues at various times today. This was regarded by the bankers as proof that the market had "turned the corner" and that large scale and important public buying had set in.

Asked whether the heavy buying that was necessary to meet the tremendous wave of selling that hit today's market had exhausted the funds of the buyers, the spokesman said that ample purchasing power remained.

It was strongly intimated that some hysteria remaining in the public mind might have to be reckoned on before the market's decline could be fully checked.

tinued, the stock market is not the major barometer of business, and a decline in security price does not greatly affect the buying power of the community, on which buying power rests the activity of production, the earnings of corporations and other business enterprises and the employment of labor.

He pointed out that even if "we accepted the apparently liberal estimate of some nonofficial observers," who place the speculative accounts at about a million, these would still involve less than 4 per cent of all the families of the entire Nation, and less than 1 per cent of the population.

Dr. Klein's speech follows:

"On Friday last the President stated that 'the fundamental business of the country, that is, production and distribution of commodities, is on a sound and prosperous basis.

"The best evidence is that although production and consumption are at high levels, the average prices of commodities as a whole have not increased and there have been no appreciable increases in the stocks of manufactured goods.

"However, there has been a tendency of wages to increase and the output per worker in many industries again shows an increase, all of which indicates a healthy condition.'

Hoover Statement Still Obtains.

"There is no reason today to change a single word of this statement of the President. Stock exchange prices have gone down materially since Friday but the stock market is not the major barometer of business, and a decline in security prices does not greatly affect the buying power of the community, on which buying power rests the activity of production, the earnings of corportaions and other business enterprises, and the employment of labor.

"No one knows the number of persons engaged in this speculative activity, but even if we accepted the apparently liberal estimate of some non-official observers, who place the speculative accounts at about a million, these would still invove less than 4 per cent of all of the families in the entire Nation.

"Or, if we put it on the basis of individuals, the ratio would be less than 1 per cent of the total population.

"Please don't misunderstand me or think that I am belittling the hardships of even this small fragment of our people, but even if all of these speculators suffered—and there were untold thousands who did not—you would still have a vastly preponderant majority of the nation unaffected by these speculative gyrations.

"And remember, incidentally, to cite just one corrective of this situation, that these speculative accounts could be matched twice over by the more than 2,000,000 families who derive their livelihood fro mexport trade, which is almost entirely unaffected by this movement.

"Stock prices have gone down suddenly over the past two or three years it seems to be generally agreed that they had risen much too rapidly. Throughout the past eight years, with very temporary and minor recessions, the production of goods and services in the United States has gradually but, on the whole, very considerably increased.

National Income Has Increased.

"That is the same thing as saying that national income increased. This naturally added to the profits of business, especially as, at the same time, many economics in production methods were introduced. The increased profits of business justified an advance in stock price but they did not justify going up to the sky.

"It would have been proper, no doubt, for stocks to rise in price somewhat faster than actual production of commodities because of the gradual spread among the people of confidence in the general future of American business, of confidence that the increase in production of commodities and profits of industry would in the long run continue. Such a conviction might justify some discounting of future larger earnings in the prices of securities. It did not justify carrying them to such a level that in many cases only a good many years hence could one hope for corporate earnings that would pay a fair rate of return on the prices paid for stocks.

Influence of Boom Psychology.

"We have been under the influence, as regards stock prices, of a boom psychology. Many persons have bought stocks with little knowledge of their present or probable future dividend-paying capacity. Many, moreover, have borrowed money in order to make these stock purchases. A reaction was bound to occur.

"The main point which I wish to emphasize is the fundamental soundness of that great mass of economic activities on which the well-being of the vast majority of us all depends. One may have due sympathy for the very considerable number who have lost money in the stock market without losing sight of the fact that there has been no change in the situation of the overwhelming majority of American families.

"The growth of the income of the Nation and the advance in the well-being of its business men, its wage earners and its farmers during recent years has not been due to boom psychology nor to temporary and fleeting causes. It has been a definite upward trend, not a wave, whose subsidence would leave us in a deep trough.

Production Efficiency Grows.

"The fundamental cause of the expansion of business and the improvement in standards of living has been the growing efficiency of production. We have been able to produce more and more goods and services per person at work. This gain in efficiency, in turn, has been due to causes of an enduring and cumulative character, causes that enter into the very bodies and minds of our people, and into the very foundations of our evonomic structure. The steady spread of education is perhaps the most basic of these upward-pushing forces.

"Closely allied with this is the growth of scientific research with its harvest of inventions and discoveries. The abundant savings of the people, with the consequent expansion of our capital have enabled us to provide more and better equipment for production, thus reducing costs.

"One could readily name other basic factors which have contributed to our progress and which are just as real and powerful today as they were a month ago and far more powerful than they were even eight or years ago.

Commodity Prices Steady.

"The most conclusive evidence that the progress of American industry and commerce in recent years has not been fictitious, has not been a mere inflationary boom, lies in the steadiness of prices of commodities.

"Against the immense advance in prices of securities, those of goods and services have for years been stationary or with a slight downward trend.

"A business boom which threatens a subsequent collapse of business is always accompanied by considerable, if not great, advance in commodity prices.

Future Trend Is Discernible.

"Some of you may be expecting me to tell you what is going to happen to stock prices tomorrow and next week. If you pause to think about it, however, you will realize that it would be quite improper as well as impossible for any Government official to give out such an opinion. The careful student of American economic life, equipped with an abundance of statistics, can forecast fairly well the long-time trends of production and of standards of living and even of many more specific branches of business or other economic aspects.

"He cannot forsee accurately short-time changes in economic conditions and least of all those speculative changes which depend largely on the psychology of the people or of a fraction of the people. All of us are justified, in my opinion, in a profound confidence in the genueral economic future of the country.

"Just what relation should exist between that confidence and his present attitude toward the stock market is something for each individual to decide for himself.

Per Capita Production Increasing.

"Broadly speaking, our average per capita production has increased by from 50 to 75 per cent since 1900 and by from 25 to 35 per cent since 1919, and remember that 1919 was not a depression year but one of high activity. I fully believe that the causes which have brought about this great advance will accomplish as much during the next decade or the next quarter of a century. There may be temporary recessions but these can be reduced to am inimum if we all have confidence in the general upward trend.

"Many of the business depressions of past decades have been primarily psychological and could have been avoided or minimized if the business men and the masses of the people had had the proper confidence in themselves. The general public of today understands, better than ever before, the long term trends of our economic life and the fundamental forces at work in it.

"I believe that we have very good reason to anticipate that this great knowledge wil breed greater confidence and will prevent us from giving way in any large measure to a defeatist jaychology.

Purchasing Power Is Factor.

"The fundamental factor in the general situation of business is purchasing power. Real purchasing power is made up of wages, salaries, receipts of farmers, merchants, professional men and others and the profits of industry. These factors have not been changed by the drop in stock prices. The national income of the United States at this moment is hardly a fraction less than it was a month ago. Established indexes such as the quantity output of our farms, or mines and our factories, and the volume of our railroad transportation, support this view.

"The number of citizens whose buying ability has been affected by the decline in the value of speculative securities is not very large. Their purchases do no tmake up a very significant fraction of the demand for goods.

"There is no reason why the 25,000,000 or more families, representing over 95 per cent of our population whose incomes remain undiminished should cut down their purchases of commodities, and therefore very few industies should see any appreciable reduction in the sales of their output.

Capital Equipment Set Forth.

"Aside from purchase of goods by consumers for their own actual use the biggest demand for commodities is that for expanding what the economists call the capital equipment of the Nation. In normal times there is an immense call for building materials, steel, machinery, railroad equipment and many other classes of goods for the purpose of building and equiping factories, public works and other productive enterprises. At least a tenth and perhaps an eighth of the productive energy is normally devoted to this creation of capital goods.

"If our business men and our people maintain that confidence in the future which the long experience of the past fully justifies, we shall see no diminution in the demand for capital goods a sthe result of the break in stock prices.

"On the contrary, the diversion of capital from stock market speculation t odirect productive enterprise might readily increase the demand for commodities of this sort.

Statistical Aid Is Valuable.

"One of the major grounds for confidence in the steadiness of American industry lies in the widespread dissemination of better statistical information and the practice of business men in guiding their policies in the light of such statistics. Never before has American industry and commerce been so ably managed as at present. Our commercial and industrial corporations are headed by men of broad vision, high qualifications and large experience with the intricate problems of our complex economic scheme.

"More than this, the executives of American business have today at their finger tips current facts upon the movement of their own industries, allied industries and all industry and business which in the last analysis, because of the interdependence between industry and industry, is of great importance.

"Rule of thumb practices have long since given way to policies based upon proper facts and analyses.

"The business man who is momentarily disturbed by the sharp decline in stock prices will glance at the current statistics of other economic factors. He will find, for example, that in September—of ourse, actual October figures are not yet available—industrial employment was 5 per cent greater than a year ago and that the amount of wage payments by our fctories was 8 per cent larger than in September, last year.

"He will see no ground for expecting reduced purchases of commodities on the part of the wage earner. He will find that there has been no accumulation of stocks of manufactured goods because of overanticipation of future demand or because of any present falling off in demand. The American Railway Association, which collects advance information as to the probable demands for cars, has received reports indicating freight car requirements for the present quarter are more than 2 per cent greater than for the same quarter of 1928.

"This demand for freight cars reflects the production of and demand for goods.

Farmers' Position Is Favorable.

"Again the statistics show the farmer in a relatively favorable condition, and his demand for manufactured goods may well be expected to remain strong.

"The quantity of crop production this year has been almost as great as last year when the income of the farmer was the highest in history.

"One can not, of course, forecast the price of farm products, but thus far they arep ractically the same as a year ago.

Export Trade Is Vital.

"We must not forget, moreover, that export trade has become a very important factor in American business. Exports of manufactured goods especially have increased steadily and rapidly in recent years.

"We now export approximately 10

HUGE STOCK SALES MARKED BY ORDER

Traders, Schooled by Vast Recent Turnover, Meet Task Skilfully.

LAST HOUR SEES FRENZY

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Wall street, despite the overpowering burden of labor under which it has been struggling without relief for ten days, plowed through the most gigantic task with which it has yet been confronted today with an equanimity in marked contrast to wild confusion and disorder of last Thursday.

Traders on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange tore through the unprecedented volume of business, totaling 16,410,000 shares, as contrasted to Thursday's turnover of 12,894,600, like well trained soldiers in hand to hand combat, having profited, apparently, from the gruelling training which they have recently received.

Larger Blocks Handled.

Their work was facilitated by the intercession of powerful financial interests, who placed buying orders at successively lower levels, causing an orderly decline. Last Thursday they were forced to shrink their offers for minutes at a time, and there were desperate intervals when there seemed to be no takers at any price. Also, today's trading was in larger blocks, so that the ticker was able to print the final quotation two and a half hours after the closing gong, as compared to four hours and eight minutes after Thursday's close.

Brokerage house forces had to rush through the record-breaking volume of business despite the fact that they have been forced to work until early morning after several successive frenzied days. There was even no rest on Sunday for many.

It was only during the closing hour on the floor of the exchange that disorder broke out. The steady buying of the afternoon had prevented hysteria among the traders but with the deadline for the day approaching the tired and weary workers let loose with their emotions.

Occasional Cheers Heard.

The din which had started early in the morning and continued throughout the day gained momentum like an express train as the clock ticked off the last hour of trading. Messengers scurried about, yelling and shoving. Aisles were blocked, but not for long, as a string of clerks would go plowing through, football fashion.

An occasional cheer arose above the turmoil during the afternoon as rallies in prices were achieved, but these gleeful outbursts were few and far between. The racket reached its height in the last few minutes. Every one strove to be heard at the same time. From the Montgomery Ward post, where the main activity had centered, the congestion and excitement spread rapidly over the entire floor.

Radio, General Motors and General Electric became more active. A last prolonged outburst occurred just as the closing gong sounded. Slowly the noise died out. The "floor" was through—and quiet. But not the "street." Usually the financial district's activities die out with the market's close, but not today and the preceding days of the price crashing.

All day there had been a bustle of excitement in the narrow thoroughfares that hold the towering financial institutions. Hundreds of messengers hurried through the congested streets. Pedestrians were kept constantly moving by extra details of police.

Banks Heavily Guarded.

Banks were heavily guarded. Precautions were taken by brokers and armed escorts accompanied messengers where the amount of securities were extra large as more "margin" was hurried to the banks to meet the demands of the market.

Restaurants were swamped with orders that came in from office workers—too busy to dash out from their work for a bite to eat. The Stock Exchange Luncheon Club remained open until 7 o'clock. Telephones were overburdened and extra operators were recruited to handle the rush of calls. Mounted policemen directed the slowly moving traffic.

With the close of the exchange clerks and brokers alike, as weary as they were, hurried to their offices to attack the tremendous amount of work that awaited them. Lights burned through the windows of the skyscrapers until nearly daylight.

Several firms engaged rooms in downtown hotels in order that their employes might gain as much sleep as possible during the few hours between the time they finished their work and the next day's task would begin.

$25 Loundry Theft Reported.

A bundle of laundry, valued at $25, was stolen from the front porch of the home of Ruben Goldstein, 2516 Wisconsin avenue northwest, yesterday, according to a report made to Seventh Precinct police.

RISING WATER ENDS SHIP'S S O S CALL

TOSSED IN LIFEBOATS

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—In a cell block of the Kenosha police station amid the stench of drying dungarees, shed by surviving members of the crew of the Wisconsin, Goodrich passenger and freight boat which sank off Kenosha today, Kenneth Carlson, 20-year-old radio operator, told his story.

"The first I knew that we were having trouble was when Second Mate Arthur Behl ran into the radio room and told me to stand by.

"A moment later Capt. Morrison phoned from the bridge to Mate Behl to call the Illinois, a sister boat of the Wisconsin, which we knew was somewhere near. I couldn't raise them. Later I got into communication with the Illinois only to learn that she was in the Racine harbor with a damaged rudder and could not come to our assistance.

S O S Signals Sent Out.

"Next I got WGO, the R. C. A. land station at Chicago, and told them to telephone to the Coast Guards at Racine and Kenosha and tell them of our trouble. The hold was rapidly filling with water and the fires were out. We wanted the Coast Guard to send out tugs or any large boats to stand by.

"Mate Behl stuck with me most of the time, answering phone calls from Capt. Morrison on the bridge.

"At 3 a. m. Capt. Morrison ordered me to send S O S signals. There was no response. I repeated S O S again and again. Finally WGO at Chicago responded and I told the operator that we were in need of immediate assistance.

"The last message I sent was word that we would be able to keep afloat for a few hours, possible two. Receiving no response I checked my equipment and found it was 'out' because of the incoming water. At that time there was about eight feet of water in the hold.

"Up on deck I found everything orderly, every man at his post. All had life belts on.

Start Abandoning Ship.

"About 5 o'clock we started to abandon the ship. Life boats were lowered and I got into the fifth boat. We banged against the sides of the ship several times but eventually we were on the water. It seemed like an age and every one aboard the boat was tense, fearful that we might be swamped if we should hit the side of the boat as we struck the water.

"We pulled away and about five minutes later the Racine, Coast Guard cutter, drew near us. Several attempts to pass a line were unsuccessful. Then we got hold of it and were pulled alongside the cutter. We scrambled aboard.

"We cruised about for a little bit and then picked up four more men who were in a lifeboat.

"We looked for more survivors but did not find them and we started for the Kenosha Coast Guard station. Those Coast Guardsmen were brave fellows and they handled their cutter like veterans."

Grocer Loses Coop and Chickens.

Thieves Take Clothing and Gun.

Mrs. Rosie Jenkins, of Twenty-second street northwest, near K street, told police that her home was entered by thieves, who used a duplicate key. The place was ransacked and clothing valued at $100, in addition to a revolver, were stolen.

Mate of Ill-Starred Ship Writes Story of Disaster

How Men Were Washed Away by Waves as Lifeboats Were Lowered Described by Officer Who Survived; Captain, Engineer Called Heroes.

By EDWARD HALVERSON
(First Mate and Survivor of S. S. Wisconsin).

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—I was standing on the forward deck helping close the hatches to prevent the heavy waves from flooding the hold in which we had a cargo of automobiles and other freight. It was about 12:30 a. m., and some one shouted up from the stern end that we had sprung a leak.

Capt. Morrison called for the deckhands to man the pumps, and we worked until the hose broke off the main pump. When we realized we could no longer put the water out that way, Capt. Morrison ordered Fred Truber, lookout on watch at the time, to signal ashore. We thought we were somewhere opposite Kenosha and at the time we were about 5 miles from shore. I heard the captain shout out to head for the shore line and in another half-hour the captain ordered the radioman to send out the distress call.

At about 2 o'clock we had learned from the Chicago radio station that ships were on the way to rescue us, and that two Coast Guard cutters were in their way from Kenosha and Racine. I saw the first cutter pull up and heard some one shout to us to lower the lifeboats.

From that time on everything was happening so fast we could not keep up. The first lifeboat dropped into the water. We never saw that boat again. In the second boat that started down I selected the first ten in line for the boat and we started to lower away into the heavy sea. I saw three men get washed overboard. One of them was a deckhand who had shipped with us last night. I never saw them again. All this time Capt. Morrison was standing at the forward deck giving orders to lower the lifeboats and shouting to the Coast Guardsmen in their boats nearby.

As I was pulling away from the ship, we were picked up by the Kenosha Coast Guard crew and I never felt a warmer helping hand than that of the captain who pulled me into his boat. On shore I realized for the first time what a narrow escape we had had.

I cried when I saw them bringing in the captain and Julius Buschmann, the engineer. It was a sorry day for me and for them, too. There never were greater heroes on the sea than those two men. I remember hearing Buschmann shout to the other men on board to take the boats and never mind him.

EUROPEAN BUYERS HALT WHEAT DROP

Orders Pouring In Save Day in Face of Disastrous Start.

QUICK RALLY RESULTS

Chicago, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—European wheat buyers stepped into the breech on the board of trade today to take advantage of bargain prices here and saved the day after a disastrous start.

Wheat values smashed down 7 cents a bushel at the opening. A quick rally ensued, 4 to 5 cents of the intial loss was wiped out, and at the finish wheat was down 1½ to 2⅛ cents a bushel from Monday's close. December wheat futures closed at $1.24¾ to $1.25; March at $1.32½. May at $1.35¾ to $1.35⅞.

Holders of wheat and nearly every commision house represented in the pit scurried to unload at the start and the market was panicky. May futures took the brunt of the shock with an extreme drop of 6⅞ cents. But the trade, becoming hardened to these frenzied sessions with their record-making volume of sales and their wide open breaks and skittish recoveries, waited for breath and then scooped up the cheap offerings.

Heavy buying had set in within the first half hour. Much of it was credited to Europe, and much attributed indirectly to European buyers who were understood to have come to the American counter for enormous quantities of flour. In addition there were reports from the seaboard of 1,000,000 bushels of American wheat sold for export.

UPROAR AT CLOSE OF LONDON MARKET

Wild Scenes on Curb Are Witnessed After Close of Stock Exchange.

PRICES SHIFT RAPIDLY

London, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Scenes which amazed old-timers were witnessed during the final hour of business in the London Stock Exchange which has been following closely the New York market.

During the final hour all shares in which London and Wall street are both interested were marked down heavily, the weakness being emphasized by the continual drop of prices in the continental centers, principally Amsterdam. Prices fluctuated wildly.

Above the uproar the chimes of the big clock were barely heard as they struck 4, the closing hour. At that moment Throgmorton street, where the curb traders meet, suddenly became a human beehive. Previously it had been a quiet thoroughfare with a few silk-hatted individuals sauntering along. At the moment of 4 men rushed from all the doors of the stock exchange into one long, panting, fighting stream into Shorters Court, where American prices are shouted, dividing themselves into oil markets, mining markets and industrial markets.

Wild Scenes in Street.

Because of the difference in time between London and New York, prices on the New York Stock Exchange were still pouring in and London traders still kept at it. Prices were shouted from two windows. Arms were raised above the crowd with fluttering paper forms. Clerks struggled in and out, harassed on every side. As the minutes passed and more news was received of the New York break, the excitement became more and more tense. Fortunes were made and lost in a few minutes.

It was the general belief tonight that London had suffered less severely than the United States and the Continent, especially Amsterdam. Apart from the Anglo-American industrials, which have borne the brunt of the collapse, there has been no pronounced fall in other sections, and good government and trustee stocks have even shown strength.

London Is Restricted.

The marking down of prices does not always indicate actual business transactions and the volume has been quite small here, compared with that in Wall street.

The Wall street break had a natural effect of extreme nervousness in the London exchange, which restricted all business through a reluctance to deal during the present difficult phase of violent fluctuation. British investors and operators took fright here a few weeks ago after the collapse of securities of the natry companies and had largely abstained from trading long before the Wall street crash.

Paris, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The prolonged government crisis was reflected on the Paris Bourse today, which, with the added momentum of the Wall street collapse and crisis, caused one of the weakest and dullest days of this year.

Losses in Montreal.

Montreal, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Losses all along the line ranging from $65 downward, today further reduced price levels on the Montreal Stock Exchange. The close showed no firmness and most stocks ended the day at prices near their lows.

The greatest recessions were Smelters, off $65, at $235; Montreal Power, off $24, at $123; National Steel Car, off 15, at $45; Dominion Bridge, off $16, at $66; Steel of Canada, off $13.25, at $38; National Breweries, off $13, at $110, and International Nickel, off $8.50 to $30.50.

Contaminated Well Kills Girl; One Dying

Blytheville, Ark., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Contaminated water from a well near Osceola had caused the death of a 16-year-old girl today and the critical illness of six other members of her family, two of whom were expected to die.

Eva May Hicks, 16, died in a Blytheville hospital from dysentery, and Grace Hicks, 7, and Willard Hicks, 14, were near death from the same disease. Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hicks and Ednie, 2, and Ivy, 11, were seriously ill. A well located near a stable became contaminated, doctors said and caused the illness.

NORRIS ANNOUNCES HE WILL RUN AGAIN

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Asserting that "it is now quite clear that Nebraska is to be singled out" in the administration's effort to crush the Progressive movement, Senator George W. Norris, last night announced his candidacy for reelection.

He had hoped to retire at the end of his present term, he said, but the challenge to Progressivism could not be refused. He charged the appointment of former Governor McKelvie to the Farm Board was a part of the campaign.

"It is now quite clear," he asserted in a formal statement, "that Nebraska is to be singled out in the coming senatorial primary campaign as one of the chief battlegrounds for the control of the United States Senate. For that purpose a virtual alliance has been formed between the Old Guard standpat machine inside the State and those who control that machine from the outside.

"The avowed purpose of this combination is to weaken and discredit progressive principles of government by driving me out of public life, and securing the nomination and election of a Senator from Nebraska who will be subservient to the political machine and its bosses both inside and outside the State, and who at all times can be trusted to be 'regular'."

Sees "Direct Challenge."

The plan "constitutes a direct challenge," he continued, "not so much against me personally, as against the fundamental principles of government for which I have stood and fought for ever since I have had the honor to represent the State of Nebraska in the United States Senate; and if I failed to accept this challenge it seems to me I could be charged with political cowardice and with a failure to do my full duty at a time when the principles of a free and democratic government are at stake."

Senator Norris' statement, a lengthy resume of his 25 years' work in Congress, and captioned "An address to the People of Nebraska," followed closely upon the dinner of prominent Republicans in New York recently given by Jeremiah T. Milbank, treasurer of the New Jersey organization, and at which Norris and other Progressives were attacked directly and indirectly.

James Francis Burke, general counsel of the Republican national committee, attacked "pigmies and obstructionists" and Claudius C. Huston, national chairman, attacked "blocs" in Congress and asserted there should be a return to two party government. In this atmosphere, other speakers called Norris and others by name.

It has been known for some time that either McKelvie or some other administration man would oppose Norris in next year's senatorial campaign. The probability is that it will be McKelvie and if not him that it will be William Stebbins, State treasurer.

Is Administration's Fight.

Whoever it is, it will be the administration's fight. The indications are now that none of the regular senators will become involved in it and certainly the Republican senatorial committee remain out of it. Senator Moses, the chairman of this committee, in fact, says that the committee will not take a hand. It may be that some of the more hardy regular senators might seek to give the administration cause some support.

The senators as a whole, however, are not in agreement with what might be called "the White House crowd," that is the President's nonsenatorial array of advisers, as to the wisdom of fighting Norris. It is their view that Norris represents the Nebraska form of Republicanism, so to speak. It is on this theory, too, that they have never given any ear to suggestions that Norris' committee chairmanships be taken from him. Norris' announcement, in fact, is an expressed intention to "in due time ale as a candidate for the Republican nomination in the coming primary."

It goes without saying that he will get all the support he needs from his fellow Progressive senators.

The issue should be plain, too, for Norris makes known that he has no intention of turning back on anything he has done, or of becoming "regular" in the future.

"All the charges made against me by the so-called leaders of the Republican party can be reduced to one sentence," he said, "that I am not regular, and therefore not a good Republican, and that I do not always support the President.

Offers No Apologies.

"I do not concede that the self-appointed, self-anointed, partisan politicians, representing monopolies and privilege-seeking interests have any right to decide what constitutes a good Republican or to be judges of his good faith and regularity.

"If absolute subservience to political bosses is necessary in order for a member of the United States Senate to remain in good standing in his party, I must plead guilty to the charge of irregularity. I would rather be right than regular. If compliance to the wishes of these bosses is the test of regularity, I prefer to be irregular."

"I offer no apology for the course I have hitherto pursued," he declared, "and the only promise I now make is that if I am reelected to the Senate I will continue to pursue it."

"In taking this step," he said, "I am under no misgivings as to the powerful political influences that will be exerted to accomplish my defeat. All the power of machine politics, formidably supported by the control of patronage and official favors, will be marshalled and organized against me."

FIREWORKS IN SIGHT AS PARLIAMENT SITS

UNEMPLOYMENT TO FORE

London, Oct. 28 (A.P.).—Parliament reassembled today under Britain's second Labor government in a humor giving every prospect of a lively and exciting session. Pending the arrival of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at the end of the week, the government is marking time, but the first lines of party conflict already are set in the direction of the unemployment question.

After an early morning rush to obtain seats, in which Lady Astor, American-born peeress, captured her favorite corner position, the House of Commons was filled to overflowing at the actual opening of business in the afternoon.

The keynote of the session was immediately set in questions about the unemployment situation addressed to J. H. Thomas, lord privy seal and minister of employment.

Snowden Warmly Greeted.

In reply Mr. Thomas said he was more than gratified by the results achieved during the parliamentary holiday. He promised the house a comprehensive statement early next week.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden, who led the house in the absence of the prime minister, was warmly applauded on entering. The Labor chancellor, who has withstood some rude polemics from his adversaries during his long career, is a national hero because of his successful maintenance of British interest at The Hague reparations conference.

Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, was warmly welcomed by the Laborites.

Uprisings Forecast.

Miss Margaret Bondfield, minister of labor and first British woman cabinet minister, had to meet many questions about unemployment from her own supporters and refused to give any immediate information.

Although there was no flare-up among the members, most observers think that "Mr. Speaker," who presides over the house, may need all his tact and patience to maintain order during the coming weeks when the labor ministry will meet its first real test since it took office.

13 BELIEVED DEAD IN STEAMER SINKING

Coast Guard station here and immediately returned to stand by. Meantime, a Chambers Bros. fishing tug went to the scene, arriving shortly after the Wisconsin went down at 7:10 a. m.

The Chambers picked up 15 survivors, 8 on one life raft, 4 on another and 3 from a lifeboat just as it capsized. A fourth occupant of the lifeboat was lost when the boat rolled over and the crew of the Chambers was unable to reach him.

A life raft bearing eight men turned over completely three times just before the men were rescued. On one of the turnovers, Chief Engineer Julius Bushman, of Manitowoc, Wis., lost his hold and fought off attempts of his mates to pull him back on the raft. Later his body was recovered.

On the second incoming trip the Racine Coast Guard cutter brought six dead, including Capt. Morrisan and Engineer Bushman. All six were picked up floating in the water. Several were still alive when picked up, but died from exposure en route to the dock.

On its second trip the Kenosha cutter brought in six survivors, all alive.

On their first trips from the Wisconsin, the two cutters were loaded to capacity, carrying 38 survivors. There were only three passengers on the boat. They were saved.

Facilities at the Coast Guard station were taxed as the survivors were brought ashore. They huddled about a large stove, calling for cigarettes and coffee, as they awaited their turn to be transported to hospitals or to the police station.

Soon after putting out from Chicago at 7:30 o'clock last night the Wisconsin was buffeted by the gale and for four hours, it seemed members of the crew said, that she would weather the gale as she did a week ago tonight when the car ferry Milwaukee was sunk with its fifty men just a few miles from the scene of today's disaster.

Nearing Kenosha the boat sprang a leak and the incoming water washed coal from the bunkers and ashes into the bilge pumps which were soon disabled. Firemen stood in water up to their waists, shoveling coal into the boiler fires. They did not abondon their posts until water put out the fires.

GRUNDY WOULD USE TARIFF GAG FREELY

(Associated Press.)

Delving into the philosophy of a veteran high tariff advocate, a surprised Senate lobby committee heard from Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, yesterday that the small revenue-producing States should be barred from so much voice in the Senate on tariff legislation.

"They haven't any chips in the game," contended the ruddy-faced, white-haired man who has spent 32 years in the manufacturing business, collecting Republican campaign funds, and seeking higher tariff rates at Washington.

It was a livelier session for Grundy than his appearance before the Senate inquisitors last week. The senators both laughed and snarled with the blunt-speaking president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association as he returned his answers. He was firmly admonished several times to give more direct answers.

Would Muzzle Arkansas First.

Pressed to state his views on the constitutional provision that each State is entitled to two senators, Grundy finally said that it was "unfortunate." Asked to name the States he would exclude from a voice in tariff legislation, he began with Arkansas, which is represented by Chairman Caraway, of the lobby committee. He followed with Idaho, whose senator, Borah, was one of Grundy's persistent questioners yesterday.

The five committee members seemed unsure of their ears when Grundy contended that some of the smaller tax-paying States should not be allowed to "obstruct" or "break down" the tariff policy. The theory led to question after question. Some of the members laughed and then retorted.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, was grim throughout and smiled only when Grundy observed that "I would hate to tell what I would do to Wisconsin."

Senator Blaine, of that State, was another of the committee examiners and like Senators Caraway, Borah and Walsh is opposing the pending tariff bill.

As for various increases in rates in that measure, Grundy willingly accepted credit for helping to obtain them when his "natural modesty" permitted. After more than two hours of questioning, Chairman Caraway asked Grundy to return today.

Senator Borah, who like Grundy, campaigned last year for Herbert Hoover, began yesterday's examination and met, as a rule, with Grundy's usual reply that he was in Washington to help enact into law the pledges of the Republican platform.

Grundy for Wool Raise.

The senator recalled that the platform pledged to put agriculture on an equality with industry. He asked what Grundy had done in the interest of the agricultural rates. Grundy specified only one schedule—wool—and Borah observed that he was personally interested in that business.

Grundy countered that Pennsylvania had "four times" as much agriculture as did Idaho and "thought agriculture and industry should go hand in hand."

Borah and Grundy disagreed that agriculture could be placed on an equality with industry without the lowering of some industrial schedules, as contended by the Idahoan. Borah thereupon demanded Grundy's program, and the Pennsylvanian replied that the farmer would have to adjust his production more nearly to demand.

Senator Walsh brought up the table previously presented by Grundy showing the Federal taxes paid by many of the smaller Western and Southern States and asked the reason for "this invidious comparison."

That started Mr. Grundy on his philosophy of government. The committee became more curious, and he did not hesitate to talk.

He listed as "backward" the States of Arizona, South Dakota, Idaho and Mississippi and was asked to explain. He offered his explanations, and Senator Borah leaned across the table toward the witness when his State was mentioned.

"Now, let's be candid," said Borah. "It's because I am from Idaho, isn't it?"

Smiling back at the Idahoan, Grundy said, "Well, in a way, yes."

Senator Walsh asked Grundy how he proposed to silence "Senator Borrah and myself for instance, in the tariff debates." Grundy answered that he thought "propriety" should dictate that.

What He Thinks of States.

The Montana and Idaho senators went down the line of States with particular reference to Grundy's views on their right to representation on tariff and other economic legislation and also with particular reference to those States whose senators are opposing the tariff bill.

Here are the opinions expressed by him:

"Georgia has had great opportunities but hasn't done so well.

"Louisiana is doing the best she can under adverse conditions.

"Nebraska has been pretty bad.

"Oklahoma is going along pretty good.

"Kansas is not as good as it was.

"Somebody ought to look after South Carolina.

"Alabama is doing pretty good.

PADLOCK AND CHAIN FOR FIFTH PRECINCT

Escape of Hand From Cell Is Cause of Change in Locks at Station House.

NO KEY RECORDS KEPT

The old-fashioned but nevertheless effective padlock and chain system was adopted at the Fifth Precinct stationhouse yesterday to prevent a repetation of the Wilbur William Hand escape. The locks on the individual cells and on the cell block were obsolete and have never been changed since they were installed when the stationhouse was built many years ago.

Officials investigating Hand's peculiar escape from a cell at the stationhouse have learned nothing new in the last 24 hours. They did disclose, however, that scores of policemen attached to the precinct, and even a civilian janitor, could get the keys and enter the cell block and cells without record being kept.

Such a disclosure is expected to release the stationhouse clerk and others who were on duty at the time of the escape of the suspicion of negligence in the handling of the keys.

Unwilling to run the risk of having other prisoners in other station houses escape through a similiar inadequacy, police officials said that padlocks and chains would probably be installed in all the precinct stations.

Former Precinct Detective Robert Langdon, who was suspended and is facing trial board charges as a result of his arrest for alleged violations of the liquor law, took occasion yesterday to deny vehemently that he had anything to do with Hand's escape. He phoned Maj. and Superintendant Pratt denying that he had anything to do with Hand while he was in the station house, except in a routine manner. He said that he had talked to Hand and that on each accasion he visited the cells there were others present.

Driver Flees Foe; Finds Its Officer

Result Is Taxi Chauffeur Faces Four Charges in Police Court.

A taxicab driver made the mistake of thinking that a pursuing policeman was another cab driver who "was gunning for him" last night and as a result he was booked on four charges and required to put up $250 collateral.

Vincent Hope Rosson, 29 years old, of 2924 Twelfth street northeast, sped by Traffic Policeman Harold D. Johnson at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. Johnson commandeered a private car, operated by A. B. Lee, of 326 C street southeast, and gave chase for a dozen or more blocks in circles.

Rosson, who is a brother of W. M. Rosson, policeman in the Twelfth Precinct, said he thought a rival cab driver was pursuing him with murderous intent. He was charged with reckless driving, passing a red light, failing to stop upon a policeman's signal, and failing to show a license card.

Title Deed Writ Sought By Salvation Army Head

Gen. E. J. Higgins Will Ask Court for Transfer of Holdings.

London, Oct. 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Gen. E. J. Higgins, head of the Salvation Army, in an interview here today, announced that a writ will be sought in the high court, probably tomorrow, for transfer to him of the title deeds of army property from the executors of the late Gen. Bramwell Booth. The estate involves army chapels and other buildings, which, in Great Britain alone, are worth about $5,000,000.

Higgins said that the solicitor general had advised executors of the late general that the 1904 deed (the deed which appointed and outlines the duties of the high council and laid down certain rules by which the general might be deprived of office), should not be challenged, and that he had no objection to transferring the deeds of the army to Higgins.

The executors, however, replied that they could not take the responsibility of making the transfer and accordingly an order of the high court will be sought.

Higgins again denied today reports of a revolt within the army against the present regime and stories of a vendetta against members of the Booth family who sided with the late general in his fight to retain office. He also denied a report that he had a secret meeting with Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the American Salvation Army, in Canada, regarding army funds. Higgins described as a lie the suggestion that the army in Great Britain is kept going by money from the United States.

HOWELL AND ROVER HAVE TALK ON RUM

Nebraska Senator Calls on U. S. Attorney to Discuss Liquor Situation.

PRATT ON SECRET VISIT

Senator Robert B. Howell (Republican), Nebraska, who recently created a furore in the Senate by denouncing liquor conditions in the District of Columbia, yesterday called on United States Attorney Leo A. Rover for what he termed "a friendly chat on certain phases of liquor situation."

The senator stated that his conference dealt largely with certain padlock proceedings that have been instituted recently in the District.

At the same time he took occasion to deny that he would appear before the District of Columbia grand jury and give information regarding liquor violations. "I know nothing personally," the senator said. "All I know about the violations is what I have seen in the records."

Rover invited Senator Howell and Senator Smith W. Brookhart (Republican), of Iowa, to appear before the grand jury and tell what they knew about liquor violations. Senator Brookhart followed Senator Howell's lead in denouncing conditions.

Rover declined to make any statement regarding Howell's visit.

Shortly after Senator Howell had made his departure, Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, arrived at the United States attorney's office. He was closeted with Rover but a few minutes, then taken to the office of Assistant United States Attorney Harold W. Orcutt. No statement was made when the conference was ended.

DOUGHERTY ADVISES SACKETT ON INQUIRY

Senator Seeks Names of Officials to Question in District Quiz.

ANOTHER DELAY LOOMS

Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty, who has jurisdiction over the Police Department, and Senator Frederic M. Sackett, of Kentucky, chairman of the subcommittee that is investigating District affairs, had a conference at the Capitol late yesterday.

Sackett said afterward that he had summoned Dougherty in order to discuss the procedure in the investigation. Not being familiar with the make-up of the local government, Sackett said, he and the other members of the subcommittee wanted to know just what officials should be called to answer specific questions.

"We wanted to make sure that we call the right men," Sackett said. "We don't want to call some official, and then discover that the questions we are asking him should rightly be put to somebody else."

Sackett left last night for Louisville, Ky., where he has a speaking engagement, and will not be back until the end of the week. Thus there will be another delay in the series of delays that have marked the senatorial investigation.

In the meantime, four important communications are awaiting the consideration of the subcommittee, not to mention a huge pile of letters from individual citizens.

While the letter from Attorney General Mitchell has not been made public, the belief is growing that he has turned down the request of the subcommittee for the loan of Department of Justice agents to help it in its investigation of "inefficiency and corruption" here.

Had Mitchell acceded to the subcommittee's request, it is believed that the fact would have been made known and the agents put to work.

With the tariff seriously interfering with the subcommittee's investigation, and with most of the members determined not to go into the McPherson case until it has come up in court, it becomes increasingly evident that the investigation is going to be a long-drawn-out one. It is even conceivable that it will extend into next summer.

THREE REPORTERS FACE TERM IN JAIL

Newspaper Men Have Until 10 A. M. Today to Bare Liquor Facts.

RUM WARRANTS SOUGHT

On motion of Attorney Wilton J. Lambert, their counsel, Justice Peyton Gordon, in Criminal Division No. 1, of the District Supreme Court, yesterday gave three reporters of the Washington Times until 10 o'clock today to answer questions put to them by the District grand jury as to the places where they are said to have purchased liquor in bolstering up a series of articles which have been appearing in that newspaper.

The three reporters—Gorman Hendricks, Linton Burkett and John E Nevin, jr.,—refused to divulge the information, according to the report of the grand jury submitted to Justice Gordon.

Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw, who is in charge of the proceedings, stated yesterday that if the three men still refuse to testify today when Justice Gordon instructs them to do so they will be guilty of contempt of court and liable to be sentenced to a year in jail.

The three men were brought before the justice yesterday afternoon, just as was Daniel O'Connell, city editor of the paper, who was taken before the justice Monday. O'Connell was certified as a recalcitrant witness and when pressed agreed to submit the names of the men who faced the justice yesterday.

After reading the grand jury's report, Justice Gordon asked each of the men if they had refused to answer the questions propounded by the grand jury, and if they had refused to go before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage and swear out warrants against places where they are said to have purchased whisky. Each told the court that he refused.

At this point, O'Connell asked for a recess until Attorney Lambert arrived. It was granted, and when the attorney came on the scene he immediately suggested a continuance until 10 o'clock today. The motion was granted.

The reporters are said to have refused to tell the grand jury the information it sought because they believed that in doing so they would be violating professional ethics.

will go any distance to assure that justice be done."

There was a division among advisers of the Commissioners on the question yesterday, some arguing that the Commissioners should grant the plea to prove to the public that Allen was not the subject of persecution.

Conduct Is Attacked.

Allen, as well as Capt. Doyle, has been charged with conduct prejudicial to the good order and reputation of the police force. The charge against Allen grew out of his published statement that he intended to investigate the United States district attorney's office because indictments against an investment broker had not been prosecuted. Called on to state whether he had been accurately quoted, Allen replied that he had been, and his reply was characterized as disrespectful and insubordinate.

Capt. Doyle was suspended and cited before the trial board after he had written a letter to the superintendent of police supporting Allen's letter and declaring that it was "high time" for officials of the department to "forget their petty animosities" against Allen, whom Doyle praised highly and recommended that he be commended for his police work.

SOLUTION OF PARIS CRISIS UNCERTAIN

Daladier, Discouraged, Today Will Definitely Abandon His Efforts.

BRIAND NAMING IS SEEN

Paris, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The French ministerial crisis tonight, a full week after the overthrow of the cabinet of Aristide Briand, still appeared uncertain of solution.

Edouard Daladier, who has been attempting to form a cabinet for three days, announced after a midnight conference with friends of the Radical-Socialist party that he would inform President Doumergue at 9 a. m. that he declined to continue his efforts. Last evening he had told the president that he would consider the matter until 10 a. m. today, before deciding.

After the Socialists today had voted not to participate in his "coalition of the left" and had repudiated the stand of their representatives in Parliament, Daladier had pronounced his task hopeless and said that when he saw the president tonight he would inform him that he had abandoned the attempt.

Meanwhile Radical leaders urged him to persist in his efforts so that Daladier, when he left the Elysee Palace, said he had changed his mind to the extent of withholding final decision until tomorrow. Should he then conclude that he is without hope of forming a government, observers predicted that Briand would be summoned once more, this time to attempt to form his twelfth government.

Briand had accepted the invitation of Daladier to take the portfolio of foreign affairs if a cabinet of the left was formed, and was generally believed to prefer the freedom of that post to devote his attention to foreign affairs rather than assuming the burden of direction of the whole government. His cabinet, known as the "government of 30 days," was defeated last Tuesday on a vote of confidence in the opening session of Parliament.

DAYTON IS INDICTED IN O'DONNELL DEATH

First-Degree Murder Charge Is Filed in True Bill by District Grand Jury.

TWO OTHERS ALSO CITED

Dexter Churchill Dayton, 22-year-old insurance salesman, who confessed to police that he killed Marjorie O'Donnell, youthful magazine writer, in a room at the Roosevelt Hotel on October 7, was indicted on a charge of first degree murder yesterday.

The District of Columbia grand jury also returned first degree murder indictments against George Lee, alias Lee Kem Hem, a Chinese, and Cardoza Bell, colored. Lee is alleged to have killed Lee Num Kate, another Chinese, while Bell is accused of slaying Alice Metz, colored.

The indictment against Dayton is in a single count and is similar in form to the first count of the indictment on which Frank Ellsworth Smith was convicted and sentenced to death in connection with the slaying of his daughter, Bessie. Smith's case is now before the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

Strangulation Is Charged

Murder by strangulation is charged to Dayton. The indictment alleges that he placed both his hands about the girl's neck and "then and there feloniously, willfully and purposely, and of his deliberate and premeditated malice, did fix and fasten his hands and did choke and strangle her, of which choking and strangling she then and there did die."

Dayton is expected to be arraigned Friday. He will be represented by his counsel, Attorneys Ring and Cobb, while the Government is expected to be represented by Assistant United States Attorney Arthur G. Lambert, who conducted the case before the grand jury.

Dayton has been in jail since his arrest in the early hours of October 9. He told police that he killed the girl and that he sought to end his life with a pistol, but that his courage failed him. Attempting to build it up with whisky, he became stupefied from liquor and lay on a bed with the body of the dead girl for several hours. Then he called a bell boy and asked that police be called.

Laundry Slaying Is Cited.

The indictment returned against Lee alleges that he killed Lee Num Kate last September 3 at the latter's laundry at 1005 Four-and-one-half street, southwest with a flatiron. The true bill sets out that Lee was captured in the building in which the crime is alleged to have been committed.

Bell is alleged to have slain the Metz woman with a shotgun. He is said to have followed her into an office building on N street northwest, near Sixth street, on August 16 last, and to have wounded her fatally.

Twenty-five other indictments were returned by the grand jury. Charges against four persons were ignored, as follows: Hillman Powell Holloway, embezzlement; Wiley Nickolson, assault with a dangerous weapon; Walter Samuel Hurtt, involuntary manslaughter, and James S. Murray, embezzlement.

Other indictments included charges of nonsupport of minor children against Louis Francis Quinn, Russell Carlin Brown, William Bernard Babbington, Benjamin Luther Rhodes, John Norris Clingan, Percy Macklin Whitney, William Henry Hunt and Rodney Lee Gill.

Grand larceny was charged to James A. Scott, Taylor M. Whichard and James Marshall, alias James Washington. Marvin R. Harlow was charged with joy riding. Piney A. Youngblood was charged with abduction. James Joseph McLaughlin was charged with housebreaking.

Edward Williams was indicted on two charges of housebreaking and larceny. Leroy Dorsel and Waverly Wilson were charged with the same offense. Violation of the national prohibition act was charged to Samuel Bandler and Jerome Lee Morris. Jack A. Jones was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

MISTRIAL ORDERED IN CASE OF CATTS

TWO MEN ADMIT GUILT

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A mistrial, ordered by Judge Akerman, when a Federal court jury was unable to break a 24-hour deadlock, brought an end to the trial of former Gov. Sidney J. Catts today.

Catts was named on nine counts in two indictments charging financing a counterfeiting ring. He left immediately for his home in Defuniak Springs, under $17,500 bond, until retrial in February.

Two principals in the counterfeiting ring in which the Government sought to implicate Catts entered pleas of guilty to charges against them today. Julian Diaz, who testified that Catts had voluntarily loaned him $5,000 to purchase $25,000 in counterfeit bills, was sentenced to serve a four-year sentence concurrently with a five-year term he is serving in Atlanta Penitentiary on another charge. The plea and sentence were recorded just before court closed today.

When the former governor left the courtroom, Mateo Mir, of Tampa, entered a plea of guilty as one of the four principals in the counterfeiting ring Catts was charged with financing. Mir was sentenced to serve one year and a day in Federal penitentiary. Later in the day Mir entered another plea of guilty, this time to charges of alien smuggling. He received a suspended sentence of five years in Federal penitentiary, Judge Akerman ordering that he be deported when his counterfeiting sentence had been served.

Other defendants in the case are Julian Diaz, Leah Burwell, both of whom were Government witnesses against Catts, and Armand Dominguez.

Catts refused through the eight days of the trial to make any statement.

YOUR popularity may depend upon a clear, smooth, lovely skin. It is the accepted way of telling the degree of health a person possesses. Naturally a skin which bespeaks health attracts.

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of skin blemishes, lack of appetite, flabby flesh and loss of energy as an indication that the body's power of resistance is low—that there is a deficiency of red-blood-cells.

The way to the skin is through the blood. Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and promotes smooth, clear skin.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to infection and disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh and clearing the skin.

S.S.S. promotes healthy body building. It increases the number of red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

Eastern Shore Banker Is Ill in Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 29.—Suffering from heart trouble, complicated with other ailments, W. Meade Holloday, president of the State Capital Bank of the Eastern Shore Trust Co., is under observation at Union Memorial Hospital, Baltimore, it became known today. His condition is regarded as serious, according to friends, and his attending physician states that he must be kept absolutely quiet for at least ten days. No visitors are being admitted to see him.

Holladay's health has not been of the best for some time, as he has been suffering from rheumatism. The heart affliction only became pronounced a few days ago, however, and on Saturday his condition became such that it was decided to remove him to a hospital to undergo special treatment.

OTTO KAHN AVOIDS POSITION WITH G. O. P.

within the limits of reason and possibility, and that if the leaders of the party to which I belong demand of me a service which did not conflict with my duties and responsibilities I was not at liberty to refuse, however reluctant I was to accept it."

"You regarded this answer as tantamount to an acceptance in principle, as you were perfectly justified in doing, and at what was supposed and intended to be a strictly private dinner, made informal reference to that acceptance.

"But the divided reception with which the report of the appointment of a separate treasurer for your committee and of my designation as such treasurer has met, however erroneous some of the interpretations placed thereon, appears to have confirmed the validity of the doubt which I ventured to express when you offered the position to me and to justify me in concluding to abstain from occupying it.

"I understand that no formal action has been taken as yet by the national Republican senatorial committee concerning the appointment of a treasurer, and I am making free to write these lines to request that you will please refrain from bringing my name before the committee for appointment to the treasureship. Believe me, dear senator, very faithfully yours.

(Signed) "OTTO H. KAHN."

(Associated Press.)

Regret that any circumstances should have arisen to lead Otto H. Kahn to decline to become treasurer of the Republican senatorial campaign committee was expressed last night by Senator Moses, of New Hampshire.

As chairman of the campaign committee, Moses announced Kahn's selection for the post at a party dinner to Chairman Huston, of the Republican national committee in New York last week. Much discussion followed, and promise of more was terminated by the Kahn letter to Moses.

Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, had questioned the necessity for the appointment of a separate treasurer for the senatorial campaign committee. Then it was learned that some of the party leaders were surprised over Moses' announcement, although not opposed to his course. Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader in the Senate, and Senator Borah, of Idaho, a leader of the Republican independents, both indorsed Mr. Kahn's appointment.

Senator Moses said he had no idea whom he would name as treasurer in Mr. Kahn's place.

Florida with Mrs. Watson. He declined to name his destination.

Watson made known his decision yesterday to his colleagues and conferences were called. With the party busy on the tariff bill, some concern was felt over his departure.

In view of the recent illness of Senator Jones, the suggestion first was advanced that Senator McNary, of Oregon, who piloted the farm relief measure through, be called upon as temporary leader.

Despite his condition, Senator Watson set about to arrange conferences on the tariff bill looking to some kind of an agreement which would assure passage of a measure during the extra session. He is hopeful of getting together with Chairman Smoot, of the finance committee, and Democratic leaders on some such program.

ALEXANDRIA CROWD HEARS JAMES PRICE

RASKOB NO ISSUE, CLAIM

James H. Price, of Richmond, Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of Virginia, in the Alexandria, Va., Armory last night addressed an audience which comfortably filled the building. He expressed regret at the level to which the present campaign has "fallen" in Virginia, and said that there is no occasion for harsh criticism or personal prejudice on either side. He declared that there is but one issue involved in the campaign, and that is good government for Virginia; that while the Republicans have attempted to persuade the people of the State that prohibition is an issue, the Antisaloon League of Virginia has given its approval to the nominees of both parties, and announced that the answers given by the nominees of both parties to queries as to their stand on the prohibition question have been satisfactory.

He said that the so-called Raskobism and the candidacy of Smith for the presidency are not issues, for these are matters that have been settled finally. He stated that there is very little difference between the position of the Democrats and the Republicans in this campaign, and that the chairman of the State Republican committee has instructed his followers to "lay off" the Byrd policies, and, if they wish to be successful to raise smoke screens and camouflage the situation by reference to the issues of the last general election. He said the Virginians are willing to allow President Hoover to fish in their streams, and to extend to him their hospitality, but they are not willing to give him their votes.

Touches on Election Laws.

One of the points raised by the Republicans and coalitionists is the alleged corruption of the State election laws, he declared, and if the newspaper accounts of some of the Republican meetings could be credited, they weer somewhat in the nature of socialistic gatherings. The Republicans claim, he said, that the election laws are fraudulent, and that the real result of the coming election will never be known.

This is not true, Price declared, and there is nothing upon which to base such statements. He explained that under the law it is required that the opposition party have a representative in each of the voting precincts, and that the only chance of fraud would be by collusion between the representatives of the opposing parties. He said that he does not know of a State in the Union where there is more freedom of expression than in Virginia, and that in the recent primary 140,000 Democrats were allowed to express their preference of a candidate, while in the Republican party, which had an equal opportunity of holding a primary at the expense of the State, the candidate was hand-picked, chosen behind closed doors, and that both the candidates and the policies, as announced by the party, are not acceptable to many of the Republican and coalition voters.

"Surprised" at Brown.

Dr. Brown, coalition candidate for governor, Price said, admits that we have material prosperity in Virginia, but says that he would rather move into a howling wilderness than to live in Virginia under Democratic rule. This, he said, is a statement made purely for effect, as is "rather surprising" to come from a man of Dr. Brown's "educational attainments," who has spent as much time as has Dr. Brown in the atmosphere of Washington and Lee University.

The short ballot, which has received so much attention at the hands of coalitionists, is not an issue, according to Price. One thing which, he said, seems to have been overlooked in this connection is the fact that the removal of the State treasurer, superintendent of education and commissioner of agriculture from the ballot and making those officers appointees of the governor was intended only as an experiment, and the present law is to last only for fuor years, after which time the Legislature is to decide whether the appointive system is to remain in effect or whether these officers will be restored to the ballot.

Tax Rforms Dealt With.

Price called attention to the reforms promised by the opponents of the Democratic party, one being a reduction of one-half cent a gallon in the gasoline tax and another a reduction in the automobile license fee. The gasoline tax reduction proposed, he said, would mean a loss to road funds of $900,000 a year, and he said the present tax must be continued for at least eight or ten years to complete the road-building program. Virginia no whas 7,500 miles of State roads, half of which are hard surfaced, the other half in process of being hard surfaced, and $40,000,000 is being spent in the State on the roads. He said the Republicans are mistaken in their figures to the extent of $4,000,000.

Public schools, and particularly county high schools, were dwelt upon by Price, the appropriations for schools having increased in eight years, he said, from $23,000,000 to $62,000,000. Virginia, he said, is first in the Union in physical education. The State health department, he said, has very greatly reduced the number of cases of typhoid fever, diphtheria and other diseases.

Administration Praised.

The business administration of Virginia, according to Price, has attracted the attention of the whole country, and the governors of several States, some of them bringing their whole staffs, have come to Richmond to look over the system. Honesty and character have been the greatest assets of Virginia government, he said. The Democrats have been in power in Virginia for 44 years, from the administration of Fitzhugh Lee to that of Harry Byrd, without a single suggestion of wrong doing in office, which, Price said, is vastly different from the experiences of some States, in one of which it has been said that one governor going to the penitentiary meets another coming out.

The speaker was introduced by Charles H. Callahan, commissioner or revenue. Charles C. Carlin, chairman of the city Democratic committee, presided and introduced the various candidates for local offices.

KLEIN REASSURES NATION ON MARKET

per cent of the total output of our factories.

"There is no reason to anticipate any decline in this big factor in demand and on the contrary the upward movement of recent years is likely to continue.

Life Insurance Heavy.

"One of the major indications of general prosperity is the amount of new life insurance taken out; only when people have high buying power can they afford to add this protection for their families.

"Sales of insurance were 15 per cent greater last month than in September, 1928, and every recent year has shown a gain in the annual volume of new insurance until today we have the truly prodigious total of over 100,000,000,000 of insurance now in force.

"Some small fragment of this doubtless was bought with the proceeds of speculation but by far the greater part of it stands as a mighty symbol of the inherent economic soundness as well as the farsighted frugality of our Nation.

Nation's Structure Is Sound.

"After all, the volume of our purchasing power measures the heights of our living standards; it is the impressive manifestation of our high wage rates. And basically our normal purchasing power has not been appreciably impaired.

"Regardless of regrettable speculative uncertainties, the industrial and commercial structure of the Nation is sound.

"Good-night and thank you!"

(Associated Press.)

While the stock market was facing the renewed throes of liquidation, Federal Reserve Board members yesterday were held in a prolonged session, Secretary Mellon being among those attending, but preserved the same attitude that has been borne toward market affairs since the decline began.

There were no public statements by higher officials, though it was said that nothing like calls for relief had been made from the centers of pressure at any time.

The summaries of views given on previous days, which all represented higher officials as coinciding in the opinion that general business of the country is on a sound basis and not likely to be disturbed by the stock price smash, were said to be still valid. The Reserve Board, as the actual Government agency most in touch with credit matters, received reports from a meeting of the directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank. This report, it was said, showed no change in the situation there.

LEATHER AND GLASS MADE FROM OILS

Things Not Yet Seen Predicted From Extracts of Future Petroleum.

EBONY PANELS ALSO

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A new romance of "black gold," the petroleum from the world's great oil wells, is about to begin.

That is the opinion of an eminent American chemist, Dr. James F. Norris director of the research laboratory of organic chemistry of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Professor Norris sees in recent chemical developments the production of substances that laymen have not even dreamed of as associated with petroleum.

"When some of the chemicals which we have been burning up in gasoline are properly treated," he says, "we shall have an improved fuel giving more miles per gallon, and with it substances that will make not only added wealth, but articles of use, comfort and even beauty.

"We do not yet know fully what petroleum is. We have a long list of the substances that exist in petroleum, but know little about their proportions, methods of extraction and uses. We know something of the high values they possess, and we are making the beginnings of their extraction.

"We know, for example, that anesthetics can be prepared from petroleum, and we have reason to believe that they may have none of the bad after effects of chloroform and ether.

"There are chemicals in oil that, when extracted, can be converted into the compounds used to make artificial leather not only more durable, but to keep it soft and pliable; and other compounds that will help to make a crystal clear glass, with virtually no danger of breaking; and still others to produce panels that resemble polished ebony."

Drug Habit Cured By Suggestion

German to Open Sanatorium for Treatment of Dope Victims.

Halle, Germany, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A sanatorium for the cure of dope fiends within six weeks will be opened shortly in Moessalitz Castle, between Halle and Leipzig, by Dr. Fritz Meyer, who for twelve years was himself addicted to morphine.

Dr. Meyer, after fifteen unsuccessful courses of treatment, claims to have been finally cured by psychoanalysis. He will treat his dope patients according to a method gleaned from his personal experiences, which he is convinced will enable him to perfect cures in at least one-fourth of the time required by other institutes.

The cure is introduced with the immediate suppression of the accustomed narcotic. During the first few days the patient is kept by a soporific in a state of trance to enable him to overcome the nervous effects of the abstention from his habitual drug. Then follows the actual treatment, consisting of psychoanalytical suggestions leading to the disclosure of the patient's inner life back to his childhood with the object of creating in him an entirely new initiative and will power.

Hen's Resistance Power Low in Laying Season

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 29 (A.P.). The modern matron presiding over the hen house seldom recovers from a disease, particularly if she becomes ill while at her hardest work, officials of Michigan State College indicate in mortality report covering six years' study. In the last six years 1,601 disease cases have been reported among hens in the International Egg-laying contest, and 1,445 birds have been listed in the obituary columns.

Of this number, 500 died in March, April and May, the period of greatest egg production. The death rate is so high at this period of the year that officials believe it is safe to say that disease-resisting powers of the hen are lowered at the time when she is doing her greatest work.

PAYMASTER YIELDS $48,500 OF FUNDS

Accused Lieutenant Shows Navy Officials Cache of Hidden Loot.

$6,100 IS STILL MISSING

Buried at a shallow depth in a chicken yard on the grounds of the District Home for the Aged and Infirm, at Blue Plains, D. C., $47,000 in cash—the major portion of the $54,600 which Lieut. Charles Musil, Navy paymaster at Charleston, S. C., is charged with embezzling—has been recovered, the Navy Department announced yesterday.

Led by the paymaster, who voluntarily surrendered himself to naval authorities at New York on October 14, investigators visited the paupers' farm at night and after a little digging with pick and shovel uncovered a small tin box containing the fortune at the exact spot indicated by Lieut. Musil.

The arrested naval officer was brought to Washington Friday and has been held practically incommunicado at the Navy Yard pending a court-martial on charges now being prepared. Only his attorney and parents have been permitted to interview him. Lieut. Musil, who is 36 years old and a native of Illinois, has many friends in this city, having served as a member of the board of survey, appraisal and sale at the Washington Navy Yard in 1925 and 1926. He enlisted in the Navy twenty years ago, and, rising from the ranks, was commissioned in 1921.

Leave of Absence Obtained.

At the time of his disappearance Musil was paymaster for destroyer division No. 40, and was stationed on the U. S. S. Filmer at Charleston. On September 28 he obtained a leave of absence of two days, and failed to report back for duty. It was then revealed that he had absconded with $54,600 and search was immediately instituted for him.

It proved futile, however, and it was not until the officer walked aboard the U. S. S. Seattle, the receiving ship in New York City, and sought out Capt. C. T. Owens, to whom he surrendered, that officials had any idea of his whereabouts.

The Navy dragnet for the missing man had extended to the four corners of the world.

Hidden Wealth Confessed.

Upon his surrender, Musil handed over $1,500 in cash to Capt. Owens, which he insisted was all he had left of his loot. On being closely questioned by naval investigators, however, Musil is said to have agreed to disclose the money's hiding place if he were returned to Washington. Hardly believing his story, the authorities nevertheless consented, and were rewarded by being led directly to the cache. The $6,100, which is still missing, is said by Musil to have been lost in Canada, where he spent some time after his disappearance. In what manner it was lost, however, remains a mystery to those investigating.

Authorities have established that Lieut. Musil came directly to Washington after obtaining his leave of absence, and maintaining his visit secret from even his closest friends, went to the paupers' farm at night and buried his treasure. He then immediately left the city and visited Chicago and Detroit before going to Canada. He is understood to have a wife and 9-year-old son in New York.

Because of Lieut. Musil's great despondency, officials at the navy yard are taking every precaution to prevent him from making any attempt to take his life. He is guarded constantly.

OPENING OF PARLIAMENT.

The seventh Parliament of King George V opened yesterday with the political truce at an end and under circumstances which will soon provide a test for Ramsay MacDonald and his Labor government. Developments in the House of Commons will be followed with marked interest, especially by the people of the United States.

Mr. MacDonald is en route home and is due to reach London on Friday. His honeymoon period is over, and it is an open secret that he hopes to exploit his visits to Washington and Ottawa in order to divert attention from the serious practical difficulties which confront him at home. He is unable to present tangible evidence of an Anglo-American entente, and it will be interesting to note whether he will take pains to disabuse the minds of Englishmen who believe that some kind of an entente has been formed.

The Canadian visit of Mr. MacDonald proved to be somewhat embarrassing. Not much has been reported concerning the events which took place in Canada, but it is known that Mr. MacDonald wounded the sensibilities of French Canadians and was made a target of criticism in the press and the pulpits as a result of his speech in Ottawa. It also develops that he refused to withdraw statements which the French Canadians resented. The outcome was that Mr. MacDonald left Canada in an atmosphere of coolness, and without the farewell expression to America which was to be a feature of his trip. Some of the unfortunate incidents of the Canadian visit were cabled to the London newspapers, and the British correspondents have taken the precaution of warning their readers against unjustified interpretations of the prime minister's talk with President Hoover.

The Labor premier may find it difficult to divert attention from the domestic issues that demand attention. The unemployment problem, which has reached unprecedented proportions, the problem of getting more money without increasing taxes, the problem of coddling union labor while sponsoring a trades union act which forbids general and sympathetic strikes, the problem of cultivating friendship with the Soviet while not insisting upon effective guarantees against Communist propaganda, are all major questions. Unless Mr. MacDonald can show that a special arrangement has been made with the United States, he will have strong opposition in any attempt to weaken the British navy.

There are 615 members of the House of Commons. Labor has 290, the Conservatives have 260, the Liberals have 57, and 8 are scattered among other political groups. Mr. MacDonald must have support from Conservatives and Liberals in order to remain in power. The tendency is to give him a fair chance. But if it should appear that the realities of the situation do not square with the theories which Mr. MacDonald conjured up in his preelection speeches his tenure of office will be brief.

THEODORE E. BURTON.

When Theodore E. Burton first came to the House, 40 years ago, he found a wide open pork barrel into which congressmen were wont to dip their fingers, withdrawing them dripping with funds for postoffices, river and harbor works and handsome Government structures. To his everlasting credit it may be said that he was largely responsible for destroying the pork barrel and substituting therefor the orderly, coordinated development of Government projects. This was perhaps his greatest achievement. His monument is embodied in the canalized Ohio River that was dedicated last week, and the impress of his farsightedness will be contained in the comprehensive waterways development project sponsored by President Hoover.

Senator Burton's career was most unusual. Elected to the House in 1888, he served ten consecutive terms and was then elected to the Senate. In 1915 he retired. In 1921 he was returned to the House, serving from the Sixty-seventh through the Seventieth Congress, ending his career of 24 years in the House to take his seat again in the Senate. In 1912 he placed the name of William Howard Taft before the Chicago convention. Mr. Burton delivered the keynote address at the Cleveland convention which nominated Mr. Coolidge, and last year he captained the Hoover forces in the bitter preconvention battle in Ohio.

Senator Burton was able, fearless, untiring and conscientious. His place will not easily be filled.

TARIFF'S DARK DAY.

Senator Reed's statement that the tariff bill is dead and all the effort spent on it wasted amounts to an admission that Congress is incapable of passing a tariff law. He believes that the bill will leave the Senate in such form that its defeat by the House is certain. He places the blame for this state of affairs exactly where it belongs—on the insurgent bloc from the agricultural States of the Middle West.

The situation as outlined by Senator Reed is certainly not encouraging. If his prediction is fulfilled, there will be no tariff revision and one of the principal objectives of the Hoover administration will have been forsaken. If Congress is incapable of passing a tariff bill now, there will be little or no chance of tariff revision throughout the current presidential term, particularly if the Republican party does not hold all of its gains of 1928 in the 1930 congressional election.

This situation is not taken into consideration by those who talk glibly of abandoning the present bill. They would sacrifice agriculture and industry alike. Any comprehensive view of the situation leads to the conclusion that Congress must enact a bill in the regular session. Not a single group in the Senate or the House can afford to have the measure fail. The regularity with which the Democratic-insurgent coalition has been forcing its amendments through the Senate is certainly discouraging to the finance committee. But a day of reckoning is coming. Practically every senator wants protection for some product of his home State, and the insurgents are so anxious for higher farm duties that they can not hold out against needed revision of industrial schedules.

A statement just issued by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics shows that agricultural imports into the United States for the fiscal year 1929 were valued at $2,178,000,000. About one-half of these products are competing with the output of American farms. Agricultural relief can not be effective under such conditions. The need for higher protection against imported crops is imperative, and it can only be secured along with relief for industries which are suffering from undue foreign competition.

It is time for the Senate to get down to a practical view of the situation. The interests of all demand revision in line with the preliminary recommendations of President Hoover. It is apparent that the agricultural bloc holds a balance of power which will enable it to wreck the bill—at the cost of agricultural protection. But the insurgents are not willing to pay that price. Just now the coalition is intoxicated with a few temporary victories and is likely to go to extremes. But when the bill goes to conference compromises are inevitable, and the general result may be limited revision.

THE TEST OF FARM RELIEF.

The Farm Board has announced that it is prepared, if necessary, to lend the $100,000,000 it now has at its disposal to aid in the more orderly marketing of the cotton crop. The situation in respect to cotton, which led to the decision, is outlined in the following paragraph of the announcement:

> The total supply of American cotton is less than last year. Consumption continues at a world rate equal to that of last year, unfilled orders and actual sales of cotton goods are more and stocks are smaller than last year, yet the price of the raw product is less. The board believes that this unsatisfactory price level is chiefly due to the open fall weather which, in most of the Southern States, has led to exceptionally rapid marketing by producers in amounts much greater than the markets of the world can temporarily absorb. This, in turn, has led to lack of confidence in cotton values.

The situation is one that should lend itself to solution along the lines contemplated by the Farm Board. Apparently the situation is made to order for the purpose of testing what can be accomplished by improving a marketing machine. In every cotton State there is a cotton cooperative, membership in which is open to all producers. These cooperatives are equipped to market cotton in orderly fashion throughout the year. Since depression in price seems to have been brought about not by the production of a surplus but rather by the dumping of cotton too quickly in the world market, there is every reason to believe that by making funds available for carrying over the crop, a price improvement will result.

In carrying out this program the first conclusive test of the practicability of farm relief, as adopted, will be precipitated. The board proposes to advance sums sufficient to bring the total borrowed from all sources to 16 cents per pound, less proper reductions to cover freight to port concentration points. This should enable cotton farmers to get money with which to meet their current obligations while holding back their crops for the better prices that may be obtained in the future.

When the farmers suddenly find their position thus improved, what will be their reaction? The cooperatives beneficiary of the Farm Board loans must bring their farmer-members to realize that permanent improvement is entirely dependent upon avoidance of an unwieldy surplus. If, as seems not unlikely, the Farm Board should succeed in stabilizing and improving prices there may develop forthwith a movement to expand acreage which, if not nipped in the bud, may deluge the market with cotton. The working out of this first comprehensive effort to stabilize a marketing machine will bear close watching. It has a fundamentally important bearing on the entire project of farm relief.

ARABS BENT ON TROUBLE.

Racial hostility in Palestine which led to the recent massacres are more deep seated than is generally supposed. Before and since those outbreaks the Jews have declared their willingness to live at peace with the Arabs, but the Arabs have no such inclinations toward the Jews. They resent the migration of Jewish people to Palestine and are determined to continue active opposition to the movement.

A concerted movement against the British Zionist policy and the aspirations of the Jews to make Palestine a national homeland was launched by an all-Arab congress at Jerusalem last week. The congress was called to formulate a national Arab policy with respect to the Holy Land and was attended by 800 delegates from Transjordania, Syria, Iraq, Egypt and Palestine. In the name of the Arab race the congress sent a delegation to inform the British inquiry commission that Palestine can not have peace until the Balfour declaration setting aside that land as a home for the Jews is abolished.

Apparently the Arabs are ready to back up their ultimatum with action. The congress asks the government to withdraw its new regulations at the wailing wall and will try to remove the articles placed there by the Jews if the request is refused. At the close of the congress the entire delegation gave a pledge to boycott all merchandise of the Jews and to use every effort to compel other Arabs to do likewise. Resolutions demanded that immigration of Jews to Palestine cease and that no more land be sold to them. Correspondents in Jerusalem report that pickets are on the streets of cities throughout the Holy Land to prevent Arabs from entering into any commercial dealings with Jews. When these pickets catch a countryman entering a Jewish store they fall upon him, destroy the merchandise he has purchased and force him back into the store to ask for return of his money. When the merchant refuses this unusual request his store is in danger of damage.

Fighting Jewish migrations has become a racial issue with the Arabs. They have ambitions of their own with respect to Palestine and they will not be easily thwarted. New outbreaks may be expected. Apparently the incident at the wailing wall were only the initiation of a long and determined fight to break up the Zionist movement.

FAMOUS CLOCKS

From the New York Times.

Clocks, man's indispensable aid in his daily joust with time, have a world all their own. Even as we have ordinary people and those that enjoy the spotlight of fame, so does the clock world have ordinary timepieces and huge and unique ones that bask in the limelight. Size seems to determine importance in the clock universe, for the biggest ones are usually the best known.

In the matter of large clocks the United States leads the world. The Old World may have the odd patriarchs of the time-teller's universe, but the huge ones are in this country. The largest in the world, the Colgate clock, is atop the Colgate Building in Jersey City. Its 38-foot dial faces New York City and is clearly discernible for a considerable distance along the west side of Manhattan and in parts of Brooklyn. The entire clock weighs 6 tons and has a minute hand 20 feet long. Illumination at night adds to its usefulness and lengthens the distance of visibility, the face and hands being outlined with red and white electric bulbs.

While this country holds the four largest clocks in the world, Europe has many large and unique ones. Probably the most famous of the Old World's timepieces is London's Big Ben, which has been serving man since its installation in 1860. It has four 23-foot dials and is fifth in size, coming close behind that atop the city hall in Philadelphia.

Big Ben's dial has figures 2 feet high and the minute hands are 14 feet long, weighing more than 200 pounds each. The hour hands are 9 feet long, and much heavier. The pendulum weighs 700 pounds, while Big Ben's bell weighs 13 tons. It has been a faithful and accurate servant and its deviations from exactness are minute fractions of a second, according to the bi-daily check-ups with Greenwich Observatory.

London possesses one of the oddities of the timepiece world in the Gog and Magog clock. This decorates the front of Sir John Bennett's clock shop. Gog and Magog, London's legendary giants, are gilded figures that attract many observers when they are striking the hour with their hammers.

One of the most unusual of the world's time-tellers is in Stettin, Germany. It has a large and terrifying face of a bearded man in the center of the dial, who every second rolls his eyes from side to side in the manner of the mythical bogy man. In his mouth he holds a metal plate telling the day of the month, making in all a grotesque picture. It bears the inscription of 1736.

Still another of the world's oddities is claimed by Germany in the Zodiac clock at Munich, placed at the entrance to the Church of St. Anna 300 years ago. In addition to the ordinary face and hands of a clock, this one has the signs of the Zodiac on the outer edge. The figures as well as the numbers had to be hand carved on the solid copper plate that forms the dial. The Zodiac clock has not only kept time faithfully, but has indicated the sun's position.

An unusual piece of workmanship is Bohemia's glass clock. It required several years of painstaking labor for Joseph Thayer, a glass worker of that country, to make this clock entirely of glass, even to the tiniest screw.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

MOTHERS.

She wondered why her mother thought
So much of words like "must" and "ought,"
And why she held so oft in view
The things which proper people do,
And why she gave so much advice
About the art of being nice.

It seemed to her that motherhood
Gave too much thought to being good;
Somehow she could not understand
The reason for the guiding hand;
Nor could she ever quite make out
Just what her mother was about.

Vaguely she sensed her mother had
Ideas of what is good and bad,
But youth and age are seldom found
Meeting upon a common ground
And all that talk of being good
Was speech she never understood.

The reason for it now is known,
She has a baby of her own,
And strangely now her every thought
Is built round words like "must" and "ought."
Now oft from her this phrase we hear:
"I want you to be nice, my dear."

Where There Is No Law, There Are None But Tooth-and-Claw Rights

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN a man who has money and business ability hires ten men who have mechanical skill and establishes a factory he is called an employer and the ten are called employes, but their relationship is that of partners.

The owner of the machinery and the skilled workers are equally essential to one another. Each does his part to make a profit and the profit is divided.

When the factory product wins a market the business is worth much more than the value of the plant alone. The product's reputation has money value. And at least a portion of this value is created by the skill of the workers.

If this is true—and the truth of it is obvious—then it should be equally obvious that the worker's partnership in the business his skill helped to create is equal to any other property right.

His job is property, just as the physician's established practice and the value of a trade name are property. His skill and industry helped to establish the business and thus make the job permanent and profitable. It is his job. It is his vested right.

But when our ten workers and their employer disagree concerning the division of profits, as partners frequently do, and the workers walk out and leave their machines idle pending a settlement of the dispute the employer promptly hires other men to keep the factory running.

Then begins the tragedy of modern industrialism. The workers, whose fault is a desire to get a larger share of the partnership profits, stand outside in idleness and see their jobs—their property—taken by strangers.

They are naturally resentful. They try to protect their property. And if in their helpless desperation they show any inclination to employ force State troops are called out to suppress them. They are warned that public sympathy will turn against them unless they remain orderly and defend their property by argument alone.

"Keep within the law," the press advises.

Alas! There is no law.

In this law-ridden land, where there are statutes to regulate the details of private life and solve every problem, real or imaginary, there is no law to define or protect the ownership of a job, or one to which the worker can appeal when his partnership right is taken by an alien.

Is it any wonder that strikers use force against strikebreakers? Wrong? Of course it is wrong. All violence is wrong.

But where are the men who will not use violence to protect their property and rights when the law makes no effort to protect them?

Our industrial problems still are entrusted to chance and passion and force. Anarchy rules. It is dog eat dog and let the weaker perish. Law stands aside and takes no part, except as it is swayed by some local prejudice.

Surely it is time to civilize and legalize industry! Surely the law, which is majority will, should not leave to jungle combat the industrial problems that vitally affect the whole people!

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PAPER PROFITS (BEFORE AND AFTER).

He—Of course, if you prefer a five-passenger, all right, but I think a seven is the thing. It costs quite a bit more, but what's the difference. I don't think I'll trade in the old car. Why not keep it? We can build a larger garage.

She (laguidly)—We really should have room for three cars in case of visitors.

He—Incidentally, dear, I am thinking of buying the Meevich place * * * 160 acres with a fifteen-room house and a garage as big as the average home. I talked with the agent about it today.

(AFTER.)

He (desperately)—Where can we dig up $500?

She—I haven't the slightest idea.

He—I've got to get it somewhere. Couldn't we sell the player-piano?

She—We only just bought it.

He—I know, but I'm in a terrible position. What about the guy that wanted to buy the old car?

She—You mean the butcher?

He—Yes. Get him on the wire. He can have it for $300 cash. I'm going to phone the dealer and stop delivery on the new one.

She—The wire's busy. What did you ever get all mixed up in the stock market for, anyhow?

He (flying off the handle)—Now don't pull that stuff. Who kept gloating over our paper profits all summer? Who got me to buy Affiliated Prune Fork at 87? Who urged me to hang on a little longer when I had $5,000 in National Pretzel Bending? Who * * *

She—Oh, stop hoo-hooing me!

He—Didn't you get me to buy North American Buggy Whip on the tip you got at that bridge party?

She—Didn't you have any mind of your own? Are you a minor or something?

He—How about that Eastern Pie Plate stock? What did you say when I wanted to get out of it six months ago?

She—I didn't say a word. I always told you not to fool around the market.

He (fiercely)—You stood right there by the radiator and told me Mrs. Minnix's husband had said it was good for $300 a share.

She—There you go playing the baby act. You're a full-grown man. You should've known what you were doing. We had no business in the stock market, anyhow. I always said so.

He—I suppose you never wanted me to buy a single stock, eh?

She—I certainly didn't. I always knew there'd be a crash.

He—Now listen, woman. I gotta get $500 quick. How about those jewels?

She (evasively)—What jewels?

He—The ones I bought last month for your birthday.

She (clearly alarmed)—They're over at my mother's.

He—I'm in danger of being wiped out, I tell you. How about that $1,000 I put in the bank in your name? You'll have to let me have it.

She—I can't.

He—I tell you you must. Unless I get * * *

She (bursting into tears)—Oh, there's no use lying to you. I haven't any jewels and I haven't the $1,000.

He (dazed)—What did you do with them?

She (through her sobs)—I got a good tip on an oil stock from Mrs. Poodle and I bought it with the idea of surprising you. * * *

He (swooning)—Gurgle-gurgle-glug-glug.

FOOTBALL NOTATION.

No speed can thrill
Me more, forsooth—
I've seen that flash

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Something About the Brannins, Known to the Hill Folks as "Branhams."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The article in The Sunday Post on the early inhabitants of the Upper Rapidan region was very interesting, and, I believe, pretty accurate. The story of "Mr. Branham, of Norfolk," and his wife, is, however, subject to a slight correction. The name of the gentleman in question was Brannin, and, so far as his descendants know, he was never connected with Norfolk. Fielding Brannin was a native of Fauquier County, and spent most of his life (when not on the mountain farm) about a mile from his birthplace, on the opposite side of the Rappahannock, in Culpeper. The mountain farm was sold about 60 years ago to Decatur Miller, and is, if I am not mistaken, still in the possession of that family.

The error in spelling is quite pardonable. The simple folk in Virginia have a way of Anglicizing the pronunciation of all names, the most famous authenticated example being Enroughty called Darby; I have heard a thousand times the pronunciation of my name as indicated by the spelling in your article, and, indeed, the names of John and Daniel, the father and grandfather of Fielding Brannin, are actually carried on the rosters of the Revolutionary War as "Branham." It is interesting to know that this folk-habit still persists in the mountains. It is also interesting to know that the memory of my great-grandfather, whom I barely remember in his extreme old age, now nearly 50 years ago, still lingers in the abiding traditionalism of the hills. I am sure it is equally interesting to others of his descendants, very many of whom are now Washingtonians.

JAMES BRANNIN.

Stock Slump May Indirectly Hurt Business by Causing Defaults on Installment Buying.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The market has been well shaken down and a turn upward may be expected. It will not be a headlong rise, because too many individuals have been hurt by the crash. What I fear is that business may suffer because of the defaults of installment buyers who have been fooling with stocks on margin. There must be tens of thousands of such losers. They may pass their hardship along to those who sold them goods on installment. This would create a backwater, running to manufacturers and then to banks.

Tariff revision had nothing to do with the stock slump. The public gave up hope of decent tariff revision some weeks ago. It would be better now to kill the bill without waiting for President Hoovert to veto it. The House probably cannot force the Senate coalition to yield on some of the worst amendments, and while other features of the bill would be improved in conference, the remaining objectionable features would compel a veto. Therefore the regular Republicans should close the performance, before the regular session.

The existing law would then remain, and it is pretty good. It has brought prosperity to all except the farmers, and they are to be taken care of otherwise. OBSERVER.

Flying a Pretty Costly Means of Traveling.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The aviation industry is reported to be disappointed in that the American people have not taken up flying as a sporting proposition. Production schedules were stepped up to meet a demand that failed to materialize and the manufacturers are left holding the bag. Why have not the people taken up flying?

An airplane, of course, is not as easy to operate as, say, an automobile, but this is only a partial explanation. Figures recently released by the Department of Commerce are significant. The department quotes an executive of an aircraft company to the effect that a three-place open biplane can be operated for about 10 cents per mile. On first glance it would appear that the airplane affords transportation at no greater expense than the automobile. But when one considers that an airplane must be flown at least 60 or 70 miles an hour all the time, it becomes apparent that flying is expensive. How many can afford to spend $24 to $30 for an afternoon's sport?

Probably progress will be made toward reducing the high cost of high flying. Until this is done, the American people can not afford to take to the air for pleasure. SAPIENS.

Federal Reserve Now Seen to Have Acted Wisely in Anticipation of Stock Crash.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It strikes me that a kind word now may be said for the Federal Reserve Board. As far back as six months ago the board gave warning that the securities markets had reached a position when severe reactions could be expected, and it followed its warning by raising the rediscount rate. This step met with severe criticism, but it enabled the banks to strengthen their position until, when the smash-up materialized, they were able to "throw support into the market." The board did not precipitate the bear movement. It anticipated it and, fortunately, it had the courage to go through with an unpopular program that probably was the main factor in preventing a genuine panic. JAMES MISSEL.

Turkish Envoy Fetes Jubilee Of His Nation

By JEAN ELIOT.

ENTERTAINING to celebrate the anniversary of the birth of the Turkish republic, the Ambassador of Turkey, Ahmed Mouhtar Bey, was host yesterday afternoon at a brilliant reception, several hundred guests from Washington's diplomatic and politico-social groups assembling to do honor to the occasion.

The drawing rooms of the spacious embassy at 1708 Massachusetts avenue, were gay with great baskets of autumn flowers chrysanthemums and gigantic dahlias in shades of gold and rose and mauve, which blended in happy fashion with the rich shades of the gowns of the women present. In the dining room a long flower-decked buffet table was laid, with coffee at one end, tea at the other and all manner of good things in between; and in one of the smaller drawing rooms a punch bowl served as another focal point for animated groups of guests.

Mme. Bedi Bey, wife of the counselor of the embassy, received with the ambassador, the members of the embassy staff assisting in dispensing hospitality.

Mrs. Edward Gann Is Among Guests.

Arriving somewhat belatedly at the party, the first person I saw was Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of the Vice President who was just taking her leave accompanied by Mrs. Harold Smoot. The Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson were also early arrivals and Mrs. Taft, wife of the Chief Justice, was among those who lingered for some time chatting with groups of friends.

The Diplomatic Corps was, of course, well represented at the fete. The Ambassador of Italy, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, was present, as were the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Ferrara, the Ambassador of Chile and Senora de Davila, Dr. Varela, Minister of Uruguay, with his pretty daughter, Senorita Adele Varela, and the Minister of Finland, Mr. Astrom. Others glimpsed among the diplomatic contingent were the Minister of Poland and Mme. Filipowicz, the Minister of Bulgaria and Mme. Radeff, the Minister of Persia, Mirza Davoud Khan Meftah, Capt. Enrico Prieto, military attache of the Cuban Embassy, with Senora de Prieto and her debutante daughter, Senorita Lucia Tessada-Guzman; Dr. and Senora de Baron, also of the Cuban Embassy; Dr. and Mme. Peregrin Fisa, of the Czechoslovakian Legation; Mr. van Hoorn, of the Netherlands Legation; Mr. Walter Rufenacht, of the Swiss Legation, and Prince Firouz, of the Persian Legation.

A survey of the ladies present at this, one of the earliest receptions of the season, confirmed the theory that the lengthened skirt, so long heralded, is here at last for afternoon as well as evening wear. And the gamut was run in the new modes for smart millinery. Perhaps the most striking costume noted was worn by Mrs. Karl Klemm, a slim straight black frock, breathing Paris in every line, with a long narrow stole of ermine by way of a collar, and she topped this off with a white feather hat so closely fitting that it gave the effect of a bobbed white wig. Mrs. Glen Stewart, also in black, wore a helmet of black which concealed every strand of her hair but which flared most becomingly from the face.

Mrs. Gann also sponsored black in gown, hat and furred wrap, and Mrs. Taft had chosen one of the rich new Bergundy shades of velvet, with a matching hat and a scarf of sable to complete her costume.

Mrs. Bloom Wears Gown of Burgundy.

Mrs. Sol Bloom's gown, worn with a soleil hat evidently designed "to match," was also of a Burgundy tone, and Miss Vera Bloom had chosen a harmonizing shade of deep red for her ensemble, with its relieving gray fur, and her hat. Miss Laura Tuckerman, one of the handsomest of this season's group of debutantes, who was present with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, was in a rich shade of Green, her gown long in line and her hat turned up sharply from her face.

The Senate had representation at the fete, among those noted being Senator and Mrs. Tasker Oddie, Senator Thomas J. Walsh and Senator William J. King. Others present were Commissioner and Mrs. Proctor Dougherty, Commissioner and Mrs. Sidney Tallaferro, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor, Mrs. Charles B. Drake, Miss Barrine Drake, Mrs. Peyton Gordon, Col. and Mrs. George Thorpe, with their daughter, Miss Betty Thorpe; Mrs. Morris Evans, Miss Meta Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Sanders, Dr. and Mme. Panaretoff, Capt. and Mrs. John P. Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tate, Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, Miss Elizabeth Dunlop, Commander F. L. Sandoz and Col. Wade Cooper.

Several of the guests present, among them Mrs. Robert Imbrie, wore the Red Crescent, emblem of the Turkish Red Cross, earned when they were doing relief work in Constantinople, Mr. Arthur D. Condon, who was on duty in Constantinople while in the Navy, and Mrs. Condon were also in the company.

44 Guests Invited For Supper Fete.

In the evening the Turkish Ambassador was host in a rather more personal way, entertaining 44 guests at supper.

This company included the Minister of Persia, the Minister of Albania, Mr. Konitza; the Minister of Lithuania, Mr. Balutis; Dr. Mikas Bagdonas, of the Lithuanian Legation; Senor and Senora de la Barra, of the Bolivian Legation; Mr. Walter Rufenacht, of the Swiss Legation; Mr. and Mrs. George Farnum, Mr. and Mrs. John Childress and Miss Adair Childress, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ash, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Grosner, Mr. and Mrs. Kellams, Mr. and Mrs. Kerlin, Mrs. Elvina Rowe, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Cahill and her sister, Miss Gorman; Mrs. John D. Burnett, Miss Elizabeth Hume, Miss Evelyn Gordon, Miss Dorothea Lane, Mr. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Tate and the staff of the embassy.

COMPROMISE ENDS MILKMEN'S STRIKE

DELIVERIES START AGAIN

Kansas City, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A milk strike which has been characterized by sabotage, threats and the arrest of dairymen who used violence in an attempt to achieve their object, ended here today when producers and distributors agreed to a compromise offered by a Chamber of Commerce arbitration committee.

Regular milk deliveries to pasteurization plants at the old wholesale price began tonight. For more than three weeks the milk distributors have been hauling milk to Kansas City from distant points in tank cars.

A production cost fact-finding investigation was promised by the arbitration committee. It also was agreed that Dr. Clyde Kino, milk economist from Pennsylvania, would be invited to make a survey of the situation.

An arbitration committee of nine persons, according to terms of the pact, then will be named to study the results of the investigation. This committee will make price recommendations which the warring factions have agreed to accept.

Settlement of the strike came with unexpected suddenness. The Chamber of Commerce committee this morning began a hearing with five representatives each from the Kansas City pasteurization plants and the Milk Producers' Association of Greater Kansas City. A few hours later the end of the strike was announced.

Demands of the producers at various times have included an increased price of 6 cents a gallon for milk, more liberal grading requirements and representation in the grading rooms of the various distributors.

Thousands of gallons of milk were dumped from motor trucks by bands of farmers during the strike. Some protection was accorded the collecting trucks by sheriff's deputies, but only four arrests were made. Cases against these men were dismissed today in justice court when a truck driver, alleged assault victim, did not appear to prosecute.

8 Singers Tonight Try For Finals

Youth and Girl Will Be Selected to Go to New York to Compete for Musical Scholarships. To Be Heard on WRC.

This evening at 6 o'clock radio listeners in Washington will have opportunity to near and advance one step further toward a share of $25,000 cash and a musical scholarship a young man and a young woman singer of the Nation's Capital. The finals of the Third National Radio Audition for the District of Columbia will be broadcast from WRC beginning at 6 o'clock and for an hour the voices of eight young singers selected as finalists will alternate on the air. These are Florence Yocum, Irma Briggs, Maxine Snavely and Helen Dalby and Thomas N. Leef, Giuseppe Bruno, J. Donald Thomas and Gilbert Fraser.

The eight young people were selected last week from among 49 singers who presented themselves at the preliminary trials. They were adjudged to have the best voices of the 49 and worthy to be the finalists of the Nation's Capital. The selection of the two best voices rests largely with the audience that will hear them tonight, for the vote of the audience will count 60 per cent in the final decision. The singers will be identified to the radio audience and to the board of professional judges, whose opinion will be worth 40 per cent in the final judgment, only by number. Each will sing two songs and each has been given a wide latitude as to what those songs shall be, save that they are each directed to have four songs they can sing well and the committee will select from the four the two to be used in the audition.

The two singers selected by this evening's popular audition will be certified as District of Columbia winners and as such will go to New York City November 20 as the guests of the Atwater Kent Foundation, donor of the prizes and sponsor of the nation-wide competition. In New York they will compete with singers from the Atlantic and New England States for places as national finalists. The national finalists will be ten in number and will be heard through a nation-wide network of broadcasting stations Sunday evening, December 15.

A march transcription of the music to Kipling's poem, "On the Road to Mandalay" will be sung by the ensemble to introduce the Palmolive Hour at 9:30 o'clock from WRC. Olive Palmer, soprano, and Paul Oliver, tenor, form a duet to sing two duets. Miss Palmer will sing "Le Maulin" and "My Little Nest," while Mr. Oliver has chosen "Last of Romance" and "A Garden in the Rain." The Revelers will harmonize in several selections, including "Blondy."

Elizabeth Lennox, contralto, will be guest artist on an all-Dvorak program which will be heard when Erno Rapee's Mobiloil concert is broadcast at 8 o'clock.

A potpourri from the gay nineties, played by the Happy Wonder Bakers and featuring as guest artist, Charles K. Harris, composer of "After the Ball" and other ballads, will be heard from WRC at 8:30 o'clock. Dance tunes will be interspersed with the football songs of Princeton and Chicago, Georgia Tech and Notre Dame when the Troubadours broadcast at 9 o'clock.

The Lener String Quartet of Budapest will give a program of chamber music to be broadcast by NAA at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon from the auditorium of the Library of Congress. The program includes selections from Mozart, Haydn, and Schubert.

"A Witch of Salem," the American opera by Charles Wakefield Cadman, will be sung by the National Grand Opera Co., at 10:30 o'clock tonight through WEAF; but not WRC.

Saint-Saens' descriptive symphonic poem, "The Spinning Wheel," which was originally written as a rondo for piano, will be played by a full symphony orchestra under the direction of Howard Barlow during the Voice of Columbia program from WMAL at 8 o'clock. Also to be heard on this program are the overture to Offenbach's "Orpheus," Ellenberg's "Mill in the Forest," and as a trumpet solo with a mixed quartet, the "Inflammatus" from Rossini's "Stabat Mater."

"A Broken Home," a four-act comedy-drama from the pen of Phil Maher, will be presented by Hank Simmons' Show Boat from WMAL at 11 o'clock.

"A Halloween Musical Party" will be conducted by Stanley Bell and Les Colvin from WMAL between midnight and 1 o'clock.

Station WOL will offer two hours of dance music, beginning at 10 o'clock. The Edith Reed Entertainers and a Red Cross program will precede the regular 7 o'clock program of dinner music.

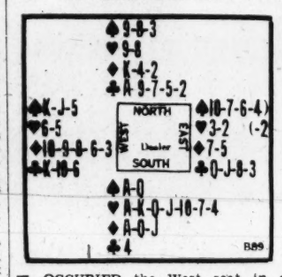
WORK ON BRIDGE

Aid From Adversaries.



I OCCUPIED the West seat in a game of Contract last summer in which the above cards were held. South started by bidding four Hearts. Of course I passed. North felt that his hand looked like a slam if South could bid four of anything, and he indicated that feeling—and also showed his Ace of Clubs—by bidding five Clubs. East passed, and South, knowing that North had the Ace of Clubs and one other probable trick, bid six Hearts which obtained the contract.

At Auction Bridge, South would be so strong that he need not bid more than one Heart. North would have denied by bidding two Clubs, and South would have ended the bidding with two Hearts.

I led a Diamond. South won, exhausted our trumps, put dummy in the lead, and finessed South's Queen of Spades. My King won the trick, and the Declarer then spread his hand, "claiming the rest," and we conceded the small slam which he had bid. The Declarer chuckled over the fine score he had made.

In what way had he aided us?

The Correct Play.

On the chance that our Clubs were divided 4-3 (as was probable and as they were), the Declarer should have tried to make up a thirteenth Club in dummy instead of risking the Spade finesse which had only a 50-50 chance of winning. His play should have been as follows:

Trick 1 should have been taken in the closed hand. Trick 2 should have been a Club, won by dummy's Ace. Trick 3, a small Club from dummy, trumped with an honor in closed hand. Trick 4, a small trump from closed hand, won in dummy; and trick 5, a third Club again ruffled with an honor in closed hand. Trick 6, a second small trump from closed hand, once more won in dummy; and trick 7, the fourth Club from dummy, trumped in closed hand. With the East and West Clubs all played, dummy's last Club would become a thirteener and dummy has the King of Diamonds with which to enter to cash it. Played that way, Declarer would take all the tricks without the Spade finesse, as he could discard his Spade Queen on dummy's last Club. If the Clubs had not been divided as they were and the thirteener could not have been established in dummy, the Spade finesse could have been tried.

Wives of Tomorrow

She Bought His Meals.

RITA learned about parasite males too late. She never knew a man could be so low until her devoted boy friend convinced her. Now Rita wants her story broadcast to the world, and we can't blame her.

"I was the only girl in a family of four boys, so you would think I would know men. But what I didn't know, I soon learned. I came here and found a job, and about six months later a boy friend. He was very neat and attractive and extremely attentive. He boarded at the same place I did, and had a radio in his room and a car. So I thought I was very lucky to have found him.

"The borrowing started about the third time we went out in the car. We stopped for gas at a little station run by an old lady, and he offered a bill which she could not change, or so he told me. He said, "Have you got any change along?" And I paid. That was on a Saturday night. The following Wednesday we went to the movies and there was a line at the window. He said, "Oh, we don't want to stand; let's go some other night." It sounded so natural I never tumbled that he was broke. He never paid me back for the gas. I thought it an oversight until one night weeks later, about midnight, he knocked on my door and asked for a quarter. He said he had forgotten for two days to leave the chambermaid's weekly tip of a quarter, and he never seemed to have a quarter when he thought about the tip. He laughed, but I began to wonder. So I offhandedly mentioned to the maid how thoughtful he was. She looked at me open-mouthed and said, "Mr. G. never spent a quarter on any one but himself in his life, miss."

"Now you may know how easy I was, that I felt only sympathy. When I saw him at dinner smiling I could only admire him, for if I had to borrow a quarter at midnight to pay next morning's car fare, I wouldn't have a smile left in my system. So I decided to have a talk with him and see what was the trouble. He had told me he loved me, and all the rest of it, so I went straight to the point.

"Well, he informed me he owed four weeks' board and so couldn't give up his room, but the place was too expensive for him, and he could never get ahead while he stayed. Then he remarked how much he wanted to "get somewhere" since meeting me. Anyway, I made the most fool offer any woman ever made. I suggested I find a kitchenette apartment and he find a small room somewhere, and I would prepare our meals. Yes, you probably are saying. "What a fool." That is just what I was. He got his breakfast at the drug store, and every night I provided dinner. After the meal he sat around talking what should be done about war, prohibition and women's clothes, and I washed pots and pans. Then ten minutes before he left he would make love to me—to pay for my time and effort!

"After a month of this I asked him how much he could pay toward the $70 I had loaned him to pay up his back board bill. He looked at me as if I were some sort of vermin, and said, "I thought you said you loved me?" I assured him it was my error and told him to take his hat. I can see him yet, sneering as he adjusted it at just the right angle. It was about a month later that our former landlady met me on the street. She asked me if I saw anything of that scamp who had just run off from her house leaving a four-weeks' board bill! You can imagine my amazement to discover he had never left the place or paid the bill. He just let me move and he stayed on in his expensive room, but took no meals, just roomed, and I furnished the meals!

"What he did with my money I do not know. I never saw him again and I hope I never again am fool to listen to any man's tale of woe. Let them get out and hustle like we girls have to, and they won't be in debt and borrowing. I can't have a radio and a car, but he had both. You, better than I, can find a fit name for the things that pass for men and take pennies from girls.

"RITA."

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

IF OCTOBER 30th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this dateare from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 2 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10:30 p. m.

An admixture of good and bad experiences are prognosticated for this date. Startling and sudden developments will take place, which if properly handled will lead to increased prosperity. Avoid casual associations!

The child born on this October 30th will be bright, humorous and excessively optimistic. It will be an enthusiastic student and worker. Although naturally kind-hearted, it will have a very sarcastic tongue under provocation.

You are very radical in your emotions, feelings and actions. You love very deeply and hate very bitterly. You play when you play and work when you work. You make very quick decisions which you act upon immediately. If you hold to your own judgment and opinions, your plans will usualy turn out with success. Unfortunately, many of your cherished desires will be wrecked through the stupidity or stubbornness of others. The sooner you live your own the better it will be for you.

You are trustworthy and dependable, and receive many confidences, although you seldom make a confidant of others. You are both energetic and courageous, and you get a great deal of enjoyment out of the overcoming of difficulties. You are a very good talker and convincing in an argument. Your tongue is your best means of defense.

You have generous impulses, but you look out for your own interests very carefully. You are ever mindful of a "rainy day" which might take you unaware. You believe in making hay while the sun shines. You never try to ape others, and you live according to your own tastes and pocketbook. You will not fall in love readily, but when you do love it will be with strength and vigor.

Successful people born October 30:

Charles A. Needham, artist.

Dare Interprets the Mode

"And the swaying eucalyptus trees clutched with curved fingers for the stars" in this lovely tea-gown. (A Dah-ray design.)

EVERY amateur designer since the world began, I'm quite sure, has borrowed from sunsets and dawns, from flowers, leaves and trees for her inspiration. Which unfortunately is far more often attempted than achieved, successfully.

'Tis true when successful the results are liable to be rather lovely. So, in a spirit of reminiscence today, I illustrated for you a teagown, which I designed and wore completely out as many as three long years ago. The curved fingers of silver eucalyptus trees swaying in misty rain inspired it, but its execution wasn't anything so simple! It finally materialized from two shades of gray indestructible chiffon voile, a flesh-colored satin slip and supple curved green velvet leaves picoted out of green velvet about the color of eucalyptus leaves.

First the satin foundation, then the green velvet leaves sewn by hand with infinite patience onto the darker shade of the gray, then all completely covered with the lighter shade of the gray, yet ending 3 inches shorter on the sleeves and several inches of irregular shortness shorter on the skirt. The whole gown ripples to the heels in the back, and is caught at the front of the waist with the design of the green velvet leaves, which curves in a downward movement.

It was worth every speck of its careful making—and don't you think it would be rather a lovely thing to make for some awfully favored person for Christmas?

Lovely ladies especially delight in them—how about the four-volume set of Edna St. Vincent Millay, or the three tiny books that comprise the "Songs From Vagabondia"—oh, there are so many lovely books that come in sets, which women like to keep near at hand for the last-minute reading before dropping off to sleep!

A favorite set, beautifully decorated to harmonize with the boudoir furnishings—that would be a gift that couldn't be bought with any money and one that you can make yourself by simply sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the leaflet that tells you how to do it.

And, sh-h-h-h-h, it tells you how to decorate little jars and vases for the lovely lady's dresser, too, as well as beautiful boxes for her gloves and hankies!

Speaking of washable gloves (yesterday we mean) it is strange how many people have such assorted luck with them. Myself, I think it's a matter of luck and a little skill. Do you wash your washable gloves in luke-warm water and always rinse them in water of the same temperature? Do you use an old toothbrush and scrub the dirt out of them while they are flat? Do you blow into them while they are wet and then lay them down on a bath towel to dry.

Oh, we almost forgot to remind you of the weekly Dare Fashion Letter in The Sunday Washington Post, we hope you're reading it each Sunday.

Edison's First Phonograph.

MOST persons have favorite pieces of music, perhaps a violin solo or a song, enjoyed when played or sung by a special artist.

Some years ago Caruso lived, and his songs charmed thousands who listened to him. Today Caruso is dead, but you may still hear his voice. It is saved on records and may be played on a photograph.

Edison's first phonograph.

The phonograph is a gift from the brain of Thomas Edison. When he was a young man—just 30 years of age—he was making efforts to improve the telegraph instrument when the idea came to him of saving the human voice on records.

"If the human voice can be made to press itself on some substance," he thought, "it can perhaps be made to come forth again."

After thinking of the idea, Edison made a sketch of the kind of machine he wanted, and gave it to John Krusel, one of his assistants. Krusel made a model, and in the test words spoken by Edison "came back." The first phonograph record is said to have recited "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

Tinfoil was at first used in making the records which caught the sound. Later, wax was used. Modern records are usually made of hard rubber.

By speaking into the horn of a phonograph, any one can make a record on a plain wax disc. When the wax hardens it will give forth the sounds again. This is an interesting thing to do, but the records are not likely to carry your voice as clearly as you would wish.

When records are made for sale, the person who speaks or sings or plays stands where his voice will cause a sharp steel point to cut into a thin film of wax which lies over a metal disc. When the record is made, an acid is placed over it. This acid eats into the metal without touching the wax. Then the wax is rubbed off and the metal record is used to press into rubber discs which are then hardened.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

LITTLE TUBS OF FAT.

THE small, yellow, raised tumor of the skin is called xanthoma.

It is likely to appear anywhere, but the favored location is the loose skin of the lowered eyelid. It is a tumor of middle life and beyond. While there may be but one, a half dozen or more is not infrequent. Xanthomas are not malignant and have no tendency to become so. They cause no pain, have no tendency to grow large enough to get in the way, they are not offensive in appearance and they call for no treatment. Then why devote any space to them? The reason is that they may throw some light on constitutional conditions.

Several years ago an investigator removed one, and, examining it chemically, found that it contained cholesterin, a substance akin to fat. Since many gall stones are made up of cholesterin, it was concluded that such tumors might be a signpost meaning "gall stones inside." Since the white ring around the pupil of some old people, called arcus senilis, is also composed of cholesterin, it was held, too, that it might point to gall stones.

Drs. Curtis, Wile and Eckstein have a different explanation of xanthomas. They find them to be rich in cholesterin, but no more so than the rest of the skin. In their opinion they are small tubs of fat and not especially different in composition from fatty tumors called lipomas.

The fat in xanthomas is pretty much the same as that just below the skin elsewhere. Their theory is that a xanthoma is merely a deposit of fat resulting from eating too much and exercising too little. They are merely a part of the obesity picture. They go a step further and tell us how to get rid of them. One can get rid of a xanthoma just as he gets rid of too much waistline, by dieting to reduce. A man may acquire a few wrinkles in starving out his xanthoma. He may not keep up his good looks. The game may not be worth the candle. If this theory proves to be correct, xanthoma may still be found to have some relation to gall stones. Both are apt to be present in the same group of individuals—fat persons over 40 years old.

You feel really safe for hours

when you depend on Kotex for sanitary protection

What a relief to know there's one pad that protects in every possible way, though worn for hours.

THERE are so many ways in which a sanitary pad should protect—and Kotex has not overlooked one.

Kotex protects you from embarrassment . . . because it is deodorized, and because its round, tapered corners keep it inconspicuous.

Absorbs more than cotton

Kotex protects delicate clothing because it is made of the most absorptive substance possible. This is Cellucotton absorbent wadding, which actually absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture! Five times more than cotton or any cotton material.

Kotex protects your comfort. And how important that is! Kotex never packs, cannot chafe. It stays soft and delicate for hours . . . because it is made of air-cooled layers of Cellucotton.

Preferred by hospitals

There's no more striking testimony to the superiority of Kotex filler than this: 85% of the leading hospitals use Kotex filler in preference to anything else! They prefer it for its wonderful absorption, and its unusual comfort.

Please read about other Kotex features at the right. You'll see that no refinement of comfort has been overlooked.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.
3—Fastidious . . . the sign of true daintiness.
4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

DEFENSE PLEA HIT AT JURIST'S TRIAL

Texan, Who Shot His Son-in-Law, Admitted Killing, Says Witness.

SECRET WEDDING SEQUEL

Weatherford, Tex., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A direct move to refute any plea of self-defense was the State's first blow at R. H. Hamilton, once a member of the commission of appeals for the Texas Supreme Court, who is on trial here for the slaying of his youthful son-in-law, Tom Walton, jr., in Amarillo.

The first witness called to the stand when the jury for the trial was completed today testified that Hamilton said, a few moments after shooting Walton, "I had rather be killed than kill a man, except where my family is involved."

The witness, Grover Hill, of Amarillo, in the cattle commission business, declared Hamilton's first words were a request for a telegraph blank. The State did not bring out Hamilton's purpose in asking for the telegraph blank.

While Walton lay face down on the floor of Hamilton's office, the father-in-law was sitting behind his desk. Hamilton showed no indication of a struggle, Hill said, and his tie and hair were in normal position.

As Hill was telling of events immediately after the shooting, Hamilton nervously moved his hands, playing with a handkerchief, pulling his upper lip or locking his fingers together. A short distance from him was his wife, while outside the courtroom, with other witnesses barred from hearing the testimony, was the daughter he had widowed, Theresa, 18 years old. Theresa took an oath to tell the truth should she be called to the witness stand. C. B. Reeder, one of the seven defense lawyers, said Theresa, her older sister, Helen, and her brother, Dexter, as well as Mrs. Hamilton, would testify.

Walton and Theresa had been secretly married in Austin, where they both attended the University of Texas and Walton had gone to Hamilton's law office in Amarillo to tell him of the marriage when the shooting occurred.

Shippers Are Indicted; Discrimination Claimed

Alabastine Co. and H. C. Hamilton, Grand Rapids, Mich.; the Armstrong Co. and Rex E. Hall, Detroit; the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and Harry Gordon and Edward Moran, its agents; the Reading Co. and J. Vincent Reardon and Clarence R. Sweney; the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. and agent, J. A. Fisher; J. H. McNicholas & Co., Nicholas H. Weltzner, A. Digger & Co., Max Woldenberg, M. M. Kroft and George H. Lerch, all of New York, and the Nelson Products Co., Chicago.

Insurance Man, Caught In Market, Shoots Self

Kansas City, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—John G. Schwitzgebel, insurance man, fired two shots into his chest at the Kansas City Club today in an attempt at suicide.

"Tell the boys I can't pay them what I owe them," he told friends who rushed to his room. A brother said he believed Schwitzgebel "had been caught in the market like others."

Studebaker cars using Amoco-Gas laugh at Baltimore's steepest hills!

President Eight Convertible Coupe reaches top of Sulgrave (North) Ave. Hill with seven passengers.

Dictator Six rounding curve on Mountain Pass. This climb was made from a standing start in high gear.

Dictator Eight approaching top of Sulgrave (North) Ave. Hill from standing start in high gear.

WHETHER you know it as North Avenue or Sulgrave Avenue--that climb in Mount Washington is just as steep. But two Studebaker stock cars--using AMOCO-GAS--made it look easy the other day. Bob Fleigh, the local Studebaker representative, sent a President 8 and a Dictator 8 to find some hills worthy of their power--and here's what happened. The President Convertible Coupe with two passengers soared over the top of North Avenue hill at 35 miles per hour. Back to the bottom and with seven passengers clinging to the sides, well over 1,000 pounds in added weight, it passed over the crest at 23 miles per hour. A Dictator 8 Sedan took the same hill from a standing start in high gear at 21 miles per hour. Then the President 8 went over to Loyola Southway and went up that steep, winding climb from a standing start in high gear, topping the summit at 18. In Druid Hill Park on Mountain Pass with a woman driver, the Dictator 6--from a standing start in high gear, reached the top at 25 miles per hour--and in another climb, making a complete turn at the fountain without shifting gears, the speedometer showed 23 miles per hour at the top. Speedometers were checked by Stewart-Warner before the tests. Newspaper men checked the accuracy of the speeds. Baltimore's most famous tests of hill-climbing ability--made to look simple by Studebaker stock cars--and AMOCO-GAS, the Original Special Motor Fuel.

DR. JOHN R. STRATON DIES AT AGE OF 54

Outstanding Fundamentalist Had Been Critically Ill More Than Month.

ENEMY OF DARWINISM

Clifton Springs, N. Y., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The Rev. John Roach Straton, one of the world's outstanding champions of fundamentalism, died here today of a heart attack, aged 54.

Dr. Straton, who as pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in New York became famous for his support of William Jennings Bryan at the Scopes trial in Dayton, Tenn., in 1925, and for his debates with William A. Brady, Broadway producer and others, had been critically ill with a nervous breakdown at a sanitarium here for more than a month. The breakdown came as he was believed to have recovered from a slight paralytic stroke he suffered last April.

Dr. Straton was for years the militant foe of Darwinism, agnosticism, in many instances the modern stage, and other features of the world of today. Two years ago he became deeply interested in Divine healing and conducted a number of services with that end in view. His ideas and his activities frequently brought him into conflict with his parishioners.

He is survived by his wife, who was at his bedside when he died, and four sons, the Rev. Hillyer H. Straton, John Charles, Warren B., and George Douglas.

LOWE RITES TOMORROW.

Funeral of Lenox School Principal to Be Held at 2:30 P. M.

Funeral services for Henry Francis Lowe, principal of the Lenox Prevocational School, who died unexpectedly Monday, will be held at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Metropolitan Presbyterian Church. Burial will be probably in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Lowe was principal of the Lenox School for more than 15 years, having come to Washington from Falls Church, Va., where he was head of the school at that place many years ago. He was an ardent advocate of vocational training. He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Hattie Lowe, and one son, Burton Lowe, of Detroit.

HOOVER TO ATTEND BURTON'S FUNERAL

o'clock when it will be taken to Union Station to be placed aboard a train leaving at 7:20 o'clock.

A delegation of senators and representatives will accompany the casket to Cleveland, where burial will take place after a service there.

Public Funeral Planned.

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Cleveland tonight was completing plans to honor one of the last requests of Senator Theodore E. Burton, that he be accorded a public funeral in his home city.

Led by City Manager William R. Hopkins, to whom Senator Burton confided his request several weeks ago, all Cleveland officialdom turned its attention toward the final tribute to the man who had served his city, State and country in official capacities for nearly his entire life.

Escorted by a special delegation of fellow senators and Ohio members of the House of Representatives, the body will arrive in Cleveland early Thursday morning.

Body Will Lie in State.

It will be taken to the city's huge public auditorium, where, under an American flag, it will lie in state until shortly after noon.

A military cortege will then move in slow procession down Euclid avenue to take the body to the Euclid Avenue Congregational Church, where services will be conducted by the Rev. Ferdinand Q. Blanchard.

Burial will be in Lake View Cemetery.

Eight Candidates Proposed.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Names of eight Ohioans were submitted by their friends today to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper as candidates for the governor's appointment of a successor to the late Senator Theodore E. Burton.

The governor anounced, however, that he will give no consideration to the selection until several days after the funeral to be held Thursday in Cleveland.

Those mentioned for the appointment were Edward W. Edwards, Cincinnati; Carmi A. Thompson, Cleveland; former Representative James T. Begg, of Sandusky; James R. Garfield, of Cleveland, son of former President Garfield; Grove C. Patterson, Toledo publisher; Roscoe C. McCullough, Canton; L. J. Tabor, National Grange master, and Arthur L. Garford, of Eyria.

Edwards Looms as Choice.

Edwards, a close personal and political friend of Gov. Cooper, is a millionaire manufacturer. Many political leaders here said Edwards probably would be the governor's choice.

However, inasmuch as Senator Burton was from the northern half of the State, it was suggested to the governor that the successor should come from there also. If the governor heeds these suggestions, political leaders said the choice probably would be between Thompson, Garfield and Patterson.

Whoever Gov. Cooper appoints to succeed Mr. Burton will serve until December 15, 1930.

In praise of Doles, Dr. Ward said:

"It was through the cleverness of Pilot Doles that a landing was made and we escaped injury. Doles ran into the storm but kept cool. He circled and searched the limited area visible and finally sighted a small clearing in some heavy timber land. He headed for this spot and brought the plane down safely.

"There was a cabin nearby which [illegible] us refuge for the night. Of course we had no way of communicating with the outside world regarding our safety."

Self-Styled Countess' Death Called Suicide

Chicago, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane," was returned today by the coroner's jury investigating the death of Mrs. Evelyn Victoria Addington Greasly self-styled English countess, whose body was found in her apartment last week. A revolver lay near the body.

The woman left a note telling her love for Policeman John Maier. He testified at the inquest that he loved Mrs. Greasly and would have married her if he could have obtained a divorce.

ANDERSON FLAYED IN POLLARD SPEECH

necessary for me to add what you yourself already know, that I would not approve any false statement concerning you. There is enough already that can truthfully be said concerning you and which furnishes ample material to discredit anything that you may say in this campaign."

"Answering your fifth question—of course, I do not approve any effort to revive race prejudice in this State. It is for that very reason that I so strongly opposed the measure advocated by you when you were a candidate for governor, to wit, the abolishment of the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting—see pages 26 and 27 of your printed address delivered before the Republican State convention July 14, 1921. It is my firm belief that no greater calamity could come to Virginia, for it would revive in its most malignant form the race question which was forced on a helpless State by the perfidy of the reconstruction measures of the Republican party.

"I believe that expediency, and expediency alone, prevented the reinsertion in the last Republican State platform of a provision abolishing the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting. I believe that if the Republican party by itself or in alliance with Dr. Brown should get control of the State government it would tear down the poll tax barriers which we have set up to protect us against the revival of race prejudice."

Byrd Attacks Brown's Record.

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Gov. Harry F. Byrd told a Norfolk audience tonight he had been reliably informed that Dr. William Mosely Brown, anti-Smith and Republican nominee for governor, not only had voted last year for the "short ballot" amendments he is now denouncing, but had urged others to do so in an address.

The governor read a telegram from John H. McClellan, of Rockbridge County, who said he had made affidavit that Dr. Brown explained, praised and urged support of the "short ballot" in an address under the auspices of the parent-teacher association at Natural Bridge.

"I am advised," the governor said, "that a dozen or more prominent citizens of Rockbridge are prepared to make similar affidavits as sworn to by Mr. McClelland."

Dr. Brown, who has vigorously attacked the short ballot in his campaign speeches, declined to give a "yes" or "no" answer as to how he voted when heckled at Suffolk last Friday, but in a statement three days later said he had voted for the amendments as a "regular Democrat" scarcely questioning the party leadership.

After the nomination of Alfred E. Smith for the Presidency, Dr. Brown said, "he lost confidence in the leadership and, "upon further consideration, I found the short ballot amendments another example of Tammany methods, designed for the sole purpose of perpetuating machine rule in this State."

Mistrial Is Declared In Catts Case in Tampa

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—A mistrial was declared here today in the case of Sidney J. Catts, former Governor of Florida, who had been tried on a charge of aiding and abetting counterfeiting when the jury reported in Federal Court that it had been unable to agree.

The jury was discharged at 10:55 a. m. after 11 hours and 30 minutes of deliberation. The 67-year-old defendant left the courtroom immediately after Federal Judge Alexander Akerman had dismissed the jury. Through their long hours of deliberation the jurors maintained a deadlocked vote of 6 to 6, it was learned. Another trial probably will be held in February, it was stated.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS SEE TARIFF DOOMED

View of Senator Reed Upheld by Garner in Talk on Fate of Measure.

(Associated Press.)

The prediction of Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, that the tariff bill will die in conference with the House will be borne out, in the opinion of House Democratic leaders, unless President Hoover recedes from his advocacy of the flexible provisions eliminated by the Senate.

This view was expressed yesterday by Representative Garner, of Texas, House minority chieftain and Democratic spokesman on the tariff in that chamber.

He said if the President would agree to accept a tariff measure shorn of the clause giving the Executive power to raise or lower customs rates, all other differences between the Senate and House could be adjusted in conference, including the controversy over the debenture plan.

Hoover Against Debenture.

The Senate repealed the presidential power over rates by 47 to 42 and inserted the export debenture rider into the tariff bill by 42 to 34.

President Hoover is understood to be just as vigorous in his opposition to debentures as he is in his desire to retain the flexible clause.

Garner was not the only commentator on the tariff situation on the House side, as the Senate, in adjournment out of respect for the death of Senator Burton, of Ohio, was taking stock of the outlook.

Hawley Gives Views on Bill.

Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee, whose name is linked with that of Chairman Smoot of the Senate finance committee as coauthor of the tariff measure, expressed the belief that it would be enacted either at the special or regular session.

"The country is expecting this, the Seventy-first Congress, to pass a tariff act adjusting the duties to conditions that now exist," the Oregon member said in a formal statement.

"The bill as it passed the House met that expectation with due promptness and the objections among the people generally were confined to a comparatively small number of items in the bill.

Country Expects Tariff Bill.

"From the information I have, the country is still expecting tariff legislation by this Congress. If this is not effected in the special session, it will be the continued and unfinished business of the regular session.

"It is a matter of such great and vital importance as to require action and that action at the earliest possible date. I expect we will enact a new tariff act."

Garner did not go into detail as to his reasons for believing the debenture issue could be straightened out in conference if the President and the House agreed to accept the Simmons-Norris substitute for the flexible provisions.

Simmons' Statement Recalled.

Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the finance committee, has stated that the minority would yield neither on the flexible nor the debenture plan.

Whether a new tariff law is enacted depended, Garner said, upon the President's agreeing to "what you might term a perfect bill with the presidential flexible provision left out and the Simmons-Norris amendment left in."

"Otherwise there will be no bill," the Texas asserted.

Henry Aylott Coles Buried in Albemarle

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 29.—Funeral rites for Henry Aylott Coles, who died suddenly in New Orleans, were held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Christ Episcopal Church, near Keene, this county, and interment was in the family burying ground at Enniscorthy, on Green Mountain.

Mr. Coles was a native of Albemarle County, son of the late Peyton S., and Julia I. Coles, of Enniscorthy. For many years he had been a resident of Atlanta, Ga., where he was head of the Westinghouse Electric Co. His death occurred while he was on a trip to New Orleans. Besides his wife, Mrs. Mary Morris Coles, and a son, Peyton S. Coles, of Atlanta, Mr. Coles leaves one sister, Mrs. Edward L. Mackenzie, of East Orange, N. J., and five brothers, the Rev. Robert Coles and Edward Coles, of this city; William B. Coles, of New York; Dr. Strickler Coles, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., and Arthur N. Coles, of Philadelphia.

Business Women Hold Halloween Supper

A real Halloween supper haunted by ghosts and witches marked the annual rally of the Business Women's Council last night at the Church of the Covenant, Eighteenth and N streets northwest. Throughout the evening the weird guests produced qualms and shivers that whetted the appetites of the merrymakers and made the festival spirit run high. In real life these ghostly spooks are Miss Helen Childs, Miss Jessie Stratton, Miss Ruth Boyer, Miss Florence Christman, Miss Edith Stiles, Miss Ethel Martin, and Mrs. Zula Pence.

Mrs. Alice B. Haig, soprano soloist at Bethesda Presbyterian Church, accompanied by the Bethesda organist, Miss Doree Holman, sang several numbers. Mrs. Nancy Stillwell Williamson, soloist at Epiphany Church, also sang. She was accompanied by Adolf Torovsky, Epiphany organist. John Gregory, assistant pastor of the Church of the Covenant, gave an inspirational address on the adventure of Christian service.

Lure of Bootlegger Seen In Harvard Papers' Ads

Liquor Is Not Mentioned, However, and U. S. Can Not Prosecute Student Publications, Say Federal Officials, Who Suspect Undergraduate Joker.

Boston, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Elihu D. Stone, Assistant United States Attorney, in charge of liquor cases in the Federal Court here, said tonight that no prosecutions would result from the publishing of alleged bootleggers' advertisements in the Harvard Crimson and the Lampoon, student publications at Harvard University. Stone said no reference to liquor was contained in the advertisements and therefore there were no grounds for prosecution.

The official expressed the belief that the advertisements might have been printed as a jest but, he added, "advertisements like this, however, do not tend to elevate American youth."

The attention of the Federal authorities was directed toward the appearance in the last issues of the publications of advertisements which puzzled many readers. One of the advertisements in the Lampoon read:

"When an examination is over do you feel at a loss? Do you mix freely with your fellowman (homo sapiens) and if so, what do you mix with him? Well, we can give you one good answer. When you know it, you can easily spend $10 to $15 right at home and never miss it."

Another was: "Try the loan and mortgage game; fun for your friends; stocks now in liquidation." A name and telephone numbers were placed at the bottom of the page.

A quarter page of the Crimson yesterday carried another "stocks and bond" advertisement with telephone numbers corresponding to those in the Lampoon.

Matthew Luce, regent of the university, said he was astonished but did not know what action would be taken by the college authorities.

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

CLIFFORD BROOKE, erstwhile director of the National Theater Players, later on the West Coast with the big movie and talkie people where he directed "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," and now here with the Anne Nichols comedy, "She Walked Home?", at Poli's, dropped into the office yesterday—for old time's sake. Cliff is still young and handsome, despite a strenuous season in Hollywood. After the week in Washington he goes on to New York and then back to California where he hopes to have his biggest year as a director of motion pictures.

It is not generally known that Cliff Brooke was, in his earlier career, an actor. In London, he attracted the attention of no less a personage than Sir James Barrie who had Cliff cast in the play, "Little Mary," with Sir John Hare. After trying his hand at the director's role, Mr. Brooke branched out as director for such eminent playwrights as Shaw, Pinero, Barrie, and Du Maurier. At the invitation of Charles Frohman Cliff came to America to direct John Drew in "Smith." A list of the stars he has directed in various plays sounds like a "Who's Who" of the American theater. In Washington the name of Clifford Brooke is so well known that many believe him a native; but he's not—only an adopted son.

For the first time this season the National Theater has a dark week ahead. There is no attraction booked for the House of Rapley during the forthcoming seven days, starting Sunday. Thus, when "Seven Year Love" decamps Mr. Steve Cochran, the manager, will be privileged to play golf on the Municipal Golf Links, where he and Clifford Brooke have been cavorting these mornings, or journey over to Pimlico where the horses will be shuffled.

• • • •

WHILE the National thus sits idle, Poli's and the Belasco have what they hope will be busy weeks ahead. At the Avenue playhouse Mr. T. D. Bonneville, the manager, has booked The Four Marx Brothers—those comical clowns crazed with the idea of making people laugh. They are coming this year in their great work of art entitled "Animal Crackers." Wherever they go, the Marx Brothers are popular favorites. So many people in this old world want to laugh—and here are the boys to make 'em forget their cares and troubles. At the Belasco, the play offered is on the other end of the line—a tragedy rather than a comedy; or so it would seem from its plot content. This offering is "Passions of Jealousy," which played under the original title of just plain "Jealousy." The reason for the change of name is this: It seems that the late Jeanne Eagels made what the critics term a trrible motion picture called "Jealousy." Not to let the general public think that the Eagels flop is in anyway connected with the Bainter success the wise producer, Al Woods, threw in the word "Passions." And there you are.

• • • •

IN "Passions of Jealousy," Miss Bainter will be assisted by Melvyn Douglas, quite a capable leading man. The play was originaly written by Louis Verneuil, the French dramatist. Eugene Walter, writer of many a good old-fashioned American play, amongst them "The Easiest Way," is responsible for the English version From the early fall of last year to the spring of this year "Passions of Jealousy" had quite a run in New York. Its novelty lies in the fact that there are only two characters in the play—and therefore but two in the cast; so that Miss Bainter and Mr Douglas have the field to themselves The plot concerns a young artist, who marries a girl he knows has not been true to the early faith that was in her. Before long he begins to suspect her of "carrying on" again—and the rest of the play is given over to his suspicions, his gnawing jealousy and her efforts to ease his mind by lying to him. Pangs of jealousy? Passions of jealousy? Well, just plain jealousy.

Cabinet Men to Speak At Forestry Meeting

Three Cabinet members, Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, Secretary of Interior Wilbur, and Secretary of War Good, will address an American Forestry Association luncheon at the Cosmos Club today, which will be attended by more than 50 leaders in forest conservation

Prior to the luncheon meeting, the conservationists, representing 22 national and regional organizations, who are here at the invitation of the American Forestry Association to participate in a national conference for forest protection, will confer with President Hoover. They will ask the President to take immediate action to provide an adequate program that will enable the Government to protect more effectively its forest resources and bring them to higher productivity.

Court Denies Capone Habeas Corpus Plea

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The State superior court today refused to grant a petition for a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus to attorneys for Al Capone, Chicago gangster, and his bodyguard, Frank Cline, who are serving a year in jail here for carrying concealed deadly weapons. Capone and Cline have made several unsuccessful attempts to obtain their freedom since they were sentenced last May after pleading guilty.

The judges of the superior court, in denying the petition, said habeas corpus proceedings could have been heard in an appeal filed three weeks ago, but as this was withdrawn by the attorneys themselves the matter of appeal was now closed.

AGENTS TAP WIRE; FIVE ARE INDICTED

FIRST RETURNED HERE

Wire tapping activities by Federal agents which permitted them to listen in on alleged telephone conversations between Washington, Atlantic Highlands, N. J., and other places, came to light yesterday when the District of Columbia grand jury returned an indictment charging conspiracy to violate the tariff act against Michael Tilton, Julia Tilton, William W. Keeler, Walter Keener and David Taven.

The indictment specifically charges that the defendants conspired, combined, confederated and agreed together to "feloniously, knowingly and fraudulently import and bring into the United States and to assist in importing and bring into the United States certain merchandise contrary to law, to wit, whisky, champagne wine, gin and beer." The indictment sets out that the intoxicants were intended for beverage purposes.

First Phone Indictment.

The alleged conspiracy is alleged to have had its inception on January 1, last, and to have continued until the date of the indictment.

Attaches of the United States attorney's office stated that the indictment is the first based on overheard telephone conversations that ever has been returned in the District of Columbia.

Eight overt acts are set out in the indictment as follows:

On January 21 Michael Tilton is alleged to have telephoned from Washington to Atlantic Highlands and to have arranged with Keener for the purchase of 50 cases of champagne.

The following day Julia Tilton is alleged to have telephoned from Atlantic Highlands to Michael Tilton and to have stated that she had purchased from Keener 16 cases of Scotch whisky and 5 cases of claret.

On January 24 Julia Tilton and William W. Keeler are alleged to have traveled from Washington to Atlantic Highlands for the purpose of bringing intoxicants into the District of Columbia.

Other Alleged Messages.

The next day, the indictment alleges, Keeler telephoned from Hyattsville, Md., to Michael Tilton in Washington that he had procured certain quantities of intoxicants, which Tilton is said to have directed him to take to the home of David Taven.

The same day, David Taven is alleged to have telephoned Frances Taven and to have advised her to prepare to receive certain intoxicants from Keeler.

On January 28, Michael Tilton is alleged to have telephoned to Julia Tilton and directed her to telephone Keeler and procure from his seven cases of champagne.

The same day Julia Tilton is alleged to have telephoned from Washington to Keener at Atlantic Highlands and arranged to purchase seven cases of champagne.

Two days later, Julia Tilton and Keeler are alleged to have transported 72 bottles of champagne from Atlantic Highlands to Baltimore.

Dry, Chasing Rum Car, Found Guilty

Violation of Speed Law Results in Personal Bond in Court.

Louis J. Tutt, a Baltimore prohibition agent, was found guilty of speeding in Traffic Court yesterday and was released on his personal bond by Judge Ralph Given.

Tutt was arrested Monday night by Park Policeman Thomas Fogarty. Tutt immediately countered by charging the policeman with interfering with a Federal officer. Attaches of the United States attorney's office in the Police Court and United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, however, stated that no formal complaint had been made before them. Tutt was said to have called on the commissioner early yesterday, but no warrant was issued and the commissioner said he had no hearing booked for Fogarty.

Tutt, in Traffic Court, declared he was pursuing a suspected liquor car when Fogarty overhauled him and placed him under arrest. Judge Given, in taking the agent's personal bond, reminded him that Federal agents are not immune from reasonable enforcement of the speed laws.

Allied Architects Barred by McCarl

Comptroller General McCarl yesterday ruled that the District Commissioners have no authority in law to employ by direct contract the Allied Architects, Inc., for architectural and professional services. The Commissioners must advertise for bids, McCarl ruled.

The Allied Architects, Inc., was formed to give to the Government the aid of leading architects in the preparation of plans for public buildings and the question of their authority to employ the organization by direct contract was put up to McCarl by the Commissioners.

Contracst Awarded For Street Grading

Contracts for grading of sections of five streets were awarded by the District Commissioners yesterday to Latimer & Maloney, low biders, at 27 cents per cubic yard of earth removed.

Streets to be graded are Forty-ninth place, Fiftieth place and Fiftieth street northeast, from Lee street to Nash street; Meade street northeast, from Forty-eighth place to Fifty-first place, and Lee street northeast, from Fiftieth to Fifty-first streets.

ERSTWHILE TELLER INDICTED BY JURY

G. W. Bennett, Former Riggs Bank Employe, Is Charged With Embezzlement.

31 COUNTS ARE CITED

George Willard Bennett, 25-year-old former teller of the Farmers & Mechanics branch of the Riggs National Bank, was indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury yesterday on charges of embezzlement and making alleged false entries in violation of the national banking statutes.

The first indictment charges Bennett with embezzling funds of the bank, totaling $104,780.24, by withholding deposits. The second indictment charges making of alleged false entries of total deposits received on days on which he is alleged to have withheld deposits.

Bennett is expected to be arraigned later in the week, probably on Friday. He is now at liberty under $15,000 bond.

No attempt is made in the indictment to connect Bennett's alleged speculations to the shortages charged to Harry V. Haynes, who was president of the Farmers & Mechanics National Bank before it was absorbed by the Riggs National Bank, and who is under indictment on a charge of making false entries and abstracting funds.

The embezzlement indictment against Bennett contains 31 counts Twenty-nine relate to separate transactions, while the thirtieth charges embezzlement of the aggregate of the foregoing 29 counts, which is $78,431.59. The thirty-first count alleges that Bennett was short in his cash vault on July 11 in the sum of $26,348.65.

Attaches of the United States Attorney's office state that the Government contends that Bennett received deposits from certain of the bank's customers and instead of crediting their accounts with the funds deposited, appropriated the money to his own use.

Mitchell Day Is Kept By Anthracite Miners

Hazelton, Pa., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The 158,000 anthracite miners in this district were idle today in celebration of Mitchell day, so named in honor of the late John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America.

The day marks the anniversary of the successful termination of a six-weeks strike in 1900 under the leadership of Mitchell, following establishment of the union in the hard coal field. The strike won a 10 per cent wage increase and other concessions.

Reach the People Who Buy . . .

AT BUYING TIME

Buying decisions are made in the morning—it is then that the housewife decides what she will serve for luncheon and dinner; then that she arranges her afternoon's shopping program and makes plans for the evening's diversions. In the morning, after the children are off to school, she has greater leisure for newspaper reading—more interest in the sales messages of merchants, and is more easily guided to prompt action.

The Washington Post

"The First Thing in the Morning"

The most productive advertising medium available to Washington advertisers . . . It is delivered to readers at the most propitious time, and those readers are the people who do most of the buying in Washington stores. The distribution of The Washington Post is an open book to all advertisers and demonstrates that this is the preferred newspaper of those families who make the most desirable customers. Families that are financially able to buy and have the intelligence to quickly recognize the advantages offered by any new product or service, and the outstanding characteristics of various retail establishments.

The Washington Post is a newspaper for people who think—it is never passive or vacillating in its editorial policies and is ever alert to the welfare of the communities which it serves. Because of these known facts, it exerts a reader influence that is unparalleled and confers a prestige upon its advertisers that is beyond price.

Adequate advertising coverage of the Washington Market can not be secured without use of The Washington Post

RALLY IN LAST HOUR CHECKS STOCK DROP

Closing Is Off But Losses Are Cut Before Record Day Is Over.

16,410,030 SHARES SOLD

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Powerful financial interests struggled with a panic-stricken public today to save the stock market from complete demoralization, and were finally able to check another headlong collapse of prices, as all trading records were once more broken. A total of 16,410,030 shares changed hands on the stock exchange, as compared to the previous record of 12,894,600 reached last Thursday.

Yesterday's wild dive of prices, the most extensive ever witnessed in a single day, brought a further wholesale jettisoning of impaired margin accounts together with frantic selling by terrified investors. Hundreds of stocks reached new low levels for the year, many selling at ¼ to ½ of their record high levels, established during the past few months, but a substantial rally in the last hour trading reduced final net losses to little more than two-thirds of yesterday's.

So confident were leading bankers that prices were reaching bottom that they reduced margin requirements for demand loans to brokers from 40 to 25 per cent.

Banking Pool Members Meet.

Members of the banking pool formed last Thursday when the selling movement reached alarming proportions, again met today at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co., and it was learned that huge buying orders were thrown into the market to absorb the selling on the way down and keep the decline orderly. No effort was made to check the decline until late in the session, bankers feeling that the selling was a blind mass movement that could not be reasoned with until it had spent its force.

The trading, while exceeding last Thursday's in volume, was lent a semblance of order by the intercession of powerful interests, investment trusts and insurance companies were said to have accumulated huge blocks of stock at what they regarded as bargain levels. Albert Conway, State superintendent of insurance, recommended to heads of insurance companies that they accumulate leading stock for investment at today's levels. The first fatality of the crash of the securities markets appeared in the public trader on the curb market. It was reported in authoritative circles that powerful banking support was being lent to stock exchange members.

The day's industrial news was largely favorable. U. S. Steel reported exceptionally favorable earnings for the third quarter, nearly approximating those of the second quarter, which set a new high record for peace-time operations.

Steel and Can Declare Dividends.

Both U. S. Steel and American Can directors declared extra dividends of $1. Although several mergers have been held up pending a stabilization of conditions, announcement was made of a plan to combine the F. & W. Grant and Isaac Silver chains of stores.

Call money renewed as low as 5 per cent for the first time this year, but later rose to 6. Time money for the shorter maturities was quoted at 6 per cent, a new low for the year.

Price movements were highly confusing, as illustrated by the action of U. S. Steel common, which opened at 185¾, off ¼; rallied to 188, dropped to 170, rallied to 180, dropped to 167, and closed at 174, off 12.

Westinghouse Electric dropped 45 points to a new 1929 low at 100, and closed at 126, off 19. Radio dropped to a new low at 26 and closed at 38½, off 1¾. General Electric touched 210 and closed at 222, off 28. General Motors, after selling at a new low at 33½, closed at 40, off 7½. Standard of New Jersey, after touching 50, closed at 53¼, off 7. American Can sold down to 110, and closed at 120, off 16.

New York Central Closes Higher.

American and Foreign Power, which sold a few weeks ago at 199¼, sold at 50 and closed at 55, off 22½. New York Central actually closed higher, at 189½, up 3½, after dropping to 175. American Telephone was weak at the close, ending the session at 204, the lowest of the day, and off 28. Auburn Auto and DuPont recorded extreme losses of about 70 points.

Commodity markets were depressed in sympathy with stocks. Wheat closed off about 2 cents, with an increased visible supply a factor. Corn lost about one-half cent a bushel and cotton closed off 75 to 90 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling cables sagged 3-16 of a cent to $4.87 13-16. The Canadian dollar dropped to 98½ cents, a new low for more than a year. The German mark, Holland guilder and Japanese yen, however, reached new 1929 highs.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—There was a renewal of liquidation in the cotton market today owing to the continued weakness of the stock market, but it was absorbed by trade buying and covering and was followed by partial recoveries. The advance encountered further selling, however, and after advancing from 17.82 to 18.07 December sold off to 17.88 and closed at 17.89. The general market closed steady at net declines of 17 to 18 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 10 to 21 points under heavy liquidation through brokers with Wall street connections, but the offerings were quite readily absorbed by covering and trade buying. January contracts which sold off to 17.98 under the initial pressure recovered to 18.11 during the first few minutes. The selling continued in smaller volume and there was some irregularity later in the morning, but in a general way the market held very steady and showed sufficient powers of absorption to promote profit taking by recent sellers.

This, combined with a moderate trade demand, sent prices up to 18.17 for January and 18.45 for March, or back to within a few points of yesterday's closing quotations. At these figures offerings increased and there was a renewal of Wall street liquidations together with some Southern selling in the late trading. Last prices were within a few points of the early low levels. The attention of cotton traders again seemed to be almost completely monopolized by the action of the stock market, and the ordinary market factors came in for correspondingly little comment.

The buying at the start was promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports of rain in the Eastern and Central belt, but these factors were not strong enough to create fresh speculative buying apparently and the demand was attributed chiefly to covering and to the trade.

World's consumption of American cotton during September according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service is estimated at 1,222,000 bales against 1,136,000 in August and 1,174,000 in September last year. Port receipts today were 35,211 bales, 17 per cent stock 2,263,107. Exports 77,764, making 1,995,182 so far this season.

BOND GAINS ARE HIT BY BIG SALES WAVE

Lesser Grade Issues Break Sharply and Even Good Rails Suffer.

LIBERTYS ARE STEADY

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Heavy inroads were made today on the gains which the bond market had painstakingly accumulated since early in the month. The wave of selling that struck the country's security markets was felt in all groups of bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange and the Associated Press combined average showed a decline of three-quarters of a point.

Bonds of lesser grades broke sharply. Utilities and industrials were dumped for some large declines, and even the first grade rails, which have been leaders in the October advance, suffered from the panicky condition of the public mind, although to a lesser degree.

Only the United States Government issues showed any degree of steadiness. There was enormous buying in the Liberties, the Fourth 4¼s turning over to the extent of more than $1,500,000, principal amount for a small net gain. It was learned that the Federal Reserve Bank had been a liberal purchaser of "Governments" to supply funds to the money market, thereby enabling New York member banks to replace moneys called by corporations and individuals.

Convertibles Hard Hit.

Convertibles and all issues with stock features took some enormous losses. American Telephone 4½s sold as low as 115, compared with the previous minimum of 119¼ and the high of 227, but rallied 10 points to show a net loss of 25 points. International Telephone 4½s closed at 119¾, after selling down to 116, for a net decline of 13¼ points.

Public Service of New Jersey 4½s lost 31½ on a small sale. Losses of 1 to 13 points were borne through to the finish by American I. G. Chemicals 5½s, Allegheny Corporation 5s, American International 5½s, Atchison 4½s, General Public Service 5½s, Missouri Pacific 5½s, New Haven 6s, Pan-American Petroleum 6s, Texas Corporation 5s, Southern Pacific 4½s, with warrants and Walworth 6½s with warrants, sales of the American Telephone debenture totaled nearly $6,500,000 principal amount.

Among the higher-grade rails there were losses of nearly a point in Baltimore & Ohio first 5s, Chicago & Northwestern General 5s, Rock Island 4½s and Big Four 5½s.

Other Rails Drop.

Drops of 1 to more than 3 points appeared in Boston & Maine 5s, Canadian National 4½s, Central Pacific first 4s, Big Four General 4s, St. Paul 5s, Erie 5s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, New Haven 4½s, and Debenture 4s, Pennsylvania 6½s, Norfolk & Southern 5s, Southern Pacific refunding 4s and St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s and 4s. Losses in numerous speculative issues ran higher. The St. Paul adjustment 5s crashed 9 points to a new 1929 low.

A handful of carriers was able to resist the tremendous pressure. Central Pacific guaranteed 5s, Rock Island general 4s, New York Central general 3½s, Union Pacific 5s, 4½s and first 4s and a few others were in this select group which moved higher.

In the utilities the liquidation struck such obligations as American Telephone 5s and Collateral 5s, which lost more than a point; Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, off ½; Illinois Bell Telephone 5s, off ¾; New England Telephone 5s, off ⅝; and Utah Power & Light 5s, off ¾.

Speculative Issues Down.

Industrials were equally soft and issues of a speculative turn sold down to prices that approximated their year's lows.

Foreign bonds were exceedingly soft. French Republic 7½s and 7s flopped 4 and 2 points, respectively, while the German Republic 7s dropped 4 points to the new 1929 low of 102. Numerous foreign obligations dropped 2 to 5 points, while a few tumbled even more.

The decline was in the face of easier time money, which was quoted at 6 per cent for the shortest maturities, the lowest rate of the year.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Crushed down almost in an instant as much as 6¾c a bushel today, the wheat market later recovered 5¾ cents and finished 1½ to 2¾ down. The transient downfall of nearly 6 cents in wheat values was a direct outcome of hurried selling which at the opening of today's business overwhelmed the wheat pit and had been preceded by news of fresh panic in stocks at New York and of resulting setbacks of wheat quotations in Liverpool. Assertions of immense buying of United States flour to be shipped abroad were largely responsible for the rallying power which afterward developed in the wheat market and so, too, was big purchasing of wheat future deliveries—purchasing that to a great degree was credited to European sources.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat today were unsettled, but at no more than an ordinary difference from the figures current 24 hours before. Corn closed ⅝ to ⅞c down, oats ⅜ to 1c off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 22 cents.

Bottom prices for the day in wheat were reached right at the outset, and the highest shortly before the close. At times during the wild trading which followed the collapse at the start, wheat prices fluctuated 2 and 3 cents a bushel in as many minutes. More than 5c of a rebound was witnessed in the first quarter of an hour. Thereafter the market for a while was a strenuous nip-and-tuck struggle, with buyers gradually getting the better of sellers. Helping to lift the market toward the last were estimates that in addition to huge demand from Europe for domestic flour the last two days. Transatlantic buying of North American wheat shipments today totaled 1,000,000 bushels, largely hard winter wheat from the United States.

Although even up to the final gong, many wheat traders continued to guide themselves by the action of stocks, the wheat market beyond question had a decidedly better tone in the late dealings. Except at the start, there was heavy buying of wheat futures all through the day, especially for Eastern and foreign account. United States mills were also reported as buying wheat futures on a big scale. In this connection, it was pointed out that primary receipts in wheat in this country were continuing much smaller than a year ago, and predictions were current that many mills would soon have to come to terminals for supplies.

From beginning to end, corn prices showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure. Wet weather unfavorable both for the conditioning and the movement of the new corn crop acted as a sustaining market influence. Oats followed the leadership of corn.

Provisions were responsive to selling induced by weakness of securities, although hog values were about steady.

BIG THRONGS CROWD BROKERAGE HOUSES

Capital's Official Circles Are Silent as Slump in Stocks Goes On.

SECURITIES DROP HERE

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The latest sad tale of the ticker was heard here yesterday without comment in official circles, with continued optimism as to its effect on business and intense interest and anxiety by hundreds of investors and speculators thronging the brokerages.

Morning found this last group eagerly awaiting entrance to the board rooms to hear a repetition of the doleful story, and long before the transluxes began to unroll their quotations all chairs were occupied and most offices crowded to street doors with the largest number of spectators in the history of the local financial district.

The day found all offices amply perpared to handle the situation as efficiently as possible, attendants posting prices with dispatch. The audiences apparently expected shocks.

Earlier stock breaks had struck them with appalling suddenness at the end of the day. Yesterday they seemed prepared for the worst, as Monday's slump and weak closing forecast continued selling. Harried holders, harassed men and women, being sold out on lost margins, saw and heard their fate.

Opening Worst in History.

First came a message announcing the worst opening in the history of the New York Stock Exchange, but after previous violent declines a rally seemed imperative. Later quotations indicated frenzied reactions. Word that selling orders predominated exclusively in New York was followed by news of an avalanche of buying orders. Then came the statement that call money would open and remain at 5 per cent.

Reassuring information was next received. Reduced margin requirements, from 40 to 25 per cent, were announced "because of improved market conditions." These have been as high as 50 per cent, mounting steadily with the recent advancing market; but brokers' belief that stocks are low enough to make a 25 per cent margin sufficient will mean an influx of buyers out of the market for the time being.

The picture was not altogether a gloomy one. Hundreds of gargain hunters testified to the market's eventual hopeful turn. There was a leaven of buying orders among the selling, reflecting the impression that bottom had been reached or soon would be.

Strain Evident at Close.

The business day closed with the strain still manifest. Brokers and their customers are tired and worn. Bankers are sticking close to books and checking loans. Business and industry continue sound no matter how emotional selling runs rampant, selling by which many here have been "hit hard."

New York conditions were reflected on the local market for the first time.

Sales of the 18 stocks in trading yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange registered declines ranging from fractional ones to those as high as 21 points. Only one issue held its former level. This was Federal Storage preferred, ten shares of which transferred at 118. A second sale of five shares showed a point recession.

Sales volume advanced in both stock and bond divisions. The stock turnover of 585 shares exceeded the preceding day's by 431 and the bond aggregate of $22,300 was $12,300 in advance of Monday's. The bond market was irregular, several issues selling at increased prices and prices of others holding firm, others selling below. Capital Traction Co. came out at 80, a point loss, and sold down to 76½ on exchanges totaling 186 shares. Six bank stocks sold at lower prices.

Phone Firm Adds Equipment.

Capital expenditures for new plant and equipment added to the system of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., of Baltimore City, operating in Maryland, for the first nine months of the year were $3,162,597, the report of operations made to the Public Service Commission shows. Retirements during the month were $1,591,003, making net additions, $1,571,593. Net additions to plant for the twelve months ended September 30 amounted to $2,094,393.

Telephone operating revenues for the first nine months of the year were $10,114,145. Operating expenses during this period amounted to $8,013,369, making net operating revenues $2,100,776. FRIDAY'S GAME.

Central vs. Business, 3:30 p. m.

By WILLIAM T. DISMER, Jr.

UNTIL the last eight minutes of play there was as hotly contested and highly dramatic football game taking place yesterday afternoon as has been staged at the Central High School Stadium this year, until an Eastern High Eleven uncorked a tremendous scoring punch against a Western Team, completely riddled and bewildered by the loss of its two main performers, which resulted in four touchdowns in the last period and an overwhelming triumph for the Lincoln Parkers by the count of 38 to 6.

Deprived of its mainstay, Jimmy Draper, who left the field with a badly broken and battered nose as the result of a collision with his teammate, Ray Millard, the Western Eleven had continued its courageous stand and risen to new heights under the leadership of the same Millard. Nothwithstanding the fact that he himself was playing with three cracked ribs, Millard gave to his mates a new inspiration and fight which few teams could muster after seeing their biggest hope for success forced to leave the game.

Millard Fills Shoes Of Draper.

Faced with the knowledge that he alone could hope to gain needed yardage for his team, Millard at the quarter back post vacated by Draper, sacrificed himself under very apparent agony as the one salvation of the Red and White team. Time and gain, Millard carried the ball through the Eastern line and around its ends. And at every advancing moment his physical condition was steadily growing worse. With his ribs continually aching as he was thrown to the ground after each succeeding gain, Millard carried on with a spunk that was wonderful to see.

But the task was too much. After

97-YARD RUN TO TOUCHDOWN GETTING UNDER WAY

Booth and Marsters Hold Stage in East, Supported by Yale and Dartmouth Casts

NEW YORK, Oct. 29 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Football interest in the East is benig swayed by two outstanding personalities—Al Marsters, Dartmouth's brilliant captain and the country's leading point scorer, and Albie Booth, Yale's midget super star. Both have won such tremendous personal triumphs that their exploits are being raised in popular fancy even above the performance of the foremost teams.

Judging the relative ability of the gridiron's foremost stars is mostly conjecture. Whether Red Grange was superior to Eddie Mahan in open-field running will never be settled because they played on different teams and at different times. It is the same with the great majority of other football notables.

But for one of the few times in the game's history the year's leading back-field stars will have the opportunity to oppose each other on the same field of combat next Saturday in the Bowl, when Marsters, supported by a powerful Dartmouth Team, will match his power and wizardry with Albie Booth, who will be assisted by a Yale Eleven that undoubtedly has just found itself. Shakespeare's historic query, "What's in a name?" will be answered when close to 80,000 will fill the Bowl, not merely to osee Yale and Dartmouth clash but to see the duel between the two young men playing the stellar roles. Such a crowd will be a tribute to the drawing power of Booth and Marsters because Yale-Dartmouth games have never crowded the Bowl.

Neither Can Gain Unless Line Splits Opposition.

How do Booth and Marsters compare? What will they likely do, and how will they do it? Only the game itself can answer these questions, because every noted star is dependent on his teammates. No Marsters, Booth, Grange, Mahan can make spectacular gallops down the field unless the line splits the opposition and interferers bowl over tacklers.

Just for argument's sake, suppose Yale and Dartmouth could be mechanically alike in the Bowl for the support of their chief scoring threats. There then would remain the factor of psychology, which decides most gridiron battles. Dartmouth has never triumphed over the Bulldog. Will the big Green team become demoralized as did the Army if the slippery Albie Booth starts to run wild? Or will Yale's team lose its poise if Marsters gets away for one or two touchdowns or the other Green backs tally? Once again, the game itself must answer such questions.

The only way to compare Booth and Marsters is on their showing to date. Both are entirely opposite types. Booth because of his smallness and playing style is unlike anything seen in recent years. The little Bulldog is not as speedy on the straightaway as his Dartmouth rival, but is more elusive with the ball. Booth is right at home playing inside and outside football. He knifes his way through the tiniest line opening and with marvelous footwork keeps going after hitting the secondaries. With quickness of eye and natural shiftiness Booth possesses a rare knack of wiggling away from under piles of players and thus saves himself injury.

Booth Gains Without Interference.

Booth runs beautifully with interference and probably just as well without protection, as he showed on his unaided 80-yard runback of Murrell's kick for a touchdown against the Army.

On account of his size Booth undoubtedly is more devastating to opponents than Marsters. It is no comforting feeling for giants to fail to stop a midget of Booth's size.

Albie gave the greatest exhibition of his offensive power when he went into action in the second period with the Army leading, 13 to 0, and not only immediately keyed up the disheartened Blue Team, but carried the ball four out of five times. Booth's touchdown resulted from a 36-yard drive after recovering Gibner's fumble. On that march the little quarter back took the ball six out of the seven plays for an average gain of 5 yards.

From scrimmage he carried the ball 29 times, gained 25 times, was checked on tthree occasions and lost 3 yards on an attempted end run. Including his 80-yard run for his third touchdown, Booth advanced through the Cadet Eleven for a total of 262 yards. And for variety he booted three goals for extra points after touchdowns and missed by narrow margins two long field goals.

While he was in action Booth did all the punting and did it admirably, his kicks being long and well placed.

When the diminutive sopohomore went in Yale was trailing and apparently outclassed. When he retired in the middle of the final period Yale had the game won and was an entirely different eleven. Booth had furnished both inspiration and the winning punch.

Marsters Essentially A "Team Star."

While Booth was performing his super deeds in the bowl, Al Marsters was similarly engaged in the classical stadium at Cambridge, wrecking the much heralded Harvard's team. To make possible Dartmouth's glorious 34-to-7 victory Marsters carried the ball 25 times in three periods and gained nearly 200 yards, threw 3 forward passes for an additional 45 yards and ran back kicks for something like 50 yards.

Marsters essentially is a "team star," meaning that he makes the utmost of his interference. No one in the East can surpass the Green captain for running with interference and knowing just when to leave it.

Marsters' forte is wide end runs and quick slants off tackles. He isn't as shifty as Booth, but has more speed.

The Green leader is Booth's equal at kicking and is more accurate in forward passing. The Bulldog star has big hands and passes well, but lacks the height quickly to spot his receivers.

President of Auburn "Relieves" Grid Coach

Auburn, Ala., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, revealed in a prepared statement this afternoon that he had "relieved" George Bohler as head football coach at the institution "because of his lack of personality and the type of leadership necessary for the boys with whom he deals."

"The student body, the team itself, the alumni and others connected with the institution are lacking in confidence in Coach Bohler," said Dr. Knapp's statement, "the result being dissension and working at cross purposes for over a year."

Hansen Wins and Earns Sonnenberg Chance

Seattle, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Charlie Hansen, of Omaha, will get a long-sought chance at Gus Sonnenberg's wrestling title next Monday night as the result of a victory here last night over August Sepp, of Seattle.

Hansen used two body slams to defeat Sepp in six rounds. Sonnenberg previously had agreed to meet the winner.

Barnett Beats Hunter For M. A. Pro Crown

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 29.—Robert T. Barnett, professional at the Chevy Chase Club, of Washington, D. C., won the match play golf championship of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association at the Suburban Country Club here today, defeating J. Monro Hunter, of the Indian Spring Golf Club, by 3 and 2, in the 36-hole final round.

Hunter lost his chance to square the match when, being two down and three to play, he sent his tee shot into a bunker and lost the hole to Barnett's par 3. Hunter lost two holes in the afternoon round when his ball flipped out of the cup, both times on 3-foot putts for haves. Barnett was 2 up at the end of the first eighteen holes and maintained his advantage practically throughout the final round, although Hunter squared the match by winning the eleventh and thirteenth holes.

Game in 1931 Is Hope of Army

Gen. Smith Says Navy Contest Next Year Is Unlikely.

Academy Chiefs Meet Today to Effect a Reconciliation.

A RENEWAL of the Army-Navy football game before the 1931 season is unlikely, Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendent of the West Point Military Academy, said yesterday, after a conference here with Secretary of War James W. Good.

The statement was made on the eve of Maj. Gen. Smith's conference with Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Naval Academy, scheduled for today with a view toward arranging the resumption of athletic relations between the two academies.

West Point's football schedules already arranged for this season and 1930 will prohibit any game with Annapolis, Maj. Gen. Smth said. "Football is a considerable business besides being a sport," he declared. "Contracts must be arranged far in advance and once made must be observed."

Maj. Gen. Smith pointed out, however, that there were no barriers to meetings in other sports and that schedules for other sports had not closed. He declined to comment on the basis on which he hopes to effect a resumption of athletics with the Naval Academy which insisted at the time of the break that Army observe the three-year eligibility rule in vogue among the large colleges.

Annapolis Stirred Over Prospect of Peace.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 29.—There was considerable speculation in navy athletic circles tonight as adminstration and athletic officials of the Naval Academy prepared for the conference in Washington tomorrow, which it is hoped will heal the breach between West Point and Annapolis that came about two years ago, to rupture football and other competitions between the service school.

The conference will be between Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison and Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, superintendents of the Naval and Military Academies, respectively. Others participating in behalf of the naval school will be Lieut. Comdr. A. H. Rokks, aid to Admiral Robison; Commander Joseph H. Ingram, director of athletics, and probably Lieut Comd. Frederick G. Reinicke, graduate manager of athletics.

Plan of Reconciliation Is Kept Secret.

No word was forthcoming from the naval contnigent as to what plan they may have to offer by way of reconciliation. It was said, however, that Navy stands ready to abide by anything that is fair.

Nor was any statement made of Washington dispatches in which Gen. Smith is quoted as saying that Army's schedule for 1929 and 1930 would probably preclude a football game being played before 1931, but intimating that other sports may be revived in view of schedules not having been closed. This statement is interpreted here as meaning that West Point would not break football contracts entered into to cover the 1930 season.

Mrs. Hodges Medalist In Service Club Golf

In the women's championship of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps Club now in progress, the qualification medal was won by Mrs. J. M. Hodges, middle Atlantic golf champion, with a card of 40—44—84, an aggregate so much lower than the other competitors that it was decided to withdraw her from competition with the players in the championship flight, until that flight has been won. Mrs. Hodges will then play the winner for the club championship. Her nearest competitor was Mrs. J. T. O'Rea, whose score was 103. The pairings and the results of the first round in the several flights are as follows:

FIRST FLIGHT—Mrs. J. T. O'Rea defeated Mrs. T. Darlington, 7 and 6. Mrs. A. K. B. Lyman, 114, defeated Mrs. G. W. Thomason, 3 and 1. Mrs. E. L. King defeated Mrs. W. A. Angwin, 4 and 3. Mrs. Frank R. Keefer defeated Mrs. G. C. Denit, 6 and 4.

SECOND FLIGHT—Mrs. A. B. Cherbonier defeated Mrs. W. J. Reed, 1 up, 11 holes. Mrs. George Gurnett defeated Mrs. F. L. Martin, 2 and 1. Mrs. W. H. Hale defeated Mrs. W. D. Kildruff, 1 up. Mrs. E. C. Roguet defeated Mrs. T. C. Merchant, 4 and 3.

N.Y.U. to Have Full Strength For Clash With Georgetown

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Oct. 29.—The New York University varsity and freshmen football teams are preparing for the games this weekend with the strong Georgetown University teams. Head Coach Chick Meehan had his entire squad taking part in the workout at Ohio Field today.

The N. Y. U. varsity and the Blue and Gray eleven will clash on Saturday at 2 o'clock at the Yankee Stadium. It will be the second meeting between the two schools. The Capital City troupe won from the Meehan-coached eleven a year ago on the same gridiron, 7 to 2. The Violet yearling team will play the Georgetown University plebe outfit on Friday.

The Georgetown University game has been designated as home-coming day for the Violet alumni.

Capt. Len Grant and Ernest Concannon were prominent in the drill today. Both the lads were kept on the sidelines in the Butler tilt last Saturday due to slight injuries.

Meehan Saved His Tackles.

Meehan did not care to take any chances by using his regular tackles in view of the stiff game on the program for this week-end. Both players have been taking things easy since the Penn State game, but they will be seen in action against the Hoyas.

Meehan expects to work his charges hard this week in preparation for the tilt with Little's team. Georgetown, while not the high-scoring machine of the past couple of years is still one of the strongest elevens of the East. The Blue and Gray Team has won four games to date and like the local eleven has also lost a game. Western Maryland defeated the Washington team in the second game of the season, 7 to 0. The Violet gridders will have two scrimmages this week and the other days will be given over to the grooming of the offense for use against the Jesuit eleven.

Violet Kickers and Passers Work.

The N. Y. U. kickers and passers were given a brisk drill preceding the signal drill.

Meehan expects plenty of trouble from Coach Little's outfit and every energy is being bent to prepare for the Blue and Gray invasion.

The Georgetown teams will arrive in this city on Friday and the varsity team will work out at the stadium early enough to allow the players to view the freshmen in their game with the N. Y. U. cub eleven. The Violet varsity team will follow the Blue and Gray eleven at the stadium for their rehearsal.

D. C. GOLFER NEW PRO CHAMP

Barnett Beats Hunter for Middle Atlantic Title, 3 and 2.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 29—Robert Barnett, of the Chevy Chase Club, Washington, is the new champion of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association. Barnett won his title by defeating a fellow Washingtonian, J. Monroe Hunter, of the Indian Spring Club, 3 and 2, in the 36-hole finals at the Suburban Club today.

James Roche, professional at the Elkridge Hunt Club, was the 1928 Middle Atlantic pro champion. He was eliminated last week in an early round of this year's tourney.

A steadier short game enabled Barnett to more than make up for the margin the Indian Spring slugger had off the tee.

Barnett 2 Up After First Round of Play.

The match today was close all the way. They were all even at the turn in the morning round, but when they went in for lunch, Barnett was 2 up, clinging to his small lead. Barnett refused to crack.

In the semifinals, the new champion eliminated Glenn Spencer by the decisive score of 10 and 9. Hunter gained the title round by beating the former Baltimorean, Alex Taylor, professional at the Fountain Head Country Club, Hagerstown.

PENN PLAYS BEST NAVY ELEVEN

Middies' Regulars in Shape; Scrimmage Features Drill.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 29.—In a practice held under flood lights. All of the Navy's casuals from the Princeton battle were in togs with the exception of Leo Crane, first call substitute end. Clifton, Chapple, Spring and Crinkley, the others who received a good deal of battering are rapidly rounding into shape and will be available for use in the Pennsylvania contest on Saturday. The rest of the squad settled into a stiff scrimmage, both offensively and defensively, the varsity group again having a defensive work-out against the scrubs, who employed Red and Blue formations taught them by Navy scouts.

Gannon May Start In Back Field.

Indications are that the Navy mentors will start the same back field against Pennsylvania as that which faced Princeton, with the possible exception that Johnny Gannon, a veteran who made a "rep" last year, may be in there. He will be in shape to play, according to the coaches, but whether he will be held in reserve is a question. If he does start, he would take the place of either Kohthas or Castree.

The other backs then would be Spring and Harold Bauer at the halves, and Joe Clifton, full back. The forward wall, too, may remain intact, as it stacked up against the Tigers.

When Navy takes the field, Whitey Hughes, its great center, will play against a former fellow midshipman, Warren, now pivot man for the Quaker Eleven.

North-South Football Game Plan of Legion

Boston, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—The Sunny South will face New England on the gridiron here December 14 if the flight, begun today, of James Fay and T. R. Tobey, of the Croscup Pishon Post, American Legion, is successful.

Fay and Tobey took off from the Boston Airport for Washington and points south in the hope of having recruited a football team representative of the Southern Conference which would meet a team representative of the New England States.

Leg Infection To Confine Coach

Doctors Fear Poison May Spread; Order Complete Rest.

Setback Follows His Attendance at Carnegie Tech Game.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 29 (A.P.). The condition of Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's celebrated football coach, has taken such a serious turn that his physician has ordered him to forego all gridiron activities for a week and perhaps the remainder of the 1929 season.

Rockne, suffering from a blood clot in his right leg, defied his physician's orders last week by accompanying his team to Pittsburgh for the Carnegie Tech game and aggravated his leg. Upon his arrival home he was ordered to bed and resigned himself to medical orders.

It was explained the outlook for recovery now was excellent but that if Rockne insisted on drilling and following his team on its many long journeys, the infection might prove fatal.

Lieb to Direct Squad Against Georgia Tech.

It is definite he will not accompany the Ramblers to Atlanta for the Georgia Tech game Saturday. Other contests on the Notre Dame schedule this season are Drake at Chicago, November 9; University of Southern California at Chicago, November 15; Northwestern at Evanston, Ill., November 23, and the Army at New York, November 30.

Tom Lieb, his assistant, who directed the Ramblers successfully against the Navy and Wisconsin, will take the coaching reins.

The problem of keeping Rockne's mind off football is a difficult one for his physician. During the Navy and Wisconsin games, he showed extreme excitement while listening to the games' progress over radio and by reading telegraphic reports—more excitement than conducive to rapid recovery.

Capt. Malevich Returns To Catholic U. Squad

Football hopes of atholic University skyrocketed yesterday with the return to the squad of Capt Jack Malevich, who has been nursing a badly wrenched ankle for three weeks.

Coach McAuliffe said that it was extremely doubtful if the dashing leader of the Cardinals would be seen in action next Saturday against the Manhattan College team, of New York, but that Malevich would be in the back field on November 9, when Duquesne will be met here in the "homecoming" game. Although not taking the Manhattan eleven lightly, McAuliffe is pointing his squad chiefly for the Duquesne battle.

Devitt Lightweights Beat G. U. Prep, 14-7

With O'Donnell scoring both of his team's touchdowns, the lightweight eleven of Devitt Prep yesterday scored a 14-7 victory over the G. U. Prep lightweights. The players will meet on the Iowa Playgrounds, going to Bedell's in a body. Thursday night's practice has been called off on account of Halloween.

Penn State Dubs Star "Merriwell" After Epic Dash as Whistle Toots

Special to The Washington Post.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Oct. 29.—When Frank Diedrich threw back his foot to kick the try-for-point after his touchdown which gave Penn State a last second victory over Lafayette last Saturday, he probably did not know that a successful boot would have placed him in a triple tie for fifteenth place in scoring honors in the East. But not many of the 15,000 who saw the game cared much about the extra point. It was a 60-yard run a few seconds before that drove the stands into temporary insanity.

Diedrich's run, made after the final whistle had blown, so upset the campus that there has been little talk of anything else since Saturday. The student body is just beginning to realize that there will be another game this week, only four days away, with Syracuse. But the chief topic of conversation is the play that gave State a victory in the last game.

Diedrich and his teammate of Staunton Military Academy days, Cooper French, were promptly dubbed "Frank Merriwell" and "Dick Merriwell" as a result of the play they engineered. Taking a Lafayette punt on his own 40-yard line French, who was hemmed in by Maroon tacklers, whipped a lateral pass to Diedrich who ran the rest of the way to the Lafayette goal behind quickly formed interference. Although time had been called the play was completed in accordance with the rules, giving the Lions a 3-point edge, 6 to 3.

The play recalled a similar last-minute effort on Diedrich's part in the Lafayette-State game in Easton a year ago. On that occasion the whistle blew while a forward pass was almost in Diedrich's clutch in the end zone. An alert Lafayette defender knocked down the pass to save the Maroons a 7 to 0 victory.

WILLIAM T. WINS FEATURE AS LAUREL CHOICES FAIL

Bewithus Sets Fast Pace, Falters

Caskey Gelding Wins Mile and 70-Yard Race in 1:42 2-5.

Chestie Ann Among Array of Laurel Favorites to Fail.

Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 29.—Today was the most disastrous day that form players experienced during the entire Laurel meeting. The program in the main was framed to suit ordinary horses and with this class of racers competing it was not surprising that upsets should be in order. The biggest disappointments of the afternoon came with the defeat of Mucker in the first race and Chestie Ann in the fourth. Both were heavily played and both were at odds on in the wagering.

W. E. Caskey, jr., furnished the winner of the afternoon's feature race, the Frederick Handicap, when his Lucky Hour gelding, William T., beat E. R. Bradley's Bewithus out a length. There were six starters and Bewithus went to the post a well-played favorite. The Bradley horse, showing brilliant speed from the start raced into a three-length lead rounding the first turn. He was setting terrific pace. The first quarter was run in 0:23. Keeping up this clip Bewithus went to the half in 0:45 2-5, where he led by a length and a half. Chief Executive was second, Inception third and William T. fourth.

Rounding the far turn Bewithus increased his advantage to two lengths and the position of the others were still unchanged. The clockers clicked off the 6 furlongs in 1:12 3-5 as they swung for home. Bewithus was still out in front and flying. Robertson had taken William T. to the outside and in the final furlong began charging on the leaders. Legere, evidently feeling his mount weakening under him, kept looking back.

In the last sixteenth Bewithus collapsed and William T., finishing straight and true, caught and passed him in the last 50 yards to win going away at the end. Inception was third, beaten a length for the place. The mile was run in 1:37 2-5 and the mile and 70 yards in 1:42 2-5, within 1-5 of a second of the track record for the distance.

Two horses changed hands by the claiming route when R. E. Perry took Passing By from the Audley Farm for $3,000 and Benny Creech, trainer for W. R. Coe, claimed Chestie Ann for $5,000.

Moine Maintains Early Lead.

Another maiden from the W. R. Coe Stable graduated from the ranks of the nonwinners when the Friar Rock colt Moine beat a band of maiden colts and geldings in the running of the first race. Ridden by R. Inzelone and making all of his own pace, Moine in a driving finish beat Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Falcon out a scant length. Moine, quick to begin, went to the front before they had gone a sixteenth and led the remainder of the trip.

At the top of the home stretch Sun Falcon charged on him and Coltiletti was driving in desperate fashion. For a time it appeared as though the Kilmer colt would pass Moine but when the final test came the latter had a little more left and at the end drew away again. Mucker, the heavily played favorite, was third, beaten three lengths for the place. He was driving to the limit to stall off Timon and just lasted long enough to save third money.

Donnatina Scores When Begin Over Collapses.

Donnatina proved best of the band of cheap platers that went to the post in the second race, a dash of 1 mile. Breaking from the extreme outside post position, Donnatina raced in close company with Begin Over and straightened out on the back stretch, where she began to draw away. At the half-mile pole, the Bryson filly opened up a lead of two lengths. Serio was sitting still and hugging the rail, saving every inch of ground possible.

Cannon, on Begin Over, made several desperate attempts to get to the leader again and in doing so made entirely too much use of his mount. The result was that when the home stretch was reached Begin Over was all in and staggering and at the end was beaten out for the short end of the purse by Lion Hearted. Lommern, from the Seagram Stable, dropped into second position in the last sixteenth and at the end led Lion Hearted by a length. Donnatina was an easy winner with a two-length margin to spare.

Morris Brings Ring On Home Galloping.

Ring On broke the run of ill luck experienced by Willie Midgely this season when he galloped home an easy winner in the third race. There was a good jockey in the saddle this afternoon and the ride was probably responsible for the improvement shown by Ring On. L. Morris was the pilot and when the break came he was away with the leaders. After getting a nice position Morris took hold of Ring On and rated him off the pace makers until straightened out on the back stretch. Going to the half-mile pole Morris set Ring On up to Eyelash and Nihil, who were out in front racing head and head.

As they swung out of the back stretch, Ring On had taken command and, rounding the far turn, opened up a lead of two lengths. Morris was sitting still, holding Ring On together, and at no time during the remainder of the trip did the result appear in doubt. At the finish Ring On had a lead of three lengths over Pat Calhoun, who beat Lucie Ann a like distance for the place.

TACKLE HAS ODD SHOES.

New York, Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Frank Foley, Fordham tackle, caused the bootmakers a lot of trouble when he hurt his instep. He had to have a special pair of reinforced shoes made, one of them size 13½, the other 14½.

MOINE, having good speed, shook off keen opposition from MUCKER in the first five furlongs, responded to hard urging nearing the finish and held SUN FALCON safe. Latter, a forward factor all the way and hard urged, was going gamely at the end. MUCKER, on the inside all the way, made early bids, but weakened in the final drive and just lasted to stall off TIMON. Latter, on the outside most of the trip, was hard urged through the final stages and closed stoutly. ROUGE KNIGHT had speed in spots. HANDY MAN had no mishaps.

SWEEP PIC, going in vastly improved form, followed the leaders closely, secured racing room on the inside to take command and was going away at the end and had CHESTIE ANN safe. WACKET, hard hustled all the way held on gamely for the final issue. CHESTIE ANN stumbled at the break, recovered gamely, but lost ground the entire trip. CALOME lacked speed. GUILDER quit badly after three furlongs.

WILLIAM T., going in his best form, was rated close to the leaders, went to the outside when called on, was placed to punishment when racing to BEWITHUS and, in a fast finish, was up in the last fifty yards and going away rapidly. BEWITHUS, 8 pounds overweight, speed, moved inside, opened a two length lead, disposed of repeated bids from INCEPTION, but hung badly in the closing test when Legere kept looking back. INCEPTION offered good opposition and continued gamely until the end. DUMORE was unable to get into contention. He was worked out a mile and one-half. CHIEF EXECUTIVE was not good enough.

GENIAL HOST, trailing off the pace early and taken to the outside when reaching the back stretch, finished in determined fashion when put to a drive and in a rapid finish, was up in the last few yards. FAIR BETH, rushed to the front, set a good pace, shook off repeated bids from LIGHT VIEW and fought it out with excellent courage. ALGERNON, a forward factor the entire trip, continued gamely under punishment. LIGHT VIEW forced a good pace, but weakened slightly nearing the finish. FAUX PAS went wells. PLAY B showed improvement.

SPORTING LADY broke tardily, worked way up fast after reaching the turn and, taken to outside in best going, began drawing clear at the end. GLADYS M'CLAIN, never far back, but losing ground all through stretch, closed resolutely to outgame LEE COOPER. Latter swerved out badly all through stretch and tired badly in final drive.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Wyomings. For 2-year-old maiden fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:30. Off at 2:33. Winner, B. Combs' ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—HUMMINGBIRD, $3.72, $3.20, $2.58; LUXURY, $6.36, $4.12; LITTLE RUMPUS, $9.08.

HUMMINGBIRD took command at once, raced into a comfortable lead on far turn and, responding well when threatened at head of the stretch, won with much in reserve. LUXURY followed the winner throughout, saved ground into stretch and, although continuing stoutly, could not menace the leader. LITTLE RUMPUS dropped back approaching the turn, but came again near ends to outstay others.

THIRD RACE—One and three-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:58. Off at 3:00. Winner, F. J. Letellier's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BORDER CHIEF, $6.72, $3.96, $2.70; BALLOT BRUSH, $5.38, $3.26; SHARON, $2.44.

BORDER CHIEF bettered position on outside, raced up with the leader an eighth out and, continuing gamely in the best going, wore BALLOT BRUSH down. Latter took third place under steadying rein. SHARON, in deepest going at last eighth, seemed as he faltered last seventy yards. SHARON, closer up than usual, was taken back slightly on far turn, came again near end, but was weakening in final drive.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:25. Winner, Mrs. A. Goldblatt's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—KATY M'COOK, $8.16, $4.20, $3.10; ROYAL SPORT, $6.04, $3.56; PHOTO'S STAR, $2.82.

KATY M'COOK was rushed into the lead at once and, escaping crowding on first turn, opened up a big advantage on far turn and, continuing gamely when threatened in stretch, drew out decisively. ROYAL SPORT followed the winner throughout under steadying restraint, made a determined bid when straightened out in stretch, but was not good enough. PHOTO'S STAR was pinched back on first turn, saved ground on inside all through back stretch, continued stoutly through stretch, but could not menace the leaders. PLAYFELOW'S DREAM was forwarded, went wide on first turn, held on well thereafter, but was tiring slightly through stretch.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; allowances. The Bellevue. For all ages. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:53. Winner, C. Vandunen's b. h. BRAWNY COAST GUARDSMEN SEEK PRESIDENT'S CUP

200 Pounder At Quarter Back Post

Marines Oppose Line Saturday Averaging 195 Pounds.

Devil Dogs Are Outweighed But Have Edge in Speed.

THE beef and brawn of a line that averages 195 pounds from end to end will be injected into the attempt of the Coast Guard Bears to beat the All-Marines at Griffith Stadium next Saturday in the annual President's Cup football game and win the service championship of the Nation's defense forces.

This is the forward wall which has trampled the defense of the opposition in the early games and has enabled the Coast Guard Backs to gallop to victory, the most recent accomplishment being the 91-0 defeat of the Fort Totten team last Saturday.

The biggest person on the field will be Floyd Hodgson, a tackle. Hodgson stands out even among a line that averages 195 pounds and when his 6 feet 4 inches are encased in gridiron trappings he looms really gigantic.

Coast Guard Boasts Giant Back.

But the Guardsmen's brawn is not confined to the forward wall. There is in the back field one Julian Gibson, who holds forth at quarter back and who is far from dwarfed by the mastonic men on the line. Gibson is a 200-pounder, fast beyond his weight, who has won the field general post from Ensign Daday, a former Rensselaer Polytechnic star.

The Coast Guardsmen will arrive in Washington on Friday morning and will taper off in a light practice at Griffith Stadium in the afternoon. They are brimming with confdence as the result of their early-season showing and admit that only the Canisius College team afforded them any opposition. Canisius won, 13 to 6.

Marine Eleven Rated More Speedy.

The battle promises to be a contest between a big, fast Coast Guard team arrayed against a lighter, but faster Marine eleven. The Marines have not enjoyed as successful a campaign as has been their lot in past years although they reached top form last Saturday when a long run of an intercepted pass enabled St. Xavier to gain a 13-6 victory at Cincinnati.

In Dave O'Neill, 160-pound fullback, the Leathernecks will present a constant menace who has been dubbed "Dangerous Dave" with cause. As a running mate in the back field, O'Neill will have the 158-pound Dashiell, successor to Jim Levey, as the speed boy of the Marines' backfield. At quarterback will be "Bozo" Duncan, perennial star of Marine teams in President Cup games.

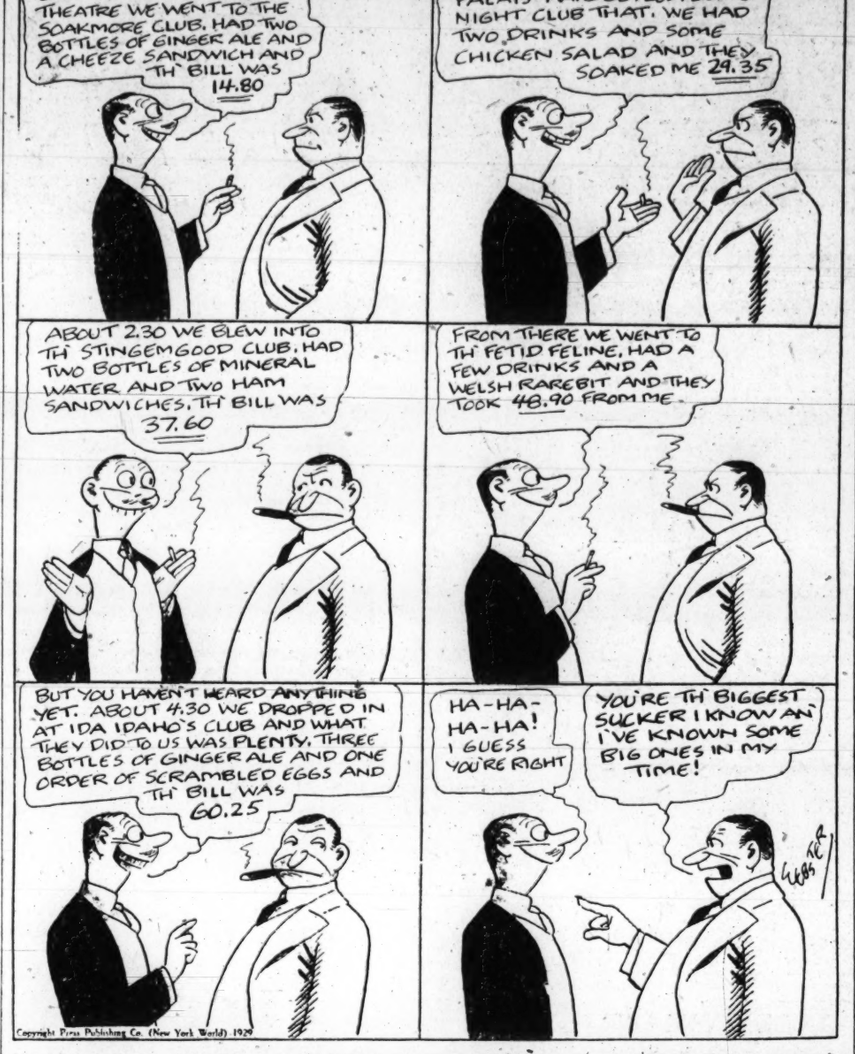
The Boy Who Made Good —By H. W. Webster



ON SOUTHERN GRIDIRONS

(Associated Press.)

GEORGE BOHLER, coach of the Auburn Tigers for two years, was "relieved" yesterday and John (Red) Floyd, assistant coach, is now acting in Bohler's place.

Bohler's "lack of personality and the type of leadership necessary for the boys with whom he deals" was given as the reason by Dr Bradford Knapp, president of the college.

Coach Harry Mehre, whose Georgia Bulldogs meet the mighty Green Wave of Tulane at Columbus, Ga., Friday, is trying to find a quarter back to send against the New Orleans squad.

Austin Downs, brilliant sophomore field general of the Bulldogs, dislocated a shoulder in the Florida game Saturday and is on the shelf for two weeks.

The fact that Armin Waugh, another back-field ace, is ready for duty again will partly offset the loss of Downs, but Mehre would feel much better about Georgia's chances Friday if Downs was in there.

Injuries are also threatening to wreck Kentucky's hopes for a conference title.

News from headquarters at Lexington is that three first-string men will grace the sidelines for the next two or three weeks while the rest of the Wildcats are trying to get by Clemson and Alabama.

Capt. Ed Covington, a back-field star, is out for three weeks with an injury to his side and Phipps, full back and Andrews, end, are nursing a wrenched shoulder and sprained ankle.

Six Southern teams will show their wares in intersectional games this week.

Florida will exhibit its dazzling array of backs in the Harvard stadium at Cambridge.

Georgia Tech will entertain the green-jerseyed men from Notre Dame. Duke makes its last stand in the East against Boston College at Boston. The Haskell Indians go to New Orleans to meet Loyola. Oglethorpe will try to take a fall out of Villanova at Philadelphia and Hampden-Sidney goes to Hamilton, N. Y., to face Colgate.

GA. TECH COACH

(Associated Press.)

BILL THOMAS, Virginia's nimble-heeled half back, scored two touchdowns Saturday against St. John's. He was deprived of a third by a trick of misfortune. It was early in the game before any scores had been made that Thomas took the ball on Virginia's 25-yard line and wove his way through the visitors until he had a free path to the goal. But he was called back because the referee had blown his whistle. This official apologized to Acting Capt. Faulconer, saying he was sorry for his mistake. That, however, did not give back to Thomas credit for dashing 75 yards for a touchdown. It was only a little later that he raced 24 yards across the goal.

A second member of the McEver family probably will perform against the Generals this week-end, after the disastrous Tennessee game in which Gene McEver proved to be the chief disaster. Macaulay McEver, out of the game for a couple of week-ends due to injuries, did valiant service in the V. P. I.-Carolina meet Saturday and is expected to be in the line-up when the Gobblers take on Washington and Lee at Lynchburg. He's Gene's older brother.

Al Hawkins, Cadet quarter back, who has been able to plunge through almost anybody's line this season, and who ran 53 yards on receiving a kick-off in the Maryland game at Richmond Saturday, will play one of the last games of his career in his own home town. When V. M. I. meets Clemson in Norfolk November 9, there probably will be four Norfolk youths in the line-up—Hawkins, Tommie Scott, star end, and Louis Chadwick, a bulwark of the Cadet line at tackle, both of whom, like Hawkins, sign off on football this year, and Randolph Gregory, who has done well as Scott's understudy. All are products of Maury High School in the seaport town.

All four starting backs and two substitutes scored touchdowns for William and Mary Saturday night, as the Indians galloped over Bridgewater. Sheff, half back, made two of the tallies, and Mozeleski, Maxey and Shipp got one each. They were the starters. Baldacci, sent in after the game was underway, took the biggest toll, three touchdowns, and Parker, also substituting, rang up 6 points more.

Seegar Gravatt, reserve quarter back for Virginia, showed he knew how to handle a team when he got his first opportunity against St. Johns. His run of 27 yards put the Cavaliers in position to score the last touchdown, which he took over himself on a 4-yard plunge. Gravatt is from Blackstone and played at Episcopal High. He stands 5 feet 10 inches and weighs 165 pounds.

Van Dusen's Torchilla Repeats in Latonia Mud

Latonia, Ky., Oct. 29 (A.P.).—Clyde Van Dusen's 5-year-old bay horse, Torchilla, showing a distinct liking for the heavy going, easily captured the feature attraction on today's card, an allowance affair for all ages, over the six furlongs distance. Helen Dean was next best, with Kulaman third.

By winning today's feature Torchilla registered his second victory at this meeting, and at the same time demonstrated he could carry more weight and still outpace High Score, the speedy sprinter from the A. P. Canale Stable, which took the verdict by a neck when they last met a week ago.

Torchilla was sent to the front right at the springing of the barrier and, increasing his advantage throughout, was leading by six lengths as they entered the stretch. He won easily by five lengths. Helen Dean, away slowly and outpaced to the final drive, came with a rush to nose out Kulaman for the place.

The race was worth $1,000 to the Van Dusen Stable, and was run in 1:17 1-5. Torchilla paid $4.38 for $2 in the mutuels.

VERSATILITY SOUGHT BY VIRGINIA

Backs to Be Threat Against Maryland on Saturday.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 29. Virginia hopes to overcome inexperience in the line with versatility in the back field in the game with Maryland on Saturday in College Park and in the contests with Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Washington and Lee and North Carolina that are to follow.

Virginia may have only one line veteran, George Taylor, at center, back in the same position he played last year. There will be good men in the other positions, most of them big men, but practically every one of them is in his first season with the varsity and they are new at their work.

Behind the line there are Hunter Faulconer, Al Lewy and Gus Kaminer, all letter men, and Freyhan Odenheimer and Billy Moncure, both of whom have played with the varsity before, though not regularly.

Another group of candidates who are trying for varsity positions are Hill Thomas, Herbert Bryant, Carl Goldenberg, Seegar Gravatt, Frank Shipley, Douglas Myers and some others who have not gotten into any of the games this season. All of these are on the squad for the first time.

Abell Demands Versatility.

Earl Abell, head coach of the Cavaliers, is demanding versatility of the men he uses in the major contests ahead. They must be able to pass as well as carry the ball, and if they can punt the chance of starting is much better. They must be able to block on offense and to tackle surely on defense.

Roy Randall, who is coaching the back field especially, is brushing up the weak places of the various backs. His task is to train the men to do their jobs cleanly and swiftly.

Faulconer, at quarterback, either Thomas or Kaminer or Bryant as half backs, and Levy as full back are the probable starters against Maryland on Saturday.

Fifth Victory in Row For Moorefield High

Special to The Washington Post.

Moorefield, W. Va., Oct 29.—Moorefield High School's Football Team defeated Davis High on the latter's football field, 6 to 0. While her own goal was not threatened except in the third quarter, Moorefield also failed to show the punch for a score when within range. Moorefield now has won five straight victories, having defeated the teams of St. John's Academy, Keyser High, Paw Paw High, Harpers Ferry High, in addition to Davis High.

Harpers Ferry is the only team that has scored on the locals. On the coming Saturday Moorefield will meet the Thomas High Eleven here.

Wash. College Hopes To Trounce Drexel

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., Oct. 29.—The unexpected strength shown by Washington College against the admittedly superior Swarthmore Eleven in the last game played by the Eastern Shore outfit has encouraged local gridiron mentors to believe their charges will face Drexel next Saturday in Philadelphia with renewed vigor. Dopson is punting with his usual brilliancy and Robinson, at quarter, is improving his technique as the season waxes. He can also carry the ball, as was shown on more than one occasion against the Little Quakers.

Washington is being coached in providing proper interference for runners and in blocking and tackling, while second string men, the majority of whom are green to the gridiron this season, are being given extra attention by Head Coach Tom Kibler and his assistants, Chief Beatty and Harry Russell.

38-6 VICTORY SCORED BY EASTERN

taking a terrific beating Millard finally showed his weakness in the fourth quarter by muffing an easy punt in midfield. And seeing his one dependable fast fading, Coach one of his three substitutes. Thus ended Western's chances as far as the game was concerned.

Western, Minus Stars, Powerless.

From then on, Western was absolutely powerless to stop the Eastern onrush and it likewise was left without a single offensive weapon. With Millard off the field, the Eastern team swept through like a hurricane and scored four touchdowns in the last period which sewed up the game for fair. McCullough took a 20-yard pass from Oxley and raced 30 yards to make the score read 18-6, which started the winners on their last-minute spurt. Chamberlain followed suit when he grabbed up a Western punt which had been blocked by Hayden and went to the second score of the period.

And, thoroughly demoralized, the Western Team saw one of its own passes intercepted by Burns, who traveled 30 yards for the count which sent the score into the thirties. The last marker of the day came when Oxley repeated his forward passing trick by tossing the pigskin to McCullough, who again went over the line for the last score of the afternoon.

Before his injury Draper had given indication that the game would develop into one of the prettiest duels fought thus far, as he continually led his team in an onslaught which threatened to tie the score.

Oxley Dashes 97 Yards To Score With Punt.

Starting off with a rush, Eastern quickly ran up two touchdowns, with the first coming through one of the most sensational plays yet seen in the series year. Receiving a punt on his own 3-yard line, Everett Oxley, Light Blue and White half back, fumbled the ball momentarily and seemed to stop before the oncoming charge of two Western tacklers. But picking the ball up Oxley cleverly dodged his opponents and then started on the longest run that has been seen on a local gridiron this season.

Starting to his right, Oxley saw a crowd of players in his path, and then, reversing his field, tore over to the sidelines on the northern side of the stadium and placing himself behind three teammates, who acted as interference, dashed the 97 yards up the gridiron to the first score of the day.

This sudden beginning undoubtedly demoralized the Western Eleven for the time being as the Eastern Team, receiving the following kick-off, had no trouble in going through for another score on four plays after receiving the kick. Millar climaxed the short rally with a 30-yard run to a touchdown.

Teams Battle on Even Terms, Led By Draper.

But from then on, Western braced and for most of the next three quarters battled the light Blue and White team on even terms while scoring a six-pointer on its own account. The first marker came early in the second quarter with Draper assuming the leading role.

Tearing off 8, 3 and 2 yards, successively, Draper mixed in with his rushes a deft pass to Millard which netted 10 yards. With the ball on the 1-yard mark, Draper carried the ball over. It was the ill-fated performer's last offensive action. From then on, his team was on the defensive until he was injured and forced to retire.

Eastern, too, suffered a setback when Charley Millar, one of its chief aggressive threats and only punter, was laid low in the third quarter. But the Lincoln Parkers still had Oxley, McCullough and Hayden to carry on, whereas the loss of Draper and Millard left their opponents absolutely helpless.

Jimmy Hayden, full back for the winners, played a great defensive game for his team, breaking through on numerous occasions to stop the Western runners cold. Although not acting as a ball carrier for the Light Blue and White Hayden more than proved his worth by backing up his line on the defense and rarely was a Western gain made through his territory. Incidentally, it was Hayden who blocked Beers' punt in the last quarter which allowed Chamberlain to pick up the ball and run the remaining few yards for one of the winning touchdowns.

Draper, Injured Star, To Play Against Tech

Jimmy Draper, Western High School's big threat, who suffered a broken nose in yesterday's game with Eastern, will return to his squad within a few days and will play against Tech in the interhigh game next Tuesday, Coach Ahern announced last night. His return will greatly brighten the Red and White's hope for victory against the Hardell team, as he is one of the few ball carriers on the Ahern squad and has been the chief ground gainer for the team al season.

The return of Ray Millard, who played with three cracked ribs, is doubtful. Ahern had been nursing Millard along for some time prior to yesterday and with the battering he received may be unable to have him fit for next Tuesday's fray. Charley Millalr, Eastern ace who already was playing with one injured leg, rust the other leg yesterday. He was to be examined today to determine the seriousnes sof the nw injury.

Mohawks to Meet Apaches On Dec. 1, Is Indication

Rival Managers to Meet at Post to Arrange for "Sandlot Classic;" Earlier Date Opposed by Champions.

THE Mowhawk-Apache football game, which has come to be recognized as Washington's annual "sandlot classic," will be played at Griffith Stadium probably on December 1, with the previously suggested November 24 date fading as a possibility, according to latest developments.

Managers of both teams are opposed to a later December date which has marked the contest in previous years, believing that interest will be at a greater height before the collegiate season ends.

The first definite move toward fixing the day of the game will be made at a meeting of the rival managers at The Washington Post sports department early next week when eligibility lists will be exchanged. No player who has not participated in a game with either team previous to and including November 10, will be eligible, it has been learned.

The reluctance of Manager Patsy Donovan of the Mohawks to schedule the championship battle with the Apaches on November 24 is the result of impending negotiations with a strong professional team which may meet the Mohawks on the preceding Sunday. Donovan does not care to risk the Mohawks' title within a week after meeting such opposition.

Apaches Obtain Extension Of Time at Park.

Manager Hall anonunced last night that his team may get an extension of time at Union Park. The Apaches expected to lose the field after this Sunday's game with the Homestead A. C. of Baltimore. However, Hall has been practically assured of the use of the field for a game November 10 and another date the following Sunday is a possibility.

In scheduling the Homestead Eleven, the Apaches will be meeting one of the few out of town teams which have consistently extended local opposition. The best showing of the Baltimorians here was a tie with the Mohawks two years ago.

A chance for figuring the relative strength of the Apaches and Mohawks by comparative scores was side-tracked last night with the announcement that the Mohawks would play the Chester, (Pa.) Pros instead of the Middletown Pros who gave the Apaches a battle last Sunday. The Mohawks came out of their game with the O'Reilly A. C., of Richmond, in good shape and will have all of their regulars available Sunday.

Brown, End of 1927, Rejoins Apaches.

One former member of Apaches rejoined the team last night and another has signified his intentions of reporting at the next practice. "Boots" Brown, end on the team which beat the Mohawks in 1927, is again in the fold and Matt Twoomey, former Gonzaga and Devitt linesmasher, is expected to be next. It was also announced that a new tackle, formerly with Texas A. and M., will make his debut this Sunday.

$40,000 RACE AT PIMLICO OPENING

Futurity to Feature Card Friday; Meet Ends Nov. 13.

EVERYTHING at Pimlico is in VERYTHING at Pimlico is in ing, which begins Friday and continues to November 13th, inclusive. A visit to the track with Secretary M. L. Daiger was a revelation and astonishing results have been accomplished within a comparatively short time.

The Pimlico meeting opens with a flourish, as the $40,500 Pimlico Futurity is the offering for the opening day, while the Riggs Handicap, $25,000 added, is carded for the second day. Thereafter feature follows feature, something interesting being found on each day's program, so that the meeting should be an outstanding one, even in the long and creditable history of the Maryland Jockey Club.

Since the close of the spring meeting a great many improvements have been carried out on a comprehensive scale, at an outlay of approximately $85,000, and these improvements have not only added to the comfort of horses, horsemen, and the public, but have also greatly enhanced the beauty of the surroundings, so that the popular old plant is a delight to the eye, no matter from what angle it is viewed.

Additional Stalls Are Provided.

For the horses, two new borns, complete in every detail, giving 100 additional stalls, have been constructed, and Pimlico can now accommodate nearly 1,200 thoroughbreds in the most up-to-date manner.

The new barns, like the old ones, are readily accessible from all over the grounds by a carefully worked-out system of goo droads, and new incinerators, with towering chimneys, insure that all trash is disposed of promptly and adequately, with resulting neatness that is a treat to behold. No litter of any kind is visible anywhere, and Superintendent John F. Ryan is to be congratulated on the workmanlike condition of the surroundings.

The track, even after the deluge of Tuesday, was in admirable condition, and speaks well for the excellent drainage and sound underfooting.

The sprinkling system has been extended to cover all parts of the grand stand, executive buildings and stabling, so that the fire protection is a sample as science can make it or skilled mechanics can install it.

New brush has been placed in the jumps, contrasting well with the freshly whitewashed wings, and the velvety turf of the steeplechase course is in fine shape for the many cross country events featured throughout the meeting, with the Manly Memorial and the Masters of Foxhounds the outstanding events.

Alto, 7 to 1, Scores In Feature at Aurora

Aurora, Ill., Oct. 29 (A.P.)—The card today was composed entirely of claiming affairs, and the long-shot players were in a happy mood when double figures were posted on several of the winners.

The featured number, the fifth on the program, called the Michaell Flight, a gallop over the mile and 70 yard distance for 3-year-olds and upward, was won by Mrs. J. W. Smith's 3-year-old Alto, which made his first start this meeting today. Chaff, a 5-year-old mare, was second, and Salona, a 4-year-old gelding, took the third money.

Alto paid $16.12. He slowly improved his position to the stretch turn, where he went into the lead and won in a driving finish by a length. Chaff, off to a fast start, assumed command at once and held sway to the stretch turn, where she bore out badly, but managed to hold on to take the second money, by a length. Salona, after a slow beginning, moved up into contention at the quarter and ran an even race thereafter to take third place by six lengths. Laundryman was up in time to save his entrance fee by a neck.

V. M. I. TEAM DRILLS FOR DAVIDSON

Cadets Polishing Up Plays for Game Saturday.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 29.—The V. M. I. Flying Squadron is hard at work preparing for the invasion of North Carolina, where the Davidson Wildcats will be met Saturday. Cadet coaches and players dreaded a let-down after the Virginia game last week, and their worst fears appeared to be realized when Maryland jumped into a lead in the first half. Capt. Al Hawkins and his teammates had a comeback in their systems, however, and displayed one of their finest drives of the season when they marched down the field for the winning touchdown.

Although in many respects the clash with the Old Liners was the hardest of the season, with Curley Byrd's charges primed to take a fall out of the Squadron, the Cadet first stringers reported for practice Monday with only Roy Dunn listed among the casualties. The hard-hitting Cadet full back was pretty well used up in battering away at the heavy Old Line forward wall, but is expected to round into form by the time V. M. I. meets Clemson at Norfolk, if not before.

Coaches Point Out Errors Of Old Line Clash.

Coaches Raftery, Hess and Binish spent some time analyzing the mistakes made by the Cadets against the Old Liners, but mainly the attitude on Alumni Field during the first two days of practice this week was that V. M. I. pulled two tough ones out of the fire in defeating Virginia and Maryland on successive Saturdays. Davidson is no team to be taken lightly, and the Cadets are polishing up their plays to be sure to account for the Wildcats before beginning the big November drive against Clemson, Kentucky and V. P. I.

The Cadet Freshmen Eleven will try to match the varsity Saturday by turning in a victory over the Maryland Freshmen at Lextington. After downing Virginia, the Cadet first-year team lost at Raleigh to a heavier and more experienced N. C. State yearling team, but Coaches Heflin and Barnes are pointing their charges for the tilt with the Old Line outfit.

Tech Cancels Game With Landon Today

Sparing no ends to fit his Tech High team for the coming crucial game with Western, Coach "Hap" Hardell last night cancelled today's game, which was to have been played with Landon Prep School. Hardell believed that more and better results were to be had with a regular afternoon's workout than through an actual game and made his request to Coach Gordon Kessler on that ground.

Although Western was beaten yesterday, Hardell has his own opinion as to what the big Red and White team can do with the use of its regular players, who became eligible after Friday, in the line-up and wants to have his team in the best possible condition for the game which will, if won, give him the championship. He was reluctant also to give the Ahern appregation a chance to scout his team in action any more than it has already done.

BYRD STANDS ON PRESENT ELEVEN

Virginia Not Underrated for "Homecoming" Game.

UNLESS injuries should intervene, Coach Curley Byrd doubtless will stand pat on the Maryland line-up that went so well against V. M. I. at Richmond last week in the Old Liners 'homecoming day game with Virginia at College Park on Saturday.

Right now there is only one likelihood of a change, and that for the reason that Jack Norris, Maryland left end, who stands 6 feet 3 inches in his stockings, may not recover sufficiently from the injured ankle he received in the V. M. I. contest to perform against the Cavaliers.

However, Maryland will not be hard hit if Norris is unable to play, as Al Peaes, who is almost as tall and heavier, is available to fill the position. Peaes, like Norris, is a sophomore. Norris' absence would hurt more from a standpoint of cutting down the Old Liners' reserve force than his failure to be in the starting line-up.

HARRY HARKNESS, MILLIONAIRE SPORTSMAN, WAS ARRESTED FOR SPEEDING IN NEW YORK. HE WAS DOING 75 MILES AN HOUR ON BROADWAY.

OCTOBER 30, 1904.

The largest bet made on the coming presidential election was announced yesterday. V. C. Place bet his gold mine against the copper mine of Charles W. Shannon that Roosevelt would win the election over Parker. The mines are valued at about $500,000 each and are producing gold and copper in large quantities each month.

More than 200 members of the Iron and Steel Institute, headed by Andrew Carnegie, president of the association, arrived in Washington yesterday. The reception for the visitors was held at the Corcoran Art Gallery and was a brilliant affair. The delegates were received at the White House which was thrown open for inspection by the visitors. They will leave Washington tomorrow for Pittsburgh.

A motorist was fined $10 in Police Court by Judge O'Neal for violation of the speed law by going 14 miles an hour. The judge also reprimanded him for going so fast.

W. S. Harban won first honors in the Columbia Golf Club fall tournament by defeating F. Oden Horstmann, of Chevy Chase, 1 up.

Andrew Carnegie played Columbia and on the third hole, which is back of the clubhouse, had a long drive and a beautiful second shot to the green which dropped in giving him a 2, which is 2 under the 4 par for the hole.

Delegates to Annual Parley Hear Praise of Former State Regent.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Mrs. Nathaniel Beaman, of Norfolk, State regent for Virginia, National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, in her address before the thirty-third anual conference of that organization in the Old Presbyterian Meeting House, Alexandria, yesterday morning paid especial tribute to her predecessor in office, Mrs. James Reese Schick, of Roanoke, in that she retired from office leaving no unfinished work for her successor and with al pledges fulfilled.

The conference opened with bugle cal lat 9:30 a. m., when all State officers were escorted to the rostrum by the pages, the Misses Smoot Thomson, Kathleen Douglass, Frances Sinclair, Elizabeth Rust, Deane Lindsey, Grace Powell and Virginia Cary Dawson. Mrs. Beaman called the gathering to order, when the invocation was given by the Rev. Ernest M. Delaney, pastor of the East Presbyterian Church. Mrs. H. B. Porter, the State chaplain, led in "The American's Creed" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung by Mrs. E. E. McMoreland, accompanied on the organ, one of the oldest in America, by Mrs. George E. Warfield.

Mrs. Charles Alexander Swann Sinclair, regent of Mount Vernon Chapter, gave a short address of welcome from the hostess chapter, and City Manager Wallace Lawrence extended greetings from the City of Alexandria.

Mrs. Smith Replies to Welcome.

Mrs. Reba Barrett Smith, of the Kate Waller Barrett Chapter, made the response to the address of welcome, speaking of the fitness of holding a Daughters of the Revolution conference in Alexandria and in the Old Presbyterian Meeting House, replete with history of that period and with the graves of many Revolutionary patriots in its churchyard.

Mrs. Beaman introduced to the conference Mrs. Eleanor Seldon Washington Howard, the last member of the Washington family born at Mount Vernon before it passed from the possession of the family; one of the founders of Mount Vernon Chapter and a past regent, a former State regent and now honorary vice president general from Virginia in the national society. She also introduced Miss Althea Serpell, of Norfolk, who served as State regent during the period of the World War, and who has been a vice president general, and Mrs. Benjamin L. Purcell, of Richmond, who has just retired from the regency of one of the largest chapters in the State, the Commonwealth, of Richmond.

Credentials Group Reports.

Mrs. Thomas E. Sebrell, of the local chapter and chairman of the credentials committee, presented her report of the officers and delegates present, governing the voting strength of the meeting. Mrs. Thomas W. Robinson read the program report. A letter of greeting was read from Mrs. Mary W. Troth, president of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club, to the visiting organization.

At this point in the program Mrs. Van Ordsel, national registrar general, was presented, and in her address urged the chapter representatives to stress the importance of correct registration papers for State and national files, and asked that chapter registrars supervise all papers, to expedite the work of national officers.

She stated the national society now has a membership of over 171,000.

President General Sends Wire.

A telegram was received from the part, and a reply was sent to her at president general, Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, Newcastle, Pa., where she is attending a conference that prevented her appearance in Alexandria.

The State officers presented their reports, those who could not appear in person sending reports to be filed with the secretary.

Mrs. Charles B. Keese, State vice regent, of Martinsville, was sent a telegram, as she is now in a hospital in Roanoke recovering from serious injuries sustained in an automobile accident.

State Historian Files Report.

Mrs. J. Cook Grayson, Charlottesville, State historian, reported on the Virginia Book, which is a compilation of Virginia Revolutionary data.

The conferees went on record as authorizing the publication of 500 copies, and it was suggested that university libraries be presented with the books.

The memorial service was in charge of Mrs. H. B. Porter, State chaplain, who read the names of all members who had died since the last State conference, paying tribute to each. Talbert Haslett sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," accompanied by Mrs. George E. Warfield.

Address Made in Churchyard.

Following the memorial service the assemblage went into the churchyard where an address was made by William B. McGroarty, president of the Washington Society of Alexandria, giving a brief history of the discovery of the grave in the old churchyard containing the body of an unknown Revolutionary soldier, and its marking by the Children of the Revolution who placed a marble slab with a suitable inscription over the grave.

Mrs. Beaman gave a short talk and a wreath was placed on the tomb by Miss Amonette Gordon, of the Ann McCarty Ramsay Chapter, C. A. R., of Alexandria, after which taps was sounded.

Luncheon was served to the delegates and visitors in the Westminster Building, and the conference reassembled. The appointment of the resolutions committee was announced as follows: Mrs. John W. Price, chairman; Mrs. George D. Chenoweth, Miss Rose M. MacDonaldñ, Mrs. W. E. Martin and Miss M. V. Mann.

Standing Committee's Report.

Reports of standing state committees were presented by the respective chairmen. The conference was asked to endorse the movement that Stratford be purchased as a national shrine, that each chapter be requested to give some program on January 19, the birthday of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

The proceeds will be applied to this fund.

Fete at Country Club.

Mrs. Arthur Rowbathan, Alta Vista, chairman of Historic Trees, asked that the Virginia body assume the restoration of the George Washington tulip tree at Falls Church, a tree said to be over 300 years old, with an authentic history.

The visitors were taken to Gunston Hall, where the mansion and grounds were opened for inspection, and then visited historic Pohick Episcopal Church, and last night were given a reception at the Belle Haven Country Club.

The business sessions will be resumed at 9:30 o'clock this morning when the order of business will be the reports of State chairman of national committees.

Thompson A. Holman, of Washington, was fined $5 and costs in police court yesterday morning on a charge of being drunk. Henry Vandewall, employed by Rex Ingham at a gasoline filling station on the Fort Humphreys road, refused to prosecute Holman on an assault charge. Holman is alleged to have struck Vandewall in the head with a hammer.

Judge Parke P. Deans, past grand master of Odd Fellows and grand representative of Virginia in the Sovereign Grand Lodge of the World, visited Sarepta and Arlington Lodges last night.

Maryland Game Facing Bad Year

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 29.—Based upon the number of hunting licenses issued from the office of the clerk of the circuit court for Anne Arundel County, wild fowl and animals are in for a tough fall with the hunting season about to open, except for squirrel, which have been hunted for some time, 1,062 county licenses have been issued. These licenses net the county a goodly sum, a fee of $1.25 being charged for each.

In addition, 157 State-wide licenses have been issued here at $5.25 each, and 17 nonresidence licenses to hunters from out of the State. The latter paid $15.50 each. The duck season opens on November 1 and lasts until January 31. This is the main sport in this section and with fowl reported plentiful along the shores a big season is expected.

The rail and reed bird seasons are closed indefinitely by Federal regulations. The main troop of huntsmen will turn out on November 10, when the rabbit season will open. This in spite of the report that rabbits are diseased. In addition to rabbit, woodcock, pheasant, grouse, wild turkeys and quail may be killed until December 31.

Tobacco Floor Space At Danville Is Taxed

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 29.—Tobacco auction facilities here are overtaxed by the great volume of tobacco brought here yesterday, aggregating 1,500,000 pounds. Prices are maintaining approximately the same levels seen last week with a strong demand for all grades.

Reasons for the heavy deliveries are said to be a realization that the product is now commanding prices substantially above production costs and also the fact that most of the farmers have finished plowing and have more time for marketing.

VIRGINIA U. PLANS TO HEAR NOTABLES

Andre Siegfried, Bertrand Russell and Others to Give Lectures.

PARLEYS ARE LISTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 29.—Andre Siegfried, Bertrand Russell, T. S. Stribling and Stark Young will speak at the University of Virginia this session in what is probably the most ambitious program of public lectures ever presented here.

All the lectures will be given in Cabell Hall. They are under the auspices of the Virginia Quarterly Review and will be known as the Virginia Quarterly Review lecture series. One of the most valuable features of last year's series was the informal meeting between visiting lecturers and groups of students. Editors of the Quarterly will undertake to create similar opportunities this year.

Andre Siegfried, author of "America Comes of Age," will lecture Thursday, November 14, on "European Civilization and American Civilization." Siegfried's book placed him in the best seller class and also in the long line of famous French observers whose penetrating glances have interpreted America to Americans. Last summer he was on the program of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown, Mass.

Bertrand Russell, British author and famous liberal, will lecture Thursday, December 5. His subject will be "Need Moderns Be Cynical?"

T. S. Stribling, Southern novelist, will lecture January 7. Mr. Stribling's talent for comprehending the little-known hill billy, gives him the right to speak with special authority on "The Aristocrat, the Hill Man and the Negro."

The last speaker will be Stark Young, scheduled to lecture April 8 on "Modern Trends in the Theater." Mr. Young is widely known as one of the South's foremost novelists. His dramatic criticisms have earned for him the reputation of being an authority on the American theater.

New Hard Road Sought By Commerce Groups

Special to The Washington Post.

Culpeper, Va., Oct. 29.—Representatives of the Chambers of Commerce of Culpeper, Madison and Orange today met as guests of the Orange organization to make plans to secure a hard-surface road between Culpeper and Orange. The delegation from the various towns were entertained at a luncheon after which a committee was appointed to collect data concerning this road and present it to the State Highway Commission at the next public hearings on allocations of construction funds.

Those appointed to the committee were L. A. Rhoades and John S. Covington, of Culpeper; W. E. Chapman and Z. T. Eddins, of Madison; Joseph Walker and E. Wambersie, of Orange. L. A. Rhodes was named chairman of the committee and S. L. Vongemmingen, town manager of Culpeper, secretary. The road under consideration is the only unsurfaced section between Washington and Lynchburg and is now being graded.

MOORE DESCRIBES AVENUE OF FUTURE

STREET LINK IS PROBLEM

Two pictures of the Pennsylvania avenue of the future, one beautiful, the other unpleasant, were presented to the committee on public parks and buildings of the Washington Board of Trade at a luncheon meeting yesterday by Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission.

Mr. Moore brought particular attention to the section between Seventh and Ninth streets, pointing out that the majestic Department of Justice Building will rise on the south side of this block, fronted by a beautiful square, while on the north side there will be a blank that may be filled by the most hideous type of commercial houses.

Mr. Moore refrained from making any direct suggestion of what should be done with this side of the street beyond stating that it should hold a building as beautiful as the one to be erected on the south side. He asked the Board of Trade to do everything within its power to bring about a proper improvement of this territory.

The question was raised by George Graham, chairman of the subcommittee on streets, of solving the problem of connecting Thirteenth street with B street northwest. Under the present plan, there will be no connection between these two streets, and it is predicted that such a situation will hamper transportation facilities. This phase of the problem will be given a thorough discussion at an early meeting, it was announced.

Maj. L. E. Atkins, asistant to the Engineer Commissioner, revealed that $3,500,000 more is needed for the acquisition of land between Third and Sixth streets northwest, extending to Pennsylvania avenue, for the proposed municipal center. At present $3,000,000 has been appropriated.

The committee, as a whole, recommended that Lafayette Square be set aside for a suitable Government building to be used for large national conventions and international conferences. Expansion of the offices of the President was also recommended.

War-Prevention Parley Is Opened

Three-Day Session of Peace Advocates Under Way in Capital.

The National Council for Prevention of War opened a three-day meeting yesterday at the Dodge Hotel with the view of furthering the work of bringing about universal peace.

A three fold platform under discussion consists of progressive world organization, world-wide reduction of armaments by international agreement and world-wide education for peace. As pointed out yesterday at the opening sessions of the meeting, the present aim of the council is to procure education looking toward the gradual reduction and limitation of armaments rather than to advocate immediate and radical disarmament.

Some of the tasks to be taken up by the council will be the filling of gaps in the Kellogg treaty, adherence to the world court, ratification of the Pan-American treaties without reservations and naval agreement with Great Britain. In this latter connection, members of the council concede that the recent visit of Ramsay MacDonald, with the resulting decision to hold a conference in London next year, has already gone a long way toward this goal.

Rhode Island Student Is Dead in Virginia

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 29.—Roy Murdock Mahoney, aged 20, of Providence, R. I., a first-year engineering student at the University of Virginia, died at 12 o'clock yesterday at University Hospital. Taken ill at his boarding place at 555 Seventeenth street, he was removed at once to the hospital, but in spite of all efforts to revive him he died in about ten minutes. Death appeared to have resulted from an acute form of heart disease.

Mr. Mahoney was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis F. Mahoney, of Providence, R. I., to which city the body will be sent for burial.

Mrs. Frances O. Amonette Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 29 (Special)—Mrs. Frances Ogden Amonette, 72, widow of W. F. Amonette, who died last March, died yesterday at her home here after a month's illness. She was a native of Amherst County, a member of Rivermont Methodist Church and is survived by six sons and daughters.

PRINCIPALS TO OPEN VOCATIONAL SURVEY

ADULTS TO GET AID ALSO

School principals of Prince Georges County, Md., have been requested by Superintendent of Schools Nicholas Orem to survey their respective districts and report any cases of children unable to attend school because of physical handicaps and adults who have been injured and are in need of vocational rehabilitation.

The request is made in response to letters received from Dr. Albert S. Cook, State superintendent of schools, who has made like requests of the school superintendents of the 23 counties of the State.

The last session of the General Assembly passed two resolutions which provide for such rehabilitation work. Special appropriations are provided for the maintenance of special classes at which children physically handicapped can be taught not only academic subjects but vocational training. Another act provides for the vocational training of persons injured in accidents or otherwise handicapped so that they can be made self-sustaining.

The rehabilitation service includes the giving of vocational training and guidance to disabled persons and assistance in obtaining lucrative employment. A fund is available for payment of tuition and other necessary training expenses, all other maintenance and personal items incident to living expenses during the training period must be arranged by the disabled persons. The work of this branch is in charge of R. C. Thompson, Baltimore, Md.

The classes for hand'capped children are to include provisions for children on crutches, with braces, wearing casts, with serious diseases of the bone, with paralysis, having had amputations, with cardiac condition, needing ambulatory assitance in the classroom or with tuberculosis tendencies who have been exposed to tuberculosis. Each prospective candidate for the class is to be examined by the deputy State health officer or any qualified physician for the purpose of ascertaining the nature and extent of the physical disability and whether he needs special clinical, therapeutic or hospital treatment.

Prince Georges County school officials have not found a sufficient number of these children to warrant the starting of such classes as yet, but the school principals are to make a survey and report all children and adults who come under the classifications to be cared for.

Four persons found guilty of various offenses by juries in the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro in this term of court yesterday were sentenced by Judge Joseph C. Mattingly.

James H. Colbert, who was found guilty of assault and battery on the person of William Shreve, a gasoline station proprietor at Colmar Manor, was sentenced to serve eighteen months in the House of Correction.

Jeremiah Hawkins, colored, who was found guilty of manslaughter following the fatal shooting of Frank Green, colored, was sentenced to serve seven years in the Maryland Penitentiary. Frank Thomas Queen, colored, found guilty of a statutory offense was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction. Joseph Ford, colored, adjudged guilty of an assault on Francis Fobbs, colored, was sentenced to serve one year in the House of Correction.

Arrangements are being made by Sheriff Charles S. Early to move the sentenced prisoners today in order to relieve congestion at the county jail.

The annual Oxon Hill Community Fair was held yesterday at the Oxon Hill High School, under the supervision of the school faculty. William Jobe is principal. The fair included a school exhibit prepared by children of the graded school and a farm exhibit. A supper served by the Woman's Community Club and a dance completed the program.

Prizes were awarded in the farm exhibit as follows: Tomatoes, R. W. Brooke; squash, John Sansbury; spinach, C. D. Thorne; kale, Hartwell Tucker; turnip greens, Brooke Kerby; mustard, C. D. Thorne; parsley, J. H. Taylor; tobacco, R. F. Edelen; white corn, William Thorne; yellow corn, R. E. Lee Hill; apples, Millard Thorne; pears, Ruth Butt; white potatoes, M. Monroe; parsnips, M. Monroe; white onions, J. Edelen; turnips, R. W. Brooke; egg plant, Calvin Taylor; red pepper, William Taylor. The exhibits were judged by W. R. Ballard, of the University of Maryland.

A strong effort will be made to end the annual drive for honorary members of the Hyattsville Volunteer Fire Department by the end of this week, it was announced yesterday by Chief Noble F Rushe. A total of $376.25 has been raised in the campaign so far and the firemen plan to make a concerted drive to secure enough names and contributions to complete the drive.

Chief Rushe is captain of the canvassers who are making a house-to-house canvass in the first and second wards, with Kenneth Gettings and George Wilcoxen as members of his team. Lloyd Anderson is captain in the Second Ward, with Walter Vetters, Charles O. Johnson, Harry Wilcoxen, Frank Elmo and Ernest Davis as canvassers. The Fourth Ward is captained by Earle Dorelle, with the assistance of Harry Degges, James Smith, J. Wells Painter and Thomas Latimer. Honorary membership dues are $1 a year. Contributions should be sent to John J. Painter, treasurer of the department. The names of contributors are posted on the firehouse door.

Senator Glass Chides Coalition in Address

South Boston, Va., Oct. 29.—United States Senator Glass in an address delivered here last night continued his attack on the Virginia coalition movement and Henry W. Anderson in general, stirring to enthusiasm 1,000 hearers. The address was similar to that in Boydton except for increased severity in the castigation of Anderson and Brown.

He again applied the word "lie" to Brown and designated Anderson as having "had his snout in the Republican trough ever since he became a turncoat and received his appointment from Daugherty." He further referred to Anderson as "the official protege of the crookedest bunch that ever assembled in Washington." During the address Glass said that Representative DePriest, of Chicago, is scheduled for two more speeches in the State, one at Danville and the other at Falls Church.

Mrs. Dellinger Dies at 55.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 29.—Mrs. Margaret F. Dellinger, 55, widow of R. P. Dellinger, died last night at Middletown. Surviving are four brothers, Gerald, Henry, James and Jacob Walters, and one sister.

MRS. FAIN SPEAKS ON ELECTION ISSUES

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Speaking at a Democratic mass meeting held in the Lyon Park Community House last night, Mrs. Sarah L. Fain, Democratic member of the House of Delegates from Norfolk, declared the issues of this campaign are not "Romanism or Raskobism," but whether the voters of Virginia are going to continue in the path of progress by the election of Democratic candidates, or take a backward step by the election of inexperienced men to put us where we were 50 years ago.

"Tuesday next is judgment day in Virginia. With the eyes of the Nation on us it will be an intelligence test for the voters of the State," Mrs. Fain said.

Discussing the selection of the Republican candidates, Mrs. Fain stated they were "selected by a few and rammed down the throats of the party, and," she continued, "I want to say here that the Republicans of this State are not going to vote for them. The Democratic candidates were chosen by the voters of this State who in August went to the polls and made their choice.

"Republicans know the real issues, but are going over this State beclouding the issue by trying to make voters of this State believe they are fighting the campaign of a year ago," declared Mrs. Fain.

Theodore G. Risley, general solicitor, United States Department of Labor, will be the principal speaker at the Republican mass meeting to be held tonight in the auditorium of the Potomac Town Hall at 8 o'clock.

Risley will be introduced by Louis A. MacMahon, Republican nominee for the House of Delegates from Arlington County. The meeting is being held under the auspices of the Arlington County Republican committee of which J. C. Spaulding is chairman.
